VERNON ACHENBACH JR.
Lancaster Farming Staff

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Today starts the 1995 Pennsylvania All-American Dairy Show (PAADS), scheduled to run through Sept. 28 at the state Farm Show Complex in Harrisburg.

It kicks off tonight with the state's dairy princess pageant and ends Thursday after the naming of the supreme champion.

This year, organizers of the Pennsylvania All-American Dairy Show have added an entire week's worth of educational programs.

The result is, that perhaps truly for the first time, the PAADS has become the premier event for all dairy enthusiasts, from commercial milk sales-oriented operators to those with a primary focus on elite breeding stock.

"I'm really excited," said Lolly Lesher, fund raising coordinator, "because the show has a lot to offer the commerical dairyman. It's not just a breeder's show anymore. There's the trade show, the commericial edcuation exhibits, sales .. There's just a lot in just four days."

The Pa. All-American Dairy Show is the largest dairy event in the state with five national shows, a regional show and two state shows covering the six main dairy breeds.

There are also several important cattle sales held during the week, a youth dairy cattle judging contest and awards banquet, and the state dairy princess pageant.

On Thursday night, one-at-a-time under the beam of a bright spotlight, the grand champions of each of the breed shows are to be lead into the darkened Large Arena of the Farm Show Complex for the final competition — that of supreme champion.

The purse for the winner of the supreme champion is $1,000, according to Lesher. All six of the the breed grand champions receive a special premium in that event. It is a special occurance to have six breed grand champions in a show ring in competition at one time.

Of all premiums dispursed last year, Lesher said $74.000 was returned to exhibitors.

What makes this year even more special is that during the week, while all these shows, sales and events are occuring, for the first time a full series and variety of free dairy-related educational programs are to be offered.

The relatively new Northeast Building in the complex has allowed show organizers to create a "Dairy Activities Center" (DAC). The center is conveniently located on the first floor and is adjacent to Remember the All-American supreme champion from last year? Fair-Hill Enhancer Song-ET is Ex-95 EEEE and owned by Marion Andrew, Centerville, Md. Enhancer Song has just finished her 5-year-old record of nearly 46,000 pounds of milk with 1190f, 1219p. This is her second record over 40,000m and she is part of the first cow family of the breed to have seven Gold Medal Dams in a row. The climax of the 1995 All-American will come next Thursday when a new supreme champion will be named in the large arena of the Farm Show Complex in Harrisburg.

Farm Bill Development Driven By Budget Cut Agenda

EVERETT NEWSWANGER
Managing Editor

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.)-The climate in Washington, DC, surrounding the development of a new farm bill is different than when past farm bills have been designed. That's the report given to the Council of Farm Organizations at their regular meeting Monday, by James Dunn, professor of Ag Economics at Penn State. Dunn is working in the office of US Senator Rick Santorum (R-PA) until the new farm bill is completed.

The 1990 farm bill was the largest piece of legislation ever passed (1,000 pages) and contained items on food stamps, school lunches, women, infant, and children programs and various nutrition programs in addition to the regular farm commodities. This bill contains over half of the national budget.

In the past the farm bill was driven by regional farm interests across party lines with other non-farm items included to develop the political interest that is lacking from the small voter segment of farmers.

But this year the farm bill is driven, not along regional lines, but by the budget reduction agenda. The by-partisan nature of the ag committee has changed with each side trying to make political hay out of the other side's cost reduction proposals. Right now, Dunn said the senate ag committee is

Gov. Ridge Declares Drought Emergency

VERNON ACHENBACH JR.
Lancaster Farming Staff

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — State Gov. Tom Ridge on Wednesday declared a drought emergency for 32 counties that primarily form those that supply headwater drainage for the Susquehanna and Delaware rivers.

Not included in the official "emergency" declaration are counties along the lower reaches of the river and western counties, though all areas of the state have been suffering from drought conditions. The remainder of the state is under some level of water conservation recommendation.

The emergency declaration was made as flows in the Susquehanna have reached 10-year lows.

Bedrock is evident everywhere in the state's central river and boat traffic is almost nonexistant except for occasional canoes.

Though a cold front moving into the state was to have brought rain Friday, officials said an inch of rain per week, for a series of weeks, was needed to recharge groundwater. Almost all surface water flows, except during certain storm events, come from groundwater, as does all well water.

In addition to those counties associated with the headwaters of the Susquehanna and Delaware rivers, Adams County, which serves as part of the headwaters for the Potomac River, is also under a state of drought emergency.

There are actually three official drought status levels upon the entire state.

Thirty-two counties were under the drought emergency status as of Friday morning, 11 were under drought warning status, and 24 were under drought watch.

Mandatory restrictions apply to all, whether the water source is public or private. Enforcement of restrictions is to be in place and charges are to be filed against the USDA's Consolidated Farm Service Agency.

"On the recommendation of Lt. Gov. Mark Schweiker and his drought task force, this emergency declaration places mandatory restrictions on non-essential water use for 6.5 million residents ..."

He also urged residents in the remaining counties to use common sense and conservation measures as well to prevent widening the mandatory restrictions.

"The need for conservation has never been so critical, and I'm ask-

Deb Landis Is New Poultry Ambassador

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — For the first time, the Lancaster County Poultry Ambassador (formerly called poultry queen) has no former ties to the poultry industry.

Unlike her predecessors, Deb Landis neither lives on a poultry farm nor do her parents work for the industry.

Deb's credentials as a spokesperson for the industry comes from her experiences in communicating with people from different backgrounds.

"She is superbly qualified," said Guy Martin, who heads the search committee for the Lancaster County Poultry Association. "We wanted someone who could well represent the industry to the non-farming community and be a spokesperson for it."

Deb is taking a cram course on learning industry facts and nutritional values of poultry meat and

Editor's Note: The Northeast Poultry Show is scheduled September 26-28 at the Host Resort in Lancaster. A special section of "Poultry Notes" in this issue features this show. In addition, other features, management reports, and advertising messages are included.

Unlike her predecessors, Deb Landis neither lives on a poultry farm nor do her parents work for the industry, but she has plenty of experience in communicating with people from diverse backgrounds. This ability is a plus in fulfilling her duties as poultry ambassador.

Trucklot buying interest was sluggish. Offerings were usually fully adequate for the disappointing buyer interest. Movement through retail and distributive channels was light with some out front interest developing at the increasingly competitive price levels. The market tone was generally weak with trade sentiment remaining cautious.

Continued export interest and favorable export outlook kept wheat bids on the rise. Corn and soybean bids were mixed as profit taking continued to push bids lower but improved export demand and expected frost over the weekend limited declines. Wheat steady to 4 cents higher. Corn mostly 1 to 3 cents lower. Sorghum 1 to 2 cents lower. Soybeans mixed from 1 to 3 cents lower to 4 cents higher. Overseas wheat orders continued to show up and indications that Russia may tender for US wheat and flour, added further strength to bids. Fund buying on the board began after reports that Russian officials will meet with the USDA next week to discuss a possible GSM-102 offer for not only wheat but also corn and soymeal. Traders spent another day of fund selling in corn and bean pits as frost concerns eased somewhat. Ideas are that the predicted frost may not hit until Saturday, giving crops a couple more days to mature.

Late planted soybeans are still filling pods and a heavy frost would be damaging to beans. Most of the corn is made by now but some damage to late filling ears could cut into yields. Recent good export sales and optimism for additional orders offered some support to bean and corn bids.

TOBACCO FARMERS:

We will see you soon on twine, Kentucky Bale Boxes & Lath Holders.

Strip your tobacco early as Tennessee and Kentucky crop is short and their market will last only 4 weeks. They are stripping now in Tennessee and Kentucky.

When marketing your tobacco, think Paradise - where you get the most. We have 6 to 8 buyers to sell tobacco to at any time during the season. We want your tobacco.

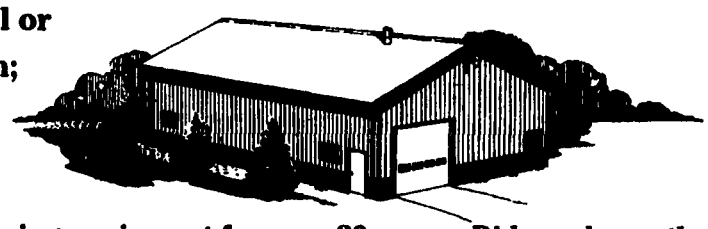
Our Building Lease may be the best way to build your farm or commercial building.

Whether your new farm or commercial building is of pole, timber column, stud, steel or block construction; choose Telmark lease financing.



Telmark has been leasing equipment for over 30 years. Did you know that we've been leasing new buildings for that long too? Consider the features:

- Tax deductibility and accelerated write-offs: Lease payments are income tax deductible over the term of the lease compared to 20-year depreciation of farm buildings and 39-year depreciation of commercial buildings.
- Low upfront costs: Beginning costs may be as little as one monthly lease payment.
- Flexible lease term: Building lease terms start aggressively at five years but may be as long as ten, twelve, or fifteen years.
- Customized payment schedules: Lease payment schedules match your cash flow. Payment options include monthly, quarterly, annually, as well as, skip or specially designed seasonal payments.

How do you start leasing a building from Telmark? Talk with a qualified builder to determine your needs and building cost. And call your Telmark representative:

"With Hoffman 89, I got 98 bushels per acre, and great test weights too."

— Glenn Wiand, Mifflinburg, PA

"As a cash-crop producer who farms more than 2,000 acres, I need reliable, dependable seed products. Sure, I'm always trying new things, but when you have a good variety like Hoffman 89, you stick with it."

"Hoffman 89 gives me good yields, and even better test weights, so it's proved to be a moneymaker in our operation. It has good standability and responds well to high managment, with either manure or nitrogen."

Hoffman 89 wins yield tests as well as producing test weights well over 58 lb/bu. In recent Lancaster County trials, it produced a 5% advantage over the mean yield, on top of an additional 5% over mean test weight. At $3.00 per bushel, that dual advantage added up to $15.30 per acre for Hoffman 89.

So take a close look at Hoffman 89. There's no better way to protect your investment in time, labor and resources. Call Hoffman Seeds at 1-800-776-7929, and let us show you how to make the most of your wheat crop this year.

OPINION

Be There To Participate

The premier dairy show event in the East is scheduled in Harrisburg next week at the Pennsylvania all-American to be staged at the Farm Show Complex. Many people will show their cattle and skills in the junior dairy show and the junior management contest for the youth and the breed championship shows and the selection of a supreme champion Thursday afternoon for the Big Boys.

In between, there is a wealth of dairy information to be presented in seminars that will feature new technology and educational information every dairy person should know about if he plans to stay in the dairy business beyond next year. This information will cost a person only the time it takes to be present.

Many people seem to think it is only for the people who show dairy cattle. And it is for the show persons. But for the spectators, it is the opportunity to see the most beautiful cows and heifers of every breed from many different herds across the nation and Canada. In addition, the breed sales give people an opportunity to take an outstanding animal of their favorite color along home to start a string of beautiful cows in their own barn.

But the key to the value of the all-American is this. You must be there to profit and enjoy the events that have been planned. Too often, the large arena is filled with tall, dairy cows with near perfect udders and the spectator seats are relatively empty. If you are a dairy farmer within driving distance of this showcase of beautiful dairy animals and technical information, you and your family would do well to fill those spectator seats at the all-American on several of the show days. You have to be there to participate!

Now Is The Time

By John Schwartz

Lancaster County Agricultural Agent

To Evaluate Your Harvest

Fall is a good time to evaluate this year's harvest and to be thankful for the yields that were harvested.

Think about the corn fields that have already been harvested and those not yet harvested. Were the fields free of stalk rots, rootworm damage, molds, and leaf blights? Did the ears and stalks of silage hybrids dry down at about the same rate? Or, were the kernels hard and glazed while the stalks were green and succulent?

Calculate crop yields. Compare tonnage harvested to tonnage needed.

This information will be helpful in deciding which hybrids to order and how much to plant next year. It will also be helpful when making ration adjustments.

As you make ration adjustments, also consider particle size, hardness of kernels, digestibility, nutrient content, and dry matter intake per hundredweight of body weight.

Forage tests may provide some of this information. For more accurate estimates of dry matter intakes, weigh or tape some cows, weigh the amount of feeds fed, and deduct the amount of feed wasted, refused, and swept out of the manger.

To Estimate Corn Yields

According to Robert Anderson, extension agronomy agent, it is easy to get a fairly accurate estimate of corn yields by using a simple formula and a little time in the field.

In making the estimate, it is assumed that a bushel of corn contains 90,000 kernels. However, for varieties which have high test weights, the formula underestimates yields, and for varieties which have low test weights, the formula overestimates the yield.

Start by measuring 1/1,000 of an acre at five locations within the field. Then count the number of ears in each location. Select representative locations avoiding extremely good or bad areas. The square feet in 1/1,000 of an acre is 43.56.

If you divide 43.56 by the row width in feet, you will determine the length of row to count. For 30 inch rows (2.5 feet) that distance is 17.424 feet or 17 feet and 5 inches. Next, harvest every fifth ear in that distance and determine the number of rows of kernels and the number of kernels in each row.

You are now ready to estimate the yield using the following formula: Yield equals (average number of ears) times (average number of rows per ear) times (average number of kernels per row) divided by (90,000 kernels per bushel) times 1,000.

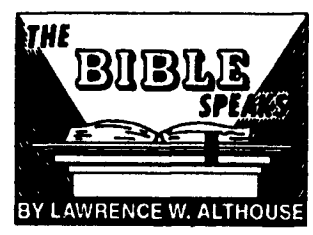
To Estimate Soybean Yields

Soybean yields may be estimated as soon as the number of pods which will be formed is determined. Estimates are based on the fact that on average, one pound of soybeans contains 2,700 individual soybeans.

If the variety being checked has an unusually large or small seed, a count for that variety should be used. In order to have a reasonable good estimate, you need to make sure that representative areas of the field are checked.

To make the estimate, an average for the number of plants per acre, the average number of pods per plant and the average number of seeds per pod must be determined. The formula is: bushels per acre equal (plants per acre) times (pods per plant) times (seeds per pod) divided by (seeds per pound) times (60 pounds per bushel). See above section on determining corn yield for determining length of row needed to count soybean plants.

Feather Prof.'s Footnote: "Excellence can be yours if you refuse to accept anything but the best."



Background Scripture
Acts 4:32 through 5:42
Devotional Reading:
Acts 4:32-37, Acts 18-26

It seems incredible to me that there is such a rapidly growing hostility for the "down-and-outers" of our society. Selfishness and indifference to human need have become politically correct even among Christians. Not only has compassion and benevolence declined, but many have come to the point of blaiming and despising the poor for their poverty, the hungry for their malnutrition, and the homeless for their vagabond ways.

The image that seems to attract the most public ire today is the welfare cheat. Billions may be squandered in propping up undemocratic foreign regimes, in subsidizing the tobacco industry, in paying for more armed forces and weaponry that even our military leaders think we need, and in various contractors cheating the government blind. BUt the image that really makes us furious is a welfare mother who makes thirty bucks by cheating on food stamps.

Understand, dishonesty, corruption and cheating in any form are reprehensible, but why is it that a poor cheat raises much more ire than a rich one? Might it not be that by despising the needy, we free ourselves of the compassion to help them and thus comfort ourselves for our failure to share?

JESUS AND THE POOR

That Christians buy this kind of political correctness is amazing in the light of what Jesus taught and demonstrated in His own life and ministry. With whom was Jesus most concerned if not the poor and downtrodden? What was the litmus test of Christian discipleship if not to help those who cannot help themselves. Read through the four gospels and see for yourself what was Jesus' attitude to the down and outers of His own day.

Then in Acts 4 we have that wonderful description of the early church in Jerusalem. "Now the company of those who believed were of one heart and soul, and no one said that any of the things which he possessed was his own, but they had everything in common... There was not a needy person among them..."

I'm not necessarily advocating that Christians today hold "everything in common," but I think we might strive for that very same goal of "not a needy person among them" if, like the early Christians, we acknowledge that nothing we possess is our own. If each of us realized that whatever we have belongs to God and therefore is to be shared with others, we might not wipe out poverty in our country entirely, but we could eliminate the greater part of it.

ON COMPASSION'S SIDE

When I was a pastor, I realized that some of the poor and homeless that came to the church's door for help would never change even if they had a chance and others only wanted a handout so they

Editor:

With so much interest in the proposed P.P. & L. - PECO merger, the PECO take-over sounded terrific; but from what I am hearing from friends and relatives, who live in the Philadelphia area, they say they have been paying 14¢ a kilowatt for some time. However, I have no personal opinion; as I have no experience to back it up. But this is not the reason for writing my letter.

I was leaning toward the merger because I thought maybe the new company would do something about the stray voltage problem that has been affecting at least seven dairy farmers in the Columbia and lower Lycoming County area. As of this date, it has ruined hundreds of dairy cows with up to seven volts found in some dairymen's milking area — which is coming from the utility company neutral. When you confront P.P. & L. Co. with this problem, all they will do is put on an isolator; which, in essence, unhooks us from their neutral. I say that is merely a Band-Aid. Once the isolator is put on, it just makes matters worse for the next farmer; because a P.P. & L. Co. lineman told one of these dairymen that P.P. & L. hated to lose the dairy farmer, for all of the concrete and metal pipe they utilize for their grounding system. They have not done

EVERY GREAT TEAM LEARNS TO ADAPT.

It's not enough to be powerful. And it's not enough to be tough. In today's agriculture, you have to be flexible. That's why the MAGNUM™ tractor and the Case IH 3900 flex-wing disk harrow make such a formidable team. • The 3900 offers incredibly tough gangs and a flex-wing design that works smoothly through uneven terrain. Better yet, the 3900 comes equipped with exclusive Case IH Earth Metal® blades and your choice of gangs — standard or spring-cushion. For hard soil conditions, high-penetration blades are also available. • Of course, the MAGNUM tractor has certainly proven its ability to adapt. With its 18-speed, full-powershift transmission and high-capacity, pressure- and flow-compensated hydraulics, the MAGNUM is the perfect teammate for heavy-duty tillage operations. After eight years and more than 50,000 MAGNUM tractors, it's a fact that's been proven again and again. • Reliable, durable and built to perform, this team is backed by the Total Product Support of Case IH parts, credit and dealer services. Add it up, and you'll see how the MAGNUM tractor and the 3900 disk harrow team are another way we're Systematically Improving The Way America Farms.

OK City Feeder Cattle

OKLAHOMA CITY, OK

SEPTEMBER 20, 1995

Compared to last week: Feeder cattle and calves steady to 1.00 lower. Demand moderate for all classes. Quality of the supply average to mostly plain. Weigh-ups average to many full. Flesh similar to last week with feeders in medium to thin flesh; calves in mostly medium condition but numbers of fleshy soft calves increasing. Brahma cross feeders are receiving their usual seasonal discounts as the first day of fall is near. The cold front that moved toward the cornbelt Monday caused sharp advances in Monday's grain markets. The expectations of higher feed costs offset last week's friendly cattle on feed report. Slaughter cows 2.00 lower. Slaughter bulls 1.00 lower. Demand moderate. Trade fairly active with nearly all packer buyers participating. Total of 394 cows and bulls sold with about 20 percent replacements. Receipts this Week 8,750; last week 11,895; last year 8,499. Supply consisted of 63 percent yearlings and calves over 600 lbs; 33 percent calves under 600 lbs; 4 percent cows and bulls. Prices follow with weighted average weight and price in parenthesis. Feeder Steers: Medium and Large 1 350-400 lbs (366 lbs) 72.00-78.00 (74.38); 400-450 lbs (429 lbs) 72.25-76.50 (74.41); 450-500 lbs (483 lbs) 66.00-71.00 (68.21); 500-550 lbs (526 lbs) 65.50-70.50 (67.94); 550-600 lbs (573 lbs) 63.75-68.25 (66.12); 600-700 lb calves (650 lbs) 64.00-66.75 (65.36); 600-700 lb yearlings (650 lbs) 64.75-68.50 (67.38); 700-800 lbs (750 lbs) 64.00-68.75 (66.26); 800-850 lbs (825 lbs) 63.75-67.00 (65.30); 850-900 lbs (865 lbs) 62.00-64.50 (62.99); 900-1000 lbs (950 lbs) 61.75-63.00 (61.60). When farmers like you have financial needs, you don't have to come to us, we'll come to you. After all, running a successful farm doesn't leave much time for running to the bank. It's this kind of personal attention that farmers in Lancaster County and surrounding areas have been getting from Bank of Lancaster County for over 125 years.

So if you need working capital, a way to finance machinery, land, livestock, buildings, or a loan tailored to specific needs, look to the bank that's committed to your industry and to our area. At Bank of Lancaster County, decisions are made locally. And for you that means fast turnaround and flexible terms.

Why not give Bob Badger or Stan Michonski of our Agricultural Loan Division a call at (717) 397-7941? We're looking forward to talking to you about banking on your terms...on your farm.

PURSUIT®
FOR ALFALFA.

(Is that the gasping of weeds we hear?)

Up until now weeds had it somewhat easy. Decreasing the forage quality of your stand with no real threat of punishment. That's about to change. Luckily, there's a new tool to help you manage your alfalfa — PURSUIT® herbicide. PURSUIT provides you with both contact and residual control of the toughest broadleaf weeds and grasses in alfalfa, leaving you with the highest forage quality possible. So don't let weeds have the upper hand this year. Use PURSUIT on alfalfa. For more information see your local AgriCenter dealer or simply call 1-800-3-PURSUIT.

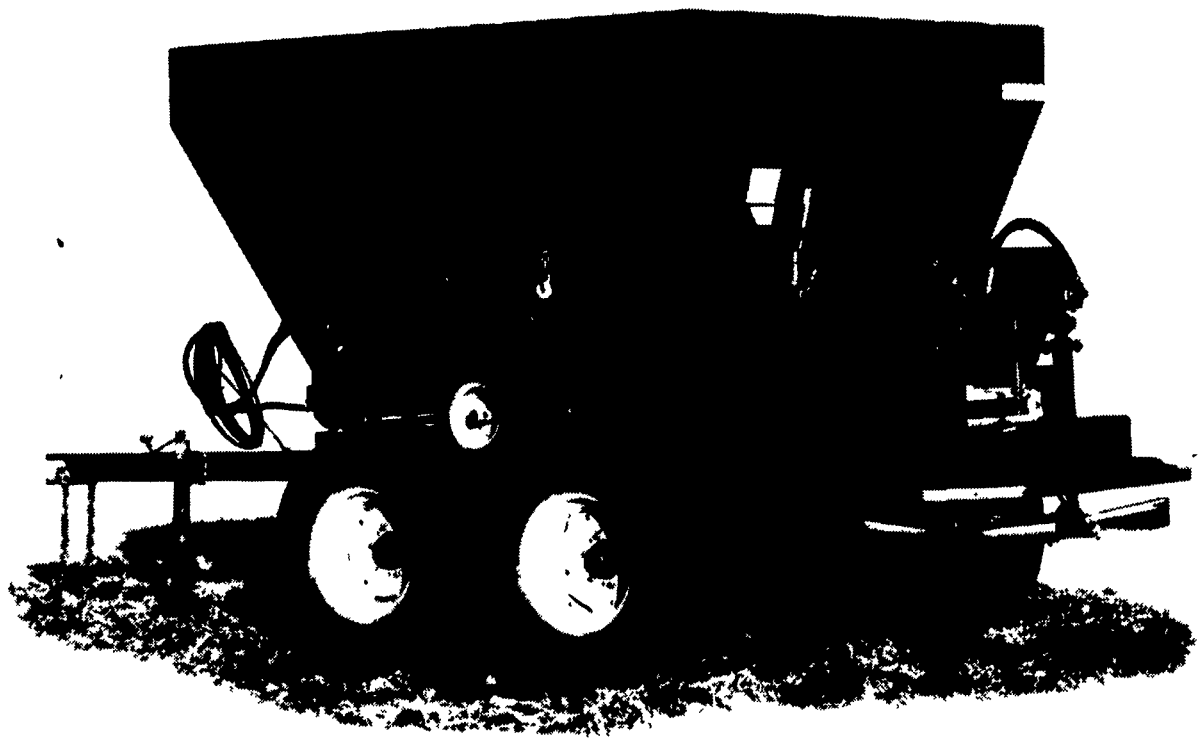
The One Spreader Rugged Enough For Lime, Precise Enough For Fertilizer.



You know how tough it is to spread wet lime. And fertilizer is too expensive to waste. Our new 56i spreader does both jobs with ease. Plus, it has no equal when it comes to spreading "sloppy" material.

Stoltzfus Spreaders have been known as unique, "top-of-the-line" ag spreaders since 1947.

Farmers are still using Stoltzfus Spreaders they've had 20 years or more. That means your investment in a versatile Stoltzfus Spreader will add up to a very smart buy indeed.

Call or write today for a free brochure and the name of the dealer nearest you.

Tiffany Dean Shows Champion Market Lamb At Solanco

The championship showmanship title goes to 13-year-old Jessica Schmidt, left, and the reserve to 11-year-old April Leaman. Although both girls are several years younger then many of their competitors, they excelled in smoothness and adapting to the lambs' stances.

QUARRYVILLE (Lancaster Co.) — When the sawdust settled at the Solanco Fair Sheep Show on Wednesday, K.J. glowed with an aura of the stuff that champions exude. For his stately bearing and firm muscling, the 127-pound sheep claimed the champion market lamb trophy.

Owner Tiffany Dean said she named K.J. after the former champion Penn State football player Ki-Jana Carter because she loves the Penn State team.

The market lamb showed some of the same characteristics as its namesake because it took all the strength the 9-year-old owner possessed to keep the feisty market lamb from bounding away.

Tiffany is the daughter of Joan and Gary Dean of Strasburg. It was the first time Tiffany showed a champion. She had purchased the lamb from Lloyd Reiff of Strasburg.

The reserve market lamb title went to another Reiff lamb, this one shown by Brent Landis. It was the second year in a row that the 10-year-old took the reserve market lamb title at the Solanco Fair. Bam Bam, named for the Flintstones, got plenty of exercise in preparation for the show because Brent likes leading him around his yard. Brent is the son of Jim and Linda Landis of Quarryville.

Chosen from the 58 entries, the champion and reserve titles met with competition from Grant Hossler's champion lightweight, Allison Hughes champion middleweight and reserve champion lightweight, and Brad Leaman's champion and reserve heavyweights.

Lytle said he chose the champion and reserve from the light-heavyweight class for being the most complete.

In showmanship, 13-year-old Jessica Schmidt outmaneuvered 30 other showmen, including those several years her senior.

"She adapts well to her sheep," Lytle said of Jessica's smooth transition between standing and kneeling while showing her Dorset lamb.

"It's just a normal sheep," Jessica said of the Dorset named Waylon.

Jessica is the daughter of Laurie and Pete Schmidt of Drumore.

Reserve championship honors went to 11-year-old April Leaman, daughter of David and Jackie Leaman of Willow Street.

Field Day To Highlight Community Composting

KIMBERTON (Chester Co.) — Seven Stars Dairy, Kimberton CSA vegetable farm, and Kimberton Waldorf School are all located within a few hundred yards of each other in upper Chester County.

Each composts a combination of farm and community wastes products and recycles them into valuable resources for the farm and garden. On Saturday, Sept. 23, from 1 p.m. to 4:30 p.m., they will open their doors to show how they do it. This field day will be of interest to consumers, farmers, students, teachers, and municipal leaders.

"The opportunity to show a variety of ways that farms and communities can work together to recycle their organic wastes was just too good to pass up," said Cary Oshins, composting specialist for the Rodale Institue, who is working with both of the farms.

the Large Arena and the central stall area for the dairy cattle.

A stage is to have been setup and is to provide a forum for the presentations. Also, photographs are to be taken of winners in the youth judging and other contests.

Further, a food court is to be in that building and all the commercial exhibits, and a week-long craft show featuring 11 craft vendors with items such as T-shirts, jewelry, dolls and Christmas items.

The educational series is to start at 1 p.m. Sunday. Dr. Jud Heinrichs, of Penn State University, is to discuss the ramifications of coccidiosis in dairy replacements, followed by some advice from a representative from the Upjohn Co. about avoiding antibiotic residues in milk (a particularly controversial issue).

Educational issues range from using professional photography to capture and present top quality cattle for business and posterity, to planning for waste management, cattle disease control, and planning expansions or updating facilities.

Commercial exhibitors can be expected to offer just about anything needed for a dairy farm — from equipment to services such as those available through the Pennsylvania Dairy Herd Improvement Association.

Monday is the big show for all the state's youth with dairy cattle that have survived local and regional judging contests. According to Lesher, a total of from 900 to 1,000 entries are expected for those youth dairy cattle breed shows.

Also on Monday is the Invitational Youth Dairy Cattle Judging Contest which includes 4-H, FFA and collegiate teams from a wide area.

With the All-American shows, Lesher said she expects a turnout of about 2,000 animals including sale cattle.

Monday night is the time for the Pennsylvania Elite Ayrshire Sale, followed the next morning by the All-American Ayrshire Show.

Tuesday's showing highlights also include the Pennsylvania Fall Holstein Championship Show and the All-American Milking Shorthorn Show.

On Wednesday is the National Guernsey Show, the Eastern National Brown Swiss Show, and two important sales — the Top of the Harvest Jersey Sale, and the Eastern National Holstein Sale.

Thursday morning starts with the Eastern National Holstein Show, the Mid-Atlantic Regional Jersey Show, and then the selection of the supreme champion.

Though the state princess pageant is tonight, expect to see some dairy princesses from other places during the week.

State dairy princesses will certainly be around all week, but this year, expect to see the New York state dairy princess, the Maryland dairy princess and people from 17 states as well as Canada.

"We have been making an attempt to broaden the circle of people in the show to have more people feel they have ownership in the All-American show," Lesher said.

Also, while it may not seem to be a highlight, this year visitors and participants to the All-American are to get the opportunity to be the first, to knowledge, public group to use the newly finished floor in the Main Exhibit Area. New marble logos are to

Have you "herd"? Now there is a teat dip that's satisfying the needs of dairy people and cows alike. ReFresh™ is the revolutionary new product from Diversey that keeps teats smooth as a nursing cow. Unlike conventional teat dips, ReFresh retains cows' natural skin lubricants with a formula so unique, it's been patented.

ReFresh costs no more to use, yet it does so much more. ReFresh also:
- Induces skin exfoliation for soft, supple teats
- Works even in cold temperatures
- Decreases udder prep time
- Helps protect against bacteria between milkings
- Controls organisms that cause mastitis
- Makes teats healthier and easier to clean

Treat your cows' teats to ReFresh, the first in a new line of milk parlor products from Diversey called "Advanced Solutions". You'll be happy you did. And you won't be the only one.

Pennsylvania Dairy Princess Program Going Well

Clarion Co. — The Pennsylvania Dairy Princess Program is alive and well. In fact, on Saturday evening, September 23rd, it will crown its 39th Pennsylvania Dairy Princess and commence its 40th year of dairy promotion at the grassroots level.

Established in 1956 by the Pennsylvania Association of Milk Dealers and initially titled the Miss Milkmaid Contest, it is the oldest continuous dairy promotion program in the state and one of the oldest in the nation.

Although often confused with the much more recent Pennsylvania Dairy Promotion Program, the Princess program is independently operated by Pennsylvania Dairy Princess and Promotion Services, Inc. (PDPPS). It is supported by all Pennsylvania's dairy farmers through all the various dairy promotion programs and by dairy processors, cooperatives, agribusinesses and individuals. It maintains an office in Clarion, and is managed by a program director guided by a board of dairy farm women.

To celebrate the onset of it's 40th year, Pennsylvania Dairy Princess and Promotion Services, Inc. has contracted the Winross Trucks of Rochester, N.Y. to produce 800 40th Anniversary Dairy Princess Milk Truck models. As with all Winross products, these are authentic collectibles made to exact 1/64 scale with hand-screened graphics. Each truck contains more than 100 precision metal parts and has molded rubber tires. The silver, bodied tanker with its red and white 40th Anniversart art work makes an attractive memento for this occasion and valued collectors item. Trucks will be sold for $49 ($40 + $9 tax, shipping, and handling). An order form appears in this issue. Send it to Wanda Yoder, Box 250, Rt. #2, Belleville, Pa. 17004. (717) 935-5317. Profits will be shared by the local county dairy promotion committees and Pennsylvania Dairy Princess and Promotion Services, Inc.

The Pennsylvania Dairy Princess program is made possible by the hundreds of volunteer dairy promoters throughout our state who donate their time and energy in an effort to promote the consumption and sale of milk and its products in their local areas. Since its inception, it has been an opportunity for young women to contribute their abilities to an industry in which they believe. It has also provided tremendous training and experience for those young women in public relations and education.

This year, there are 35 princesses, 26 alternates, and 107 dairymaids, ambassadors, and junior representatives working throughout Pennsylvania to represent the dairy industry and agriculture as a way of life. All readers are urged to contact local representatives to bring the story of our industry to your school, store, or civic organization whenever an occasion arises. For information on appearances of the Pennsylvania Dairy Princess, contact Pa. Dairy Princess and Promotion Services, Inc. (814) 226-7470.

Judges Announced

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Ayrshire enthusiast and accomplished showman, Neil Kittle of Ontario, Canada will officiate at the 1995 Pennsylvania All-American Ayrshire Show Tuesday, September 26, at the Farm Show Complex. Kittle owns and operates West Meadow Ayrshires, a dairy replacement heifer operation and sales company.

Kittle has extensive show ring experience, exhibiting the Junior Champion at the Pennsylvania All-American Dairy Show in 1990. He bred and raised the All-Canadian two-year-old in 1991 and bred the Grand Champion at the 1992 World Dairy Exposition.

Kittle travels extensively through the United States and Canada judging shows. Each year he hosts the West Meadow Autumn Harvest Sale at his farm.

Pennsylvania native, John Burket, Burket Falls Farm, East Freedom, PA will be evaluating the Milking Shorthorn entries Tuesday, September 26. Burket is a well-known Holstein breeder whose family has successfully developed a line of polled Holsteins.

In addition to his work on the family farm, Burket is a classifier for the Red and White Association, traveling all over the United States.

While attending Penn State University, Burket was a member of the Collegiate Dairy Cattle Judging team. In addition to judging numerous county and regional shows, Burket recently served as judge for the Central Maryland Holstein Show.

On Wednesday, September 27, Norman Hill of Woodbine, Maryland will be judging the National Guernsey Show. No stranger to the show ring, this Maryland Ayrshire breeder participated in the 4-H dairy program. In 1952, he was a member of the Maryland 4-H Dairy Judging Team, winning second highest individual honors in the National Contest in Waterloo, Iowa.

Hill and his brother, Allen, farmed and developed a herd of Ayrshire cattle for 23 years. They excelled in the show ring and won Premier Breeder and Premier Exhibitor at the National Ayrshire Show in Columbus, Ohio in 1967. That year, five head received All-American honors. This outstanding herd was dispersed in 1969 with cattle going to 13 states and Canada.

Hill has been involved in merchandising Holstein cattle for 26 years. Currently, he owns and operates his own sales company, known as N H Cattle Co.

The Eastern National Brown Swiss Show will begin promptly at 9 a.m. on Wednesday, September 27. Brian Garrison of Tiffin, Ohio will place the entries. Garrison is currently director of the Sire Programs at Noba, Inc. An avid dairy cattle judge, he has judged shows all over the U.S. In 1994, he served as associate judge for the Holstein show at the World Dairy Exposition.

Garrison and his brother own Garbo Swiss, a herd of registered Brown Swiss, housed at a farm in West Salem, Ohio. The herd consists of 70 head. With approximately 50 milking animals.

Eastern National Holstein Show classes will enter the Large Arena of the Farm Show Complex on Thursday, September 28, at 8 a.m. Officiating for the show will be Curtis Day. Day and his family operate Tri-Day Holstein Farm in Shippensburg, PA. Currently, the RHA exceeds 23,000 m, 880f, and 730p.

Day has been an active judge on the East Coast officiating shows in Maryland, Virginia, West Virginia, Minnesota and South Carolina. He has served on the All-American Panel for the Holstein and Brown Swiss breeds. Day is listed on the National Approved Judges list.

Also parading on the tanbark of the Large Arena Thursday morning will be the entries for the Mid-Atlantic Regional Jersey Show. Officiating the Jersey show will be James Burdette of Mercersburg, PA. Burdette is a longtime resident of Pennsylvania. With the assistance of his wife, Nina, and sons, Justin and Kyle, they own and operate Windy Knoll View Farm.

This family Holstein operation has a tradition of excellence in the show ring. Their cattle have received 25 Junior or All-American nominations. Eighteen of those nominations were for animals from their great Pala cow family. Burdette has traveled extensively judging shows in 11 different states, and as far west as California.

have been installed and the floor has a grey and red color theme.

"We're really excited. The new floor, the changes with the educational program ... what were realy gearing toward is reminding the dairy farmer that it's his event, and in addition to the shows and sales, to take the day and visit with some of the feed dealers, equipment reps, and educational programs," Lesher said.

"The show is providing the commerical dairymen with information he can take home, whether is coccidiosis, mastistis ... We just have a lot to offer that I think people have neglected.

"Hopefully, over time, it will become the show that dairy people figure they have to attend."

In its 32nd year, the PAADS is overseen by the Pennsylvania Allied Dairy Industry Board, which consists of representatives from each of the breed organizations, two industry representatives and one from Penn State University Currently Obie Snyder is president.

There is no parking fee, and no admission fee. Visitors can park in the large Northwest Lot and come through the main doors, the same as going to the state Farm Show.

"A strong, prudent board of directors challenges management and staff to seek the greatest return on our investment in ADC, creating the highest net return to its members back on the farm."
—Richard & Janet Kriebel
Benton, PA

ADC Is the Place To Be

A high net return and a strong board of directors – the outstanding benefits that Richard and Janet Kriebel refer to – are among the strengths of the premier dairy cooperative in the region.

Atlantic Dairy Cooperative has a 78-year history of excellent service to its members. Financially strong, ADC guarantees a market for all member milk and excels in maximizing returns. ADC is a leader in providing equity payments, quality bonuses and over-order premiums to members.

Nearly 4,000 dairy farmers agree that "ADC is the Place to Be."

seminars and educational programs open to all interested dairymen at the 1995 All-American Dairy Show, September 24 through September 28 at the Farm Show Complex in Harrisburg.

Part of the new Dairy Activity Center housed in the Northeast Barn of the Farm Show Complex, these seminars offer information from design and management to photography.

One of the key attractions, according to Lolly Lesher, promotion coordinator, is Five G Consulting of Mollallo, Oregon, a leading dairy design and planning management firm. A full service design team, Five G Consulting is adept at utilizing current resources while looking at future recycling and conservation measures, Lesher said. With over 15 years in the design business, Five G has a solid reputation for working with farmers.

Another presenter will be Apro, Inc., a Texas firm specializing in waste management and manure handling. Representatives will offer advice about reclaiming water,

Morris Is Image Award Winner

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — A stalwart supporter of the dairy industry, John L. Morris, Frederick, Maryland, has been selected to receive the 1995 Pennsylvania All-American Dairy Show Image award. Presented at the All-American Buffet on September 27, the aware will recognize Morris' 27 years of professional service, and 18 years of volunteerism since his retirement.

The specially crafted stained glass hanging mirror which Morris will receive is inscribed "Awarded to an individual who has enhanced the image of the Pennsylvania All-American Dairy Show by significant contributions toward its reputation, prestige and welfare." Patty McMurray, chairman of the Award Committee stated, "Johnny is a diligent worker and has been an advocate of this dairy show for years! He is most deserving of this recognition."

Morris is the third recipient of the Pennsylvania All-American Dairy Show Image Award. Past recipients include John Walker, Pittsburgh, PA; Lee Yost, deceased; and Stephen Spencer, State College, PA.

Morris is an active member of the Pennsylvania Dairy and Allied Industry Association. He has chaired the nomination committee and has served on the Show Improvement Committee since its inception in 1988.

Morris has a strong desire to enhance the Pennsylvania All-American Dairy Show, to draw more attention to these national shows, to increase participation in the youth contests and activities and share the importance of the purebred dairy cattle industry. He has been an active solicitor of class sponsorships and agri-business support.

A real host at heart, Morris often lends a hand at the morning hospitality station, serving milk and donuts to exhibitors at 6 a.m.

His participation at the All-American has not always been from behind the scenes. Morris served as the official judge for the first All-American Ayrshire Show in 1963. Since then, he has officiated numerous times.

Morris is well-known and loved by 4-H families and purebred cattle breeders throughout the Mid-Atlantic region. This legendary leader has a remarkable record as the Maryland 4-H Dairy Cattle Judging Coach. Half of the 26 teams he coached won the national contest and six won in international competition at the Royal Agricultural Show in Great Britain.

During his career, Morris has received many honors, including the first Maryland 4-H Distinguished Service award, the National 4-H Service Award, the National FFA Honorary American Farmer Degree and the State 4-H Alumni Award. He received the highest honor from the Dairy Shrine in 1988. Additionally, he has been named to the Maryland 4-H Hall of Fame.

A man of great talent and even greater willingness to share and lead by example. John Loud Morris is truly deserving of this recognition. Morris and his wife, Martha, reside in Frederick, Maryland. They have four sons.

Dairy Knowledge Pays Big

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Young people with dairy management skills and knowledge can win big rewards in the Pennsylvania All-American Dairy Show's (PAADS) Junior Management Contest. Conducted as part of the PAADS, held September 25-28, 1995, the contest is a test of overall dairy knowledge. The top winner can take home a $500 post high school scholarship.

Dr. Carl Brown, chairman of the Junior Dairy Management Contest since its inception, sees it as a bridge between events like cattle showing and the dairy bowl competition. "It was developed to help keep youth interested and involved at the All-American show, and as an alternative to dairy judging," Brown said. "In addition to the top scholarship, there are numerous cash premiums as well as trophies and plaques provided by our sponsors."

Winners from the past four years are: 1994 - Jennifer Neiman, Fleetwood, PA; 1993 - Shannon Lacy, Allegheny County, New York; 1992 - Colleen Kretzing, Loysville, PA; and 1991 - Robert Wilson, Dansville, New York.

Eighteen-year-old Lacy said, "Because it is held in conjunction with the All-American Show, it gives us an opportunity to see the shows, and some of the best cattle in the country." She plans to use her scholarship award for tuition and/or books as she pursues her dream of studying veterinary medicine.

The contest classes include heifer judging, linear trait evaluation, meats and forage/grain identifications, milk marketing, Dairy Agronomic Practices, and knowledge of current issues in the dairy industry.

Premiums and ribbons will be awarded to the top 10 4-H and FFA teams and the top 10 individuals. A plaque will be awarded to the top team and individual finishers.

Church and Dwight, Arm and Hammer Division, Princeton, NJ, has been a sponsor of prizes and premiums for four years. Milk Specialities, Dundee, IL sponsors the contestant luncheon and Mark C. Hershey Farms, Lebanon, PA contributes to the event.

The 1995 Junior Dairy Management Contest will be held September 26, 1995, beginning at 10 a.m. at the Pennsylvania Farm Show Complex, Harrisburg, Pennsylvania. This is one of the youth activities association with the PAADS, from September 25-28.

utilizing wash water and keeping the neighborhood as free from odor as possible.

The Dairy Map program will be explained by Penn State University personnel, to give dairymen insight into this new management tool.

Several animal health topics will be covered, including coccidiosis in dairy replacements by Dr. Jud Heinrichs, Penn State University; coliform mastitis by Bruce Wren, DVM by Rhone Merieus, Inc. Programs presented by the Upjohn Company include mastitis control, reproduction elements of a successful breeding program and avoiding antibiotic residues.

Mrs. Judy Black of Agri-Graphics, will give tips on picturing a dairy animal and discuss how to best utilize the process for marketing and promoting cattle.

All the seminars are free and open to any interested visitor to the All-American Dairy Show. The Dairy Activity Center will also house a growing trade show and a food court which is open during the show. Show hours are 8 a.m. to 8 p.m.

Finally, a practical way to apply organic mulch to row crops

Organic mulch is the natural way to suppress weeds, help retain soil moisture, and improve soil conditions. Trouble is, hand mulching takes too much time and effort. Now the Millcreek Row Mulcher makes it easy and affordable to mulch berries, grapes, fruit trees, and other row crops. One operator can mulch an acre in just a couple hours depending on conditions.

Spread A Variety of Materials, Including Lime

You can spread all types of stemless flowable mulches, such as wood chips, sawdust, chopped bark, even compost, with plenty of clearance to avoid plant damage. Plus, the Millcreek Row Mulcher is ideal for banding lime and other materials requiring lighter applications. The optional metering gate gives you complete control of the coverage so you can tailor applications to best suit your cultivation practices. With the labor-saving versatility you get with the Millcreek Row Mulcher, you may even find new techniques to grow better crops.

For Small Growers
This may be the affordable machine you've been looking for to mulch berries, grapes, and other row crops. Think of the labor you'll save.

For Commercial Growers
Choose from 3.1, 4.5, and 6.8 cubic yard capacities. Or call to discuss your special requirements.

One "Farm-Tough" Machine
With our own farming background, we take great satisfaction in building affordable machines for growers like you who need reliable, trouble-free equipment to help increase production and keep costs down. That's just what the Millcreek Row Mulcher will do for you. Call today.

Walker Wins Again At York Fair Junior Dairy Show

JOYCE BUPP
York Co. Correspondent

YORK (York Co.) — Brad Walker wrapped up his final year as a 4-H exhibitor at the York Fair in winning style, making his third consecutive sweep of the junior dairy show's Supreme Champion title.

"Warns Sexy Lady," Walker's six-year-old Holstein show champion, was showing recently-fresh on the September 14 show, having calved just two weeks earlier. She is EX-90 and wrapped up her four-year lactation with 28,000 pounds milk. She is sired by Ocean-View Sexation and her dam is Warns Distinction Lady.

Walker, a June graduate of Susquehanna High School, is employed full time with the Leroy Walker family's Walk-Le Holstein herd, Thomasville. He plans a career as a dairyman, with one of his goals being able to show his own, homebred, Excellent animal. Lady will continue her showstring trek with competition at the state Junior Dairy Show and the All-American.

Reserve champion in the Holstein Junior show was "Dar-Dale Fancy Paul Sophia," the senior two-year-old exhibited by Dixie Doll, Glen Rock.

In the Ayrshire junior competition, champion title went to the senior two-year-old, "Plainview Amos Kapu," exhibited by Katie Shoemaker, Thomasville. Reserve champion was "Ray Knoll Liberator's Angie," the aged cow shown by Jesse Stambaugh, Spring Grove.

A winter calf got the nod as Brown Swiss champion. "Muddy Run Aytola Sidney" was exhibited by Kelly Jo Myers, Thomasville. Reserve champion was a fall yearling exhibited by Nathan Hostetter, "Wind Mill Hammer Colleen."

"Top-O-Hill Merit Thelma," a spring calf, topped the Jersey competition for owner Barbara Richardson, Fawn Grove. Capturing the reserve placing was Jessica Hostetter, Dover, with her summer yearling "JH Be Magic Lilya."

Heather Crowl, Airville, snagged both top titles in the Milking Shorthorn breed. Champion was her senior two-year-old, "Spruce Hill RC Bubbles," over the reserve placing spring yearling, "Joy-El Lulu."

In the exhibitor competition, Dixie Doll, Glen Rock, was named champion showman and Angie Beshore, New Cumberland, was named champion fitter.

Farm Safety Program Receives Award

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — Lancaster's Farm Safety 4 Just Kids Program was recently honored with the 1995 Cargill Cares For Farm Families Award.

The award, totalling $1,700, was presented to honor the many activities and instructional workshops provided recently for farm safety. In June, the program promoted a child farm safety demonstration day at the Oregon Dairy Farm in which 174 youth participated.

Also, the award honored the work provided by the program to Dr. Holmes Morton of the Strasburg Special Clinic for Children, eggs by studying the stacks of information handed to her.

Deb Landis Is New Poultry Ambassador

Her first official appearance for the industry was at the Solanco Fair on Wednesday.

The 17-year-old daughter of Dick and Jean Landis lives in Neffsville. She was born in Michigan, lived in Australia for a year, and has been abroad numerous times.

A senior at Lancaster Mennonite High, Deb plans to spend her summer on a mission outreach to Africa or Haiti. In the fall, she will study sociology and communications at college. Although the specific school at this point is not definite, she leans toward Eastern College in St. Davids. Her career goal is to work overseas in mission work and possibly write.

"My parents have been a big influence on me," Deb said of her interest in missions and her number one priority of developing a relationship with God.

Deb's father is a professor for the Penn State Hershey Medical Center. It was his job that brought the family to Lancaster County when Deb was in fourth grade.

After finishing the eighth grade, Deb and her family, which includes a brother Nathan, now 19, spent six weeks in Europe.

"It was one of the best summers of my life," Deb said.

It piqued her interest in the French language. Since then, Deb studied high school French for three years and continues to take private lessons from a native-French-speaking woman.

One summer, Deb spent two weeks in the home of a Paris pen-pal.

"The biggest shock was that we couldn't communicate at all in the beginning," she said.

Another shock was to have strangers greet her by kissing her on both cheeks.

As the poultry ambassador, Deb Landis will be a spokesperson for the poultry industry to the non-farming community.

After the initial cultural shock, Deb was intriqued by the artists, painters, and street acts that fill the Paris streets.

Her pen pal reciprocated the visit by spending a few weeks in Deb's home.

"She was shocked by the Amish lifestye and surprised at how inexpensive T-shirts and brand-name sneakers cost here compared to her country," Deb said.

This past summer, Deb attended the National Young Leaders Conference held at the American University for 11 days in Washington D.C.

The conference was attended by people from all over the U.S. and from other countries.

Deb was surprised to learn how much the students from foreign countries knew about the workings of the U.S. government.

This summer Deb also attended a youth convention in Kansas and spent a few days in Boston checking out colleges with a friend.

"We also tried escargo and squid. It wasn't too bad tasting if you got past the idea of eating snails," Deb said.

Deb enjoys cooking and baking — "gourmet things," she said. She also likes to add a special flair to dinner entertaining. Recently, she and a few friends held a small dinner theater in which they spoke French and dressed in full garb by enacting a play by Shakespeare.

She believes that meeting people from so many diverse places was good practice for her new role as the poultry ambassador.

"I'm not quite sure what to expect as the poultry ambassador, but I'm looking forward to the ag in the classroom sessions," she said. These sessions will require Deb to visit schools around the county and acquaint the students with the poultry industry.

At school, Deb is the student life and faculty editor for the yearbook, a member of the National Honor Society, and a member of a Student Bible Study. She participants in school plays and hopes for a role this year.

She volunteers at the Water Street Rescue Misson where she works with the kids program. She is also a student leader and plays the piano for the praise band at the Neffsville Mennonite Church.

Holstein Named York Fair Supreme

JOYCE BUPP
York Co. Correspondent

YORK (York Co.) — A homebred, four-year-old Holstein was named Supreme Dairy Champion as the highlight of two days of open class dairy competition at the York Fair.

"Coredale Calypso Janis" was bred by the Rodman Thompson family's Coredale Holsteins of East Berliln, and is owned and exhibited by sister and brother Shirley Trimmer and Roy Thompson.

Judges John Burket, East Freedom, and Steve Shaw, Williamsburg, praised her extreme tallness, tremendous width in the heart and overall conformation and called her a "nine-plus on a scale of one to 10."

Janis is scored VG-87 and projected to a lactation total of over 24,000 milk. She is sired by Applenotch Valiant Calypso and from an EX-scored Chairman dam. The Thompson family began exhibiting Janis as a heifer and both her dam and granddam were members during past years of the Coredale Holsteins' showstring.

As the York Fair's Supreme Champion, Janis was awarded the revolving M. Ebert Rutter plaque, presented annually to the top dairy individual. The award is sponsored by Rutter Bros. Dairy in memory of M. Ebert Rutter, one of the firm's founders and a longtime director and supporter of the York Fair.

Rutter's own homebred senior-two-year-old, "Rutter Bros Pro Kings Leamay" earned the Reserve Supreme Champion title.

Judges Shaw and Burket were highly complimentary of the young cow's "strong front end, tremendouse feet and legs and open rib," and noted they would not change her in any way. She is sired by Jensgolden V Protein King and her dam is Rutter Bros. Victorys Lauren. Leamay is also a veteran of the tanbark, having been shown as a heifer by the Rutter family of York.

Unclassified, Leamay was still milking 62 pounds on her last DHIA test, after 241 days into lactation, and is projected to finish with 19,988 milk, 936 fat and 669 protein. She is due to calve back in November.

As Reserve Supreme Champion winners, the Rutter family was presented the Beatrice May Ball-Catherine May Kurtz memorial award. It is given annually by the William Everhart family of York in memory of the May sisters who were long-time exhibitors at the York Fair.

Judges Shaw and Burket offered high praise for all the champions standing tail-to-tail in the show arena for the Supreme selection, noting them to be exemplary representatives of their respective breeds.

Champion Ayrshire was "Goodies Ann Corben Alice," a three-year-old exhibited by the Jeff Stambaugh family of Spring Grove. She is sired by Conebella Corben and her dam is Masonic-H Mae Goodies Ann.

"One of the most angular cows in the ring," the judges described her, adding praise for her length and levelness over her hooks and pins.

Though officially shown as a dry three-year-old, the Brown Swiss champion was close to freshening and showed so much milkiness that she earned the top spot over other milking entries.

"You have to love the power she shows and the way she handles herself so gracefully," were among the judges' comments about "Meadowhill Barkley Jolley." The powerful three-year-old was exhibited by the Hostetter family of Dover. Her sire is Meadow Hill Convin Barkley-ET, and her dam is Meadow Hill King Jillian-ET.

"A real fancy three-year-old, stylish and well-grown, with a tremendous foreudder," the judges observed in their comments.

A junior-two-year-old exhibited by Joy-El Dairy Farm, the Ellis Crowl family, Airville, took champion honors in the Milking Shorthorn competition. "Joy-El Red Mabel," is sired by Big Red and from the dam Glenrich V Mary.

"Upstanding, with a good topline, and she looks like she's working hard," noted the judges in their Supreme Champion line-up comments about each champion.

Kara Tussey of Huntingdon consigned the third highest selling cow. It was bought by Scott and Julieann Longenbach of North Hampton for $2,475.

Steven and Barbara Wilson of Port Royal sold Rose-Edge F P Marisa for $2,000 to Theodore and Patricia Miller of Pilesgrove, N.J.

Ken Raney, director of member service for the Pennsylvania Holstein Association, said that Paul Neer, of the Mifflin County Holstein Club, should be complimented on his efforts in selecting animals for the sale.

Raney said he was pleased with the local support of the sale in providing consigments and purchasing animals.

In addition to the sale of animals, a pre-sale chicken barbeque and an acution of donated items was held to support the county club, the county Dairy Princess Committee, and the county 4-H dairy judging team. Included in the items sold was a Bonnie Mohr print purchased by Danny Albright for $180.

$12.37 For August Milk

ALBANY, N.Y. — Dairy farmers who supplied regulated milk dealers (handlers) under the New York-New Jersey marketing orders during August 1995 will be paid by handlers on the basis of a uniform price of $12.37 per hundredweight (26.6 cents per quart).

The price for the corresponding month last year was $12.44 per hundredweight, according to Market Administrator Ronald C. Pearce. He also stated that the price was $11.99 in July 1995.

The uniform price is a market-wide weighted average of the value of farm milk used for fluid and manufactured dairy products.

A total of 11,347 dairy farmers supplied handlers regulated under the New York-New Jersey marketing orders with 1,002,799,267 pounds of milk during August 1995. This was an increase of 3.2 percent (about 31 million pounds) from last year.

The gross value to dairy farmers for milk deliveries was $123,687,606.91. This included differentials required to be paid to dairy farmers but not premiums, deductions authorized by the farmer, or assessments.

Grange Provides Look At Constructed Wetlands

LEWISBERRY (York Co.) — For several years the Valley Grange wanted to build a meeting hall on its property in Warrington Township.

However, soils on the site were not suitable for conventional septic tanks, and public sewers weren't available.

So the Grange decided to build a "constructed wetland" engineered to treat effluent from septic tanks. The wetland would be environmentally safe, provide long service life, and provide wildlife habitat and other aesthetic considerations.

Last week, Valley Grange provided a tour of the constructed wetlands. The Grange was able to demonstrate the benefits of the site.

At the location, wastewater is first collected and treated by a series of two septic tanks. The effluent from the septic tanks is pumped to a subsurface-flow, lined wetland cell containing cattails and bulrushes. The roots of the aquatic plants provide oxygen to bacteria for treatment of the wastewater below the surface of the treatment cell.

Effluent from the treatment cell is discharged to a bermed, unlined area planted with water-tolerant grasses for groundwater recharge. Evapotranspiration, occurring in both the treatment and disposal cells, also serves to reduce discharge from the treatment process.

After receiving planning approval from the township, the Grange received the proper permits and construction was completed earlier this year. A groundbreaking ceremony to celebrate the construction was held late in July.

The wetland system consists of cattails and bulrushes whose roots provide oxygen to bacteria for treatment of the wastewater below the surface. The system was designed by CET Engineering Services, Harrisburg.

William Traver, Valley Grange president, believes the system meets many needs.

Traver said, "Constructed wetlands provide simple, low cost and flexible treatment, independence from site soil characteristics, long service life, and indirect benefits such as wildlife habitat and aesthetic considerations, in addition to upholding values that are precious to Grange members."

The new 60 by 100 foot Grange hall will be multipurpose facility with a kitchen and meeting rooms.

Last week, Valley Grange provided a tour of the constructed wetlands. Engineers and Grange members inspect bulrushes and cattails at the wetland site. Solanco Holstein Champions Come From Three Year-Old Class

EVERETT NEWSWANGER
Managing Editor

QUARRYVILLE (Lancaster Co.) — A pair of three-year-old entries in the Solanco Fair Holstein dairy show walked off with the top honors Thursday afternoon. The first place stylish, Hannoverhill Logic daughter captured the grand champion trophy for Mark and Kristina Welk, Quarryville. The home-bred Welk-Shade Logic Donna was also named best udder and along with a number of other top class placing entries led the Welks to both the premier exhibitor and breeder awards.

The second place three-year-old became the reserve grand champion for Joseph Best, Kirkwood. Also bred by the owner, Bestdale Southwind Candy was then named grand champion of the youth division.

Caleb Crothers, Rising Sun, Maryland, showed his junior two-year-old Long Green Counselor Marina to the reserve grand champion in the junior division. In addition, Crothers had the reserve junior champion in the open show with Long Green Raider Jupiter, a senior calf.

The junior champion in the open show was shown by Jill Harnish, Christiana. Spruce-Edge Blkstr Thursday was the first place intermediate calf.

Judge Ronald Daubert, a dairy farmer from Pine Grove said the quality ran deep into the classes and the champions were called great examples of dairy cows. About 80 head were shown and the strong show drew entries from York County, and Maryland, as well as the local district.

Top class placings include:

Junior Calf 1 Joseph Hushon, 2 Tanva Amunet, 3 Aaron Trimble
Intermediate Calf 1 Jill Harnish, 2 Laurie Kreider, 3 Joshua Akers
Senior Calf 1 Caleb Crothers, 2 Amy Kreider, 3 Randy Wenger
Summer Yearling 1 Jacob Hushon, 2 S & A Kreider & Sons, 3 Ellis Kreider
Junior Yearling 1 Andrew Welk, 2 Robert Kreider, 3 Denise Best
Intermediate Yearling 1 Jacob Hushon, 2 Matthew Welk 3 Susan Richardson
Senior Yearling 1 Joseph Best, 2 Robert Wenger, 3 Jill Harnish
Dry Cow 1 Gregory Wenger
Jr Two 1 Caleb Crothers, 2-3 Mark & Kristina Welk
Sr Two 1 Gregory Wenger, 2 Mark & Kristina Welk, 3 Sheri Bollinger
Three-Year-Old 1 Mark & Kristina Welk, 2 Jospeh Best, 3 Sheri Bollinger
Four-Year-Old 1 Joshua Hushon, 2 Mark & Kristina Welk, 3. Sheri Bollinger
Aged Cow 1 Mark & Kristina Welk 2 Thomas Herr 3 Robert Wenger

Caleb Crothers showed the reserve junior champion with Long Green Raider Jupiter and the reserve grand champion in the youth division with Long Green Counselor Marina.

Jill Harnish showed the junior champion of the open show with Spruce-Edge Blkstr Thursday.

Kristina and Mark Welk show Welk-Shade Logic Donna, grand champion of the Solanco Fair Holstein show. The Welks were also named premier breeder and premier exhibitor.

Solanco Fair Selects Colored Breed Champions

VERNON ACHENBACH JR.
Lancaster Farming Staff

QUARRYVILLE (Lancaster Co.) — Solanco Fair held its colored breeds dairy shows Tuesday at the fairgrounds in Quarryville, featuring Jersey, Brown Swiss and a relatively strong Ayrshire competition.

Judge for type and showmanship was Donald Gable, of Conebella Farm, in Elverson, a 200-acre family operation with 160 milking Ayrshires.

In the six-animal Brown Swiss show, Jacob Hushon and Joshua

The champions of the Solanco Brown Swiss show, all bred and owned, belong to brothers Joshua and Jacob Hushon. From the left, with the reserve junior champion is Brad Waltimyer helping out as leadsman, the brother's mother Pattie Hushon with the junior and reserve grand champion, and Jacob Hushon with his grand champion. Also shown is judge Donald Gable and Lancaster County Alternate Dairy Princess Andrea Kreider.

Hushon, of Delta, showed the grand and reserve grand champion animals. Both animals were bred and owned.

Jacob's 2-year-old Brothers Three Perky, a daughter of Victory Acres Jubiliation Emory, was the lone cow entry in the show, but still showed strong quality and ability to compete, according to the judge.

Joshua's intermediate yearling, Brothers Three Nutty Buddy, a paternal sister to Perky, was junior champion and reserve grand. Joshua also showed the reserve junior champion, again an Emory daughter, Brothers Three Snowflake, again bred and owned.

In the nine-animal Jersey show, Erica Lloyd showed the grand and reserve grand champion animals, with the reserve grand champion being bred and owned champion.

Her grand champion was a 5-year-old, Patrict Joyce, out of sire Nabdon Master Patrick. Her reserve grand was 3-year-old ELS Brook Miss Tiffany, out of sire Molly Brook Brass Major.

She also showed her bred-and-owned junior yearling ELS Brook Imperial Misty, out of sire Meadowlawn J Imperial Sor-ET, to win the junior champion title.

Showing the reserve junior champion animal was Marc Waltimyer, of Quarryville. His summer yearling, Hackline Clitt Dandryla, is out of Briarcliffs Peg Commander.

In the 39-animal Ayrshire show, Robert and Bonnie Wentworth of the Quarryville area showed the grand and reserve grand champions. They were also named premier breeder of the show.

The grand champion was 6-year-old Wentworth Farm Homer's Viola, an animal sired by Caverly Farms V's Homer-ET, that freshened in July and has been producing 70 pounds per day. Viola was also the best bred and owned.

Their reserve grand champion was 4-year-old Wnterworth Farm Milking Jean, out of Blackadder Milk Machine, owned and bred by Robert Wentworth.

The Wentworths also placed first in the group classes they entered — best three females, dairy herd, and dam and daughter.

The junior-aged division champions were both won by Brad Waltimyer. His champion was 5-year-old Androssan Hiram Eyeing that placed second in its age class to the reserve grand champion.

Waltimyer's reserve champion was his 2-year-old, Wentworth Farm Joe's Joy, a Miller's Royal Joe daughter bred by Robert and Bonnie.

The junior champion was a junior yearling, S&M Ayr Irs Opal, shown by Rebecca Nolan. The reserve junior champion was a summer yearling, Wentworth Farm Trident Vanilla, shown by Bonnie Wentworth.

The Kenneth Findley family was named premier exhibitor of the show.

In showmanship competitions for the youth, Craig Nolan was the champion of the 13 and older group, while Brad Waltimyer was champion of the 12 and younger age class.

Farm Bill Development

Last week the Gunderson (Sen. Steve Gunderson (R-WI) dairy proposal "fell through." This program would have ended price supports in five years with milk powder and butter supports gone immediately and cheese in five years. Now Gunderson is proposing to completely deregulate the dairy industry.

"The Senate is not thinking along these (complete deregulation) lines," Dunn said. "But if the new Gunderson proposal is successful, it would change the way dairy farmers do business. Dairy farmers would need to pay much closer attention to their price because it would become a lot more uncertain. The end of marketing orders would introduce a new type of uncertainty. Now the price reflects the whole market pool price. But under complete deregulation, each farmer would be responsible to arrange for the sale of milk to the dealer where he would get the negotiated price."

Dunn said the complete end of government in the market would end support prices and put milk in the same playing field as the other commodities have been facing for a long time. In order to reach a $5 billion reduction in farm programs over five years, it must be done on the support side. And he said that is the only place you can save that kind of money.

In addition, Dunn said the Environmental Quality Incentive Program (EQIP) is certain to be included. This program is a conservation incentive cost/sharing ag program that would be mandatory. Farmers would bid for a cost share on some type of conservation program or facility on their farm. Their proposal would be judged by an evaluative benefit index with priority given to the impact for conservation and the availability of matching funds.

In the past, most of the conservation programs have been tied to wind erosion, especially in the wheat crop. But EQIP is designed to address livestock and water quality problems.

While progress on the farm bill is now waiting for the political process to make its rounds, the final bill is uncertain. But Dunn said he is sure dairy farmers will need to manage their marketing decisions more than in the past, and the environment agenda will see more cooperation between the government and the farmers.

"There really does seem to be a difference in the process of developing a farm bill this time," Dunn said. "This is partly true because members of Congress seem to be willing to tell their constituents that some of their sweetheart programs are not going to be as attractive as in he past. This is something that has not happened before."

Farringtons' Gift Beefs Lancaster 4-H Livestock Program

VERNON ACHENBACH JR.
Lancaster Farming Staff

ELM (Lancaster Co.) — There is a new program for members of the Red Rose 4-H Beef Club. It's called the Polled Hereford Great Opportunity program.

In it's essence, the program is a chain letter in reverse — Polled Hereford female animals have been given to club members with the promise from the recipient to give one of the offspring to a new member of the club, or contribute the money from the sale of one of the offspring into a club fund.

It's a program with the real potential to continue for generations the teaching of lessons in values.

It's not a written word, recitation contest, or admonition about what is better to do. Instead, the program has at its heart the only thing that truly teaches values — a demonstration of those values.

Some background is needed.

John and Helen Farrington moved to Lancaster County 27 years ago, having been forced to sell their mountain-top, Poconos-area farm to the government.

The Farringtons took the mandate and found and moved to their current 250-acre Lower Hopewell Farm.

Six female Polled Herefords, six 4-H beef club members and two generous adults form the core of Red Rose 4-H Beef Club Polled Hereford Great Opportunity Program. John and Helen Farrington, owners of Lower Hopewell Farm, stand with six members of the club, recipients of Polled Herefords to be used as project animals. In the front, from the left are Hope Long, John Schmidt and Jessica Schmidt. In the back row, from the left, are Jill Hoffines, John Hess and John Boyer.

It is located near the northern border of Lancaster County, along the lower reaches of Hammer Creek before it swells into Speedwell Lake, a small Pa. Fish Commission impoundment at the agency's regional office in Elm.

The farm property is rolling and wooded and for years a fishing club has leased private rights to the Hammer Creek from the Farringtons.

Between the lake and the farm, Lancaster County in recent years purchased floodplain to incorporate into its park system.

The soils are heavy with red sandstone and the area is a pocket of historic rurality — though assaulted by some strip development (roadfront farmland subdivided and sold as building lots), some of the old stone homes and tall, thick-trunked trees continue to characterize the iron mining and smelting and forging that built the local economy.

The Farringtons started dairy farming, but due to illness, John said he sold off the herd and replaced them with black cattle. The cow-calf operation grew to about 30 cows. After another health-related incident, the black cattle were sold.

But the couple's two daughters, both involved in FFA and one a former member of the beef club, had seen Polled Herefords at the state Farm Show and wanted those. So the Farringtons bought Polled Herefords.

The Farringtons are also horse enthusiasts and have had horses. Helen has been a 4-H leader in the horse club for years. The farm now focuses on boarding them. The have 25 boarders currently and 41 stalls.

The farm has pastures and excercise areas, and for those desiring to trail ride their boarded horse, there is Pa. Game Commission land nearby.

(Actual wild game on the lands is scarce for many reasons, especially from constant pressure from nonhunting recreationists and highway mortality, but those with horses should avoid riding during deer season.)

There are many trails on the state game land tract — old logging roads and others created through use — that are used by mountain bike riders almost year-round, and horse riders seasonally.

According to John, there really isn't room on the farm for their Polled Hereford cattle, which includes an unusually gentle bull that has been running with the cows and heifers. (A purebred bull they bought from Rep. Shelia Miller, R-Berks County, he's for sale.)

The cattle are also extra work, and John and Helen don't have the extra time.

So, instead of selling the cattle outright and pocketing the money, the Farringtons decided to offer six of the cows and their calves to members of the Red Rose 4-H Beef Club.

On Monday evening, Chester Hughes, Lancaster County extension livestock agent, and six members of the Red Rose 4-H Beef Club and their parents met at the farm.

The Farringtons had contacted Hughes earlier and Hughes had contacted members of the beef club to see which members would be interested in accepting the responsibility of raising and caring for the animals for a least a year.

The members who accepted the invitation included Hope Long, daughter of Sam and Vicky Long, New Providence; Jill Hoffines, daughter of Robert and Linda Hoffines, Marietta; John and Jessica Schmidt, son and daughter of Peter and Laurie Schmidt, Drumore; John Hess, son of Robert and Deb Hess, Mt. Joy; and John Boyer, son of Donnie and Karen Boyer, of Elizabethtown.

The generosity of the Farringtons speaks to their values — they'd rather help start a program that could continue to give, than pocket cash from the animals.

Hughes said that the six members had to understand that they were agreeing to keep the animal at least one year and give an animal, preferably the first calf bred, to the 4-H club.

The decision to give that first animal to a new club member, or sell the animal and donate the proceeds from the sale into the 4-H program so all members would benefit, would be up to the member who received the gift.

For the initial giving, the members each drew a number out of a hat to determine their order for selection. They were given pedigrees, as was available, and time to look over the animals.

One heifer had yet to calve, the others calved. Two of those calves were male, and the Farringtons' daughters wanted to keep the bull calves. It was decided that those who selected a cow with a bull calf would keep the calf with the cow until the calf was weaned, and then return the calf to the farm.

As far as paying for the health testing of the animals, the club has offered to pay for that. In fact, Hughes offered that any additional costs, such as getting official registration papers, would be borne by the club or individual receiving the animal.

Hughes said he was excited about program and praised the Farringtons, adding that what they did was exceptional and very worthwhile.

John and Helen Farrington meanwhile just smiled at watching the youth select the animals.

one thing to correct the stray voltage problem, because their ground wires to their line poles still have from four to seven volts in them!!

For anyone not acquainted with the results of a cow zapped with stray voltage — let me give a short course. I personally feel that a cow struck by stray voltage is similar to a person having AIDS. It destroys their immune system. Then if the cow gets any kind of infection, there is nothing that can be done for them. There are no antibiotics to treat this condition. They hold their milk up, kick uncontrollably, which, in turn, pulls down their milk production drastically. In other words, the cow is ruined for life as a dairy cow and must be disposed of as beef. Also, some dairymen's cows have deformed calves, such as no legs, etc. Other dairymen had cows that even died, due to this condition. It is really hard to explain what all is involved here, unless you have had it and experienced it.

P.P. & L. promises the dairyman that they will compensate him for the damages, but when presented with a claim, it is automatically denied, even though their representatives preach, "We want satisfied customers."

HOWEVER, IT IS MY BELIEF THAT WHEN THEY PUT THE ISOLATOR ON, THEY ADMITTED GUILT.

I know of no other business or industry in which you can destroy a man's livelihood and not be held accountable for it. For instance, if an independent mechanic would put a foreign additive in the oil of a P.P. & L. truck, I know he would have to replace the motor. But P.P. & L. is putting an additive, which doesn't belong there, in our line service and gets away with it. How is this allowed?

If you have any doubts or questions about the integrity of this letter, please contact me at (717) 458-5362 and I will be glad to give you names of six other dairymen with the problems I am writing about.

Also, if you have any ideas or suggestions or can recommend any solution, I would like to hear from you.

could buy booze. But most, I believe, truly needed the help they sought and often it was too little that we gave. I did what I could to avoid being taken in — we gave vouchers for meals instead of cash — but I realized that if I and the church were going to err, we needed to err on the side of compassion, not cynicism. Somewhere in the world there may have been a church that failed becuase it was too generous, but I don't know of it.

In the story of Ananias and Sapphira we find a warning to us all. The problem with these two was not that they held back something for themselves, but that they pretended that what they gave was all they had. Peter questions Ananias about the sale of his property: "While it remained unsold, did it not remain your own? And after it was sold, was it not at your disposal?... You have not lied to men but to God" (5:3,4).

Are we sure that's not what we are doing today?

Red Angus, Limousin Claim York Fair Supreme Beef Titles

JOYCE BUPP
York Co. Correspondent

YORK (York Co.) — "Dunkard Valley Dutchman" was named supreme bull at the York Fair's open class beef show on Sept. 9, a coup for enthusiasts of the lesser-known "other breeds" in the region's beef industry.

Dutchman is a strapping, well-muscled Red Angus, bred and exhibited by the Jack and Nancy Myers family of Dallastown. Exhibitors at the York Fair for more than 30 years, the Myers began breeding and showing purebreds from their Dunkard Valley Farm 15 years ago. The supreme bull champion was the family's second claim to the title in the past several years.

Jamie Boyer took supreme female honors in the York Fair's open beef show with "JLBF Victoria," his homebred Limousin. Holding the champion banner is Kim Frantz.

Supreme bull at the York Fair was the Red Angus champion, "Dunkard Valley Dutchman," bred and exhibited by the Jack and Nancy Myers family. At the halter of the banner-winning bull is John Myers.

Judge Howard Hoffman of Dunwalke Farms in New Jersey praised the champion as a very competitive animal in the show ring and the kind of bull he would like to have himself.

"He has a good temperament — but one more show and then he's finished, because he's getting too big," said John Myers, who handled the 30-month-old. An embryo-transplant animal, he is sired by a past national breed champion. Dutchman is the main herd sire for the Myers' herd of 15 Red Angus purebred cows.

Dunkard Valley had two other breed champions in competition for the supreme bull title, the Simmental and Charolais winners. Others in the supreme bull competition were the Angus, exhibited by Sunset Hollow-South Branch Farm, York; the Limousin winner of Jamie Boyer, East Berlin; Chapel Hill Farm of Gettysburg with their Santa Gertrudis; and the Hereford champion exhibited by DRS Polled Hereford, Dillsburg.

Jamie Boyer, East Berlin, snagged his first supreme female banner in the York Fair's open beef show with his stylish and feminine-looking junior yearling heifer, "JLB Victoria." She is sired by Black Ox, Jr. and is due to calve in early April of 1996.

"I'm very surprised. It feels good," said a pleased Boyer, of his first top beef show win in the six or seven years he has exhibited at the York Fair. Born during one of the numerous blizzards of February 1994, Victoria was nearly frozen when Boyer found her as a newborn, after her mother chose to calve outside in some of that notor-

Call 1-800-DHI-TEST for information.
Pennsylvania Dairy Herd Improvement Association
DHIA Service Center, Orchard Road, University Park, PA 16802

Pa. DHIA members are asking more and more about when we are going to incorporate performance economics into the DHIA reports.

Since the introduction of the new Herd Summary I report, we are prepared to give our members substantial performance analysis of various groups in the herd, if their feed cost and amounts are properly reported.

Dr. Steve Ford and I are working on a form that members can calculate their feed cost, and if they desire can incorporate non-feed items such as BST and other farm operating cost.

Our DHIA technicians can then record the feed amounts, cost per hundred, dry matter, energy, and protein levels on test day. Non-feed items would be reports on a pounds per day basis, cost per 100 pounds, and dry matter (D.M.) at 100 percent dry.

If the amounts and cost are reported properly, the following summary information is possible:

1. Income over feed cost on each cow test day.
2. Average Income over cost for entire milking used test day.
3. 365 Day Rolling Average income over cost.
4. Cost to produce 100 lbs of milk on monthly basis.
5. Income over cost for period and year.
6. Income over cost for 1st lactation, 2nd lactation, and 3rd plus higher animals.
7. Income over cost by groups. If you do not group your cows, you can create groups. Example (cows on BST). You can compare the profitability of BST treated cows to non-treated cows.
8. On the back of Herd Summary I on the lower left hand corner, we project nine months based on your herd information and listing your gross milk sales.
9. Individual cow total profit at end of lactation. Part (just feed cost) or all (on total operating cost) of the farm operating cost can be reported in the new feed program. Up to 13 feeds or non-feed items can be reported, and assigned to some or all groups of cows in the herd. If a member is interested in reporting these items properly, the individual and/or group economic performance can be easily evaluated at a gland. For more information contact the Pa. DHIA office at 1-800-344-8378.

Average Farm Feed Costs For Handy Reference

To help farmers across the state to have handy reference of commodity input costs in their feeding operations for DHIA record sheets or to develop livestock feed cost data, here's last week's average costs of various ingredients as compiled from regional reports across the state of Pennsylvania. Remember these are averages so you will need to adjust your figures up or down according to your location and the quality of your crop.

York Countians Fired Up For Steam-O-Rama

JOYCE BUPP
York Co. Correspondent

SEVEN VALLEYS (York Co.)—Like many restorers of old farm tractors, Richard Reichard started out working on a tractor that had particular significance to his own life.

That tractor, a 1937 F-12 Farmall, is the one he farmed with some 40 years ago after initially having to do some restoration and repairs to it at that time.

"Then 20 years ago our son, Gene, and I 're-restored' it," Reichard said. Reichard said he's learned a great deal about equipment restoration over the years, some of it by the proverbial trial-and-error.

Reichard's sentimental attachment to that piece of equipment is apparent by the business card he has had printed for his restoration hobby, which the family dubbed "Rich's Retired Tractors."

The card features that 1937 Farmall, sharing card space with musical notes signifying his wife Trudy's piano and organ-playing service.

Both the Reichards volunteer their talents for Steam-O-Rama, the 38th annual event of the York-area based Early American Steam Engine Society. The group has its own Steam-O-Rama grounds, several acres owned by the organization near Windsor in southeastern York County.

This year's Steam-O-Rama runs Sept. 28 through Oct. 1 and features Ford and Fordson tractors and implements. In addition to vintage steam and motorized equipment of all sorts will be demonstrations of threshing, grinding baling, rock crushing, an operating sawmill, and shingle mill. Both horse pulls and a garden tractor pull are scheduled, along with musical entertainment Friday and Saturday evenings. The popular flea market is expected to draw more than 60 vendors. A 1946 VAC Case will be given away in a fund-raiser drawing.

"Our philosophy is to preserve the heritage of early American equipment for future generations to appreciate," said Reichard, one of nine Steam-O-Rama directors on the board of the 500-plus membership organization. "We emphasize family—kids, husbands, wives—and have third generations active in the show. It takes year-round planning."

Games are held for the children, along with covered wagon rides by Franklin Countian John Allen, who drives a team of mules. A miniature-sized railroad to ride is also a treat for the kid set, who can compare it to the few full-size rail cars on display.

Size of the Steam-O-Rama has doubled over the last five years and threatens to outgrow the facilities, which include permanent buildings and a heavily-used kitchen. The facility also hosts a large spring-season flea market and is available for use by various other community activities, with the Steam-O-Rama groups manning the food service facility. This active group also participates in other regional shows, including a large annual display at the York Fair, done this year in a general store theme.

Along with his own prized first farming tractor, Reichard has restored an Allis-Chalmers B that is "Trudy's tractor."

"He wanted me to drive a John Deere for him in a parade one time; I told him I'd like to have a tractor like my dad used when I was growing up," Trudy said. Before too long, a model like the one she remembered—complete with wide front-end—turned up. Lovingly restored, it's the one she now drives in the Steam-O-Rama's parade.

A 1941 John Deere B that belonged to a neighbor, who had purchased it new, also became available later and was proudly added to the collection.

"It's fun to trace them back and find out for what and how they were used by their owners," Trudy said. Having done some investigative backtracking, they have since located her father's Allis Chalmers and learned that the present owner uses it for work with potatoes—and wants to keep doing so.

"What collectors grew up with usually has a lot to do with what they like. Often they begin looking for 'Grandpa's tractor' and get interested from there," said Richard, adding that he knows of one New York state collector who has a plaque on a restored tractor dedicating it to his grandfather.

Old tractors, adds Reichard, have even been fished out of riverbeds to be restored by determined collectors.

It's an artistic endeavor, say this couple about the restoration work. Research and historian skills are needed, along with hard work and patience, to restore an old piece of equipment. Reichard has not only had to track down hard-to-find parts for his tractors, sometimes he resorts to making the repair pieces he needs. Often, restorers find they may need to gather a couple of tractors to get adequate parts together for one.

"I've learned you'd better not try to do it all at one time; it's not quick to restore tractor right. Some restorationists tear them to the very last bolt. You have to clean, repair, put in new seals," he said. While some old parts are actually still in stock at a few companies, often replacement parts are located by word-of-mouth, publication advertisements or large "tractor yards" replete with a wide variety of old equipment.

Watching young people become involved in the Steam-O-Rama and restoration work has been especially rewarding to the Reichards.

"We have kids that get involved and begin restoring tractors at a fairly young age, even pre-teens," said Reichard. It keeps them busy, they learn respect for tools and what they can do, and they acquire skills that are useful all their lives.

"This is an equalize of people," he said. "People from all walks of life are involved in this, from those with large collections down to the little guy with one. But it's a way of preserving the past. And everyone is family."

The Steam-O-Rama organization is already looking two years ahead to 1997, when it will celebrate its 40th anniversary as a group. And, in 1996, plans are under way to feature Allis-Chalmers models at the annual late September show.

Steam-O-Rama showgrounds can be reached via Interstate-83. From Exit 7, take Route 124 east for 7.5 miles to Manor Road and turn right onto Manor Road for 1.3 miles to grounds.

Hope's 'Sparky' Lights Up Solanco Steer Show

ANDY ANDREWS
Lancaster Farming Staff

QUARRYVILLE (Lancaster Co.) — A steer that "jumps right out at you" shown by Hope Long, Providence, was selected supreme champion market steer Thursday night at the Solanco Fair.

Hope, 10, daughter of Vickie and Sam Long, Providence, showed "Sparky," an Angus/Chianina/Maine Anjou crossbred weighing 1,263 pounds to supreme market steer. Hope, in the 5th grade at New Providence Elementary, said her father, Sam, helped her choose the calf at Miller's Club Calf Sale in Woodsboro; Md. The calf is originally from Nebraska, according to Sam.

John Hausner, who operates an Angus breed farm with wife JoAnn in Dover, said the champion was very impressive. "You can't say enough good things about it," which exhibited a lot of meat and muscle and depth of quarter, according to Hausner.

Reserve champion was shown by Bryan Byers, 16, son of Dave and Carole Byers, Quarryville. The 1,225-pound steer won champion of the middle weight division. The steer was obtained from Donny Waters, Airville, said Bryan, a junior at Solanco High School and Solanco FFA member.

In all, there were a total of 13 steers. Following is a list of show placings.

Denver Fair Hosts Beef Show, Livestock Sale

DENVER (Lancaster Co.) — Recently the Denver Fair posted results from its beef show and livestock sale.

Judge for the beef show was Ken Winebark, Myerstown. Grand champion of the show went to Ben Weist, who sold the champion animal, at 1,355 pounds, for 80 cents a pound to New Holland Sales Stables.

Reserve was shown by Richard Kerper, Jr., at 1,161 pounds for 71 cents a pound to New Holland Sales Stables.

At the swine sale, Josh Hoover showed his 248-pound grand champion medium heavyweight hog to Hatfield Quality Meats for $2.70 per pound. The reserve, shown by Gerald Boyd and weighing 262 pounds, was sold to Hatfield for $2.50 a pound.

Solanco Supreme Hog 'Walks Like A Cat'

ANDY ANDREWS
Lancaster Farming Staff

QUARRYVILLE (Lancaster Co.) — A Chester White crossbred hog that the judge said "walks around like a cat," owned by Rusty Herr, became supreme champion market swine on Thursday evening at the Solanco Fair.

Rusty Herr, 14, son of Barb and Karl Herr, Oxford, won supreme champion with his 252-pound gilt out of the light heavyweight division. Rusty, a 9th grader from Calvary Christian Academy in Quarryville, said that "quality feed and hoping for the best, doing what you have to do" garnered him the championship.

Judge Nelson Beam, who operates a 130-sow farrow-to-finish farm in Elverson, said he picked the grand champion because "it's really wide-based from front to rear."

Rusty obtained the hog from a Parlett sale. This was his first championship at Quarryville, where he has been a hog exhibitor for three years.

Rusty's supreme won out over the Duroc crossbred shown by Amanda Shearer, 12, daughter of Tami and Rick Shearer, Pequea. Amanda, in the 7th grade at Marticville Middle School, showed her reserve champion, a 256-pound gilt from the light heavyweight division. Amanda said she obtained the sale from the the Herr Sale in Pequea.

In all, there was a total of 89 hogs. Following is a list of show placings.

York/Lancaster Both Have Long Wait To Preserve Farmland

YORK/LANCASTER — Both York and Lancaster county agricultural land preserve boards report that many farmers are seeking to protect their farmland from future development. But money is available to purchase only a small portion of the development rights that are offered.

In York County, more than 50 applications are received annually from landowners seeking to protect their farmland from future development. More than 150 applications are on file, totalling 25,000 acres. Of the approximately 7,500 acres evaluated during the 1995 application cycle, the 1995 county and state funding permitted preservation activity on only seven farms or 1,800 acres. The preserve board is considering a $900,000 allocation for 1996.

According to York County Planning Commission's senior planner, Joseph Heffner, between 1960 and 1990, approximately 30 percent of York County's productive farmland has been lost to development. By the early '80s, York County saw, for the first time, more land devoted to development (57 percent) than to farmland (43 percent).

In Lancaster County, owners with more than 3,000 acres in 34 farms have applied to the Agricultural Preserve Board in 1995. Thomas Daniels, the board's executive director, said that in this county the wait is also very long before money may be available to actually get involved in the purchase of development rights on these farms.

Lancaster County also has 150 farms waiting to be processed, and officials predict that the wait on these most recent applications will be from seven to 10 years. Since Lancaster County has a $3 million annual budget, they can save 15 to 20 properties at approximately $2,000 per acre. But because the wait is so long, those working with the project hope farmers are patient.

Dairy Shrine Honors Remsberg

JOANNE E. MORVAY
Maryland Correspondent

TIMONIUM, Md.—John H. Remsberg Jr.—better known as Jack—has been treasurer of the Maryland Dairy Shrine since it was founded in 1964.

Each year, the shrine honors a member of the Maryland Dairy Industry by lauding him or her and his or her accomplishments during induction into the shrine.

This year it was Remsberg's turn—and no one was more surprised than he.

Remsberg, a longtime Frederick County dairyman turned livestock photographer, accepted the honor before family and friends at the recent Holstein Futurity at the Maryland State Fair.

"Congratulations Pap Pap," echoed through the arena courtesy of 12 of Remsberg's 13 grandchildren who were as excited about the award as he was.

Remsberg admitted he had some inkling the award might be his when he saw his entire family gathered at the Cow Palace. A grandson who inadvertently said "We'll see you later" as Remsberg left one of the boys' afternoon ball games also clued him in.

When Marlin Hoff called out Remsberg's name, however, "I was overwhelmed," Remsberg said.

"It's a very cherished honor," Remsberg said. "It means an awful lot to me."

Remsberg's contributions to Maryland's dairy industry are many.

They include:

•vice president of the Maryland State FFA in 1944.

•recipient of the FFA's Maryland Farmer and American Farmer degrees.

•president of the Agriculture Alumni Chapter from 1981 to 1983 and a member of the chapter's board of directors from 1974 to 1983.

•president of the Frederick County Holstein Club for two years and treasurer of the club for 25 years.

In addition, Remsberg has been an active member and leader with the Maryland State Fair Board, the Maryland Holstein Association, the National Holstein Association, the National Dairy Shrine, the Frederick County DHIA, and Middletown Valley Grange. He also works with the All Maryland Committee to select winners for the All Maryland Contest.

Remsberg's father, the late J. Homer Remsberg Sr., was a former president of the National Holstein Association and a president of the Md-Virginia Dairy Cooperative for 15 years. He and Jack Remsburg built the Locvale herd at the family farm in Middletown into one of the state's most respected herds. The Locvale herd was the first classified herd in Maryland and had the first cow classified as "excellent" in the state.

Helen Remsburg, wife of the late Doty Remsburg, has known Jack Remsberg since he was a student at Middletown High School.

Doty Remsburg and Jack Remsberg showed cows alone and together for many years. Helen Remsburg said she remembers when the two men were driving "rattley old trucks" to out of the way spots like Cumberland and Marlboro for cattle competitions.

After they married—Jack and his wife Marcia have logged 43 years together—the families became friends.

"We had a lot of fun together," Helen Remsburg said. "It's been a close and lasting and enduring friendship. Jack is great. I've quite an affection for him."

Jack Remsberg stopped milking cows in 1973.

"It was a question of get bigger or get out," he said. Remsberg and his father, who was in his 70s by then, decided to sell their herd and let Jack see what kind of living he could make taking pictures.

Remsberg, who has a degree in dairy science from the University of Maryland, began photographing cows in his spare time in 1965. His work caught on with area farmers and soon Remsberg had a bonafide part-time job.

"At that time I was moonlighting—taking picture between the daily milkings and processing the film at night," he said.

Jack Remsberg and his wife Marcia are surrounded by their family after Jack is inducted into the Maryland Dairy Shrine. Pictured are sister Carol Bare, brother Mac Remsberg and wife Peggy, daughter and son-in-law Valerie and Eddie Main and children Matt, Mark and Amy; daughter and son-in-law Gail and Greg Waeber and daughters Kristin and Kim; daughter and son-in-law Barbara and Charlie Fisher, and children Ros, Charity, Ashley and John; daughter and son-in-law Jill and Perry Brandenburg and sons Justin, Willie and Jake. Granddaughter Kate Waeber is not pictured.

When he went full time, he missed the daily routine of milking cows, but he's never had time to miss the animals themselves—he sees them on a regular basis.

Remsberg's philosophy is, "Work as if you would live forever, but live as if you would die tomorrow." He could have made quite a life on the road out of his work as a photographer—livestock photographers are always in demand and there seems to be no end to the interesting places a photographer can go all in the name of his job.

Remsberg said he loves the challenge of photographing cows.

"Generally speaking, you have to get inside their heads. They're just like people—there's no two alike. And cows aren't always cooperative. But I'm a patient perfectionist," he said.

But he would never put his job before his family—the four daughters he and Marcia raised and now the four families that have extended their table at holidays with 13 grandchildren.

"I had opportunities to go all over the country, but I always felt I didn't want to overdo it," Remsberg said. "That's primarily why I'm a one-man operation."

Remsberg's studio is attached to the family's home. He said one day taking pictures usually equals one day in his home darkroom.

"After three or four days taking pictures, you're ready to get back home and see what you've accomplished," Remsberg said. "And after a few days of being cooped up inside, you're ready to get back out and take some pictures."

Remsberg was taking about 1,000 pictures a year at one point, but has since cut back to 500, he said. He works for the Atlantic Breeders Cooperative, Sire Power and Select Sires, taking pictures of the bull studs each company advertises.

Remsberg said that is his biggest contribution to the dairy industry—taking a good photograph that can help a breeder decide what genetics to bring into his herd.

"What I do has to be in concert with production, because what I take is strictly type," Remsberg said.

Ted Ridgely, vice president of the Dairy Shrine and long active in Maryland Holstein activities, said Remsberg has been "a wonderful ambassador for the dairy industry.

"Jack has tried to make his pictures worth more than 1,000 words and strived to make every picture perfect," Ridgely said.

Remsberg said his reward in getting that perfect shot is the ongoing opportunity "to work with the people of this country that possess the most integrity and honesty of any group of people in the country."

"It's been a wonderful life," Remsberg said.

Livestock Sale Supports Maryland Youth

TIMONIUM, Md. — A good crowd came out to support Maryland youth on Wednesday night at the Maryland 4-H and FFA Livestock Sale.

The sale was held in the swine pavilion at the Timonium fairgrounds in conjunction with the 114th Maryland State Fair.

Champion rabbits, market goats, hogs, lambs, and steers went through the sale ring at the culmination of a year's hard work for many of the state's farm youth.

"These kids worked hard on these projects for many months, taking care, feeding, learning responsibility, and decision making. I'm impressed with the quality of the animals for sale tonight," said Dr. Scott Barao, extension livestock specialist with the University of Maryland Cooperative Extension Service.

Jennifer Dodd, Queen Anne's County, sold her grand champion rabbit market pen to Glen Falls Realty of Westminster for $100. The reserve champion pen, belonging to Frederick County's Sally Anderson, was purchased by Bill Marlow of Towson for $50.

In market goats, Ernest Hare of Allegany County had the 75-pound grand champion, bought by Maple Lawn Farms of Fulton for $1.10 per pound. Reserve champion, a 75-pound alpine owned by Stacy Beckley of Washington County, went for $1.50 per pound to George Wills and Associates of Baltimore. Goats and rabbits were auctioned off by Bill Collins, Jr., a member of the board of directors of the State Fair.

Thirty-five market hogs went through the sale gate, averaging $1.45 per pound per head. Grand champion, a Hampshire crossbred gilt belonging to Carroll County's 17-year-old Jennifer Wildesen, brought $5.25 per pound from top bidder David Higginbottom from Chesapeake Foods.

"We knew this was an exceptional pig from the moment we saw her," said John Wildesen of his daughter's pig.

Although the family does breed their own pigs on their Willow Springs Farm, this particular pig was purchased in Ohio, at the recommendation of a friend. The gilt had a .73 inch backfat and a loin eye area of 7.69 square inches. Josh Ruby's reserve champion, a Hampshire gilt, commanded $2.50 per pound. The Frederick County youth's pig was purchased by Hatfield Packing, Hatfield.

Maryland Lamb and Wool Queen Laura Langlotz was on hand for the market lamb sale. Market lambs brought an average of $2.05 to support the sale. Thirty-nine head were sold by auctioneer Andy Cashman. John Norris of Carroll County had the grand champion, a 125-pound Hampshire wether. In addition to being selected grand champion at the show, this lamb had won two jackpot shows and was also named best lamb at the Maryland State Fair. John himself was named senior shepherd champion. Greg Deggeller of Deggeller Attractions, Stuart, Fla. purchased the lamb for $8.50 per pound. Reserve champion, a 120-pound ewe raised by Carroll Countian Jennifer Wildesen, went to top bidder Tate Chevrolet, Geo, and BMW of Annapolis for $5 per pound.

Twenty-five market steers were sold, averaging $1.04 per pound. Eleven-year-old David Lechlider of Montgomery County had the grand champion. His homebred crossbreed steer weighed in at 1,180 pounds. "He was very good," said David, who is the son of Fred and Robin Lechlider. "Carey," as David named the steer, brought $4.60 per pound by the time Auctioneer Jack Downey's hammer sounded. The buyer was Colonial Manor Homes.

There was no reserve champion steer. The champion angus, owned by Howard County's Erin Chaudry, was purchased by Edith Williams of the University of Maryland Cooperative Extension Service for $1.10 per pound.

Andy Cashman, chair of the sale, was pleased with the night's returns. "Prices have been stronger, but the market right now is pretty weak," he said. "As long as the kids make something we're real pleased, and it works out well for them."

Junior Sheep Show Supremes Named At York Fair

JOYCE BUPP
York Co. Correspondent

YORK (York Co.) — A Southdown ewe named "Wendy" won the supreme ewe honors at the York Fair's junior sheep breeding show, then paired with a penmate to claim the supreme fair title as well.

Jennifer Flinchbaugh also hauled home the best bred and owned title for her winning ewe, bred on the family's York farm from nationally-winning Southdown bloodlines. In July, Wendy took second place in the national junior show in Indiana for her 14-year-old owner. Matched with Wendy for the supreme fair win was a purchased futurity Southdown, entered in the November national show in Louisville, Ky.

Jay Rishel, exhibiting breeding sheep for only his second year in competition, took supreme ram honors in the junior show. The Hampshire ram is named "Edgar," — as in Edgar Allan Poe, the author — in salute to the Stanley and Poe Farm of Indiana where he was bred.

The supreme title was the first for the 14-year-old Seven Valleys junior exhibitor.

ing everyone to do his or her part to make every drop of water count.

"The lack of precipitation over the entire last year, not just the past couple of months, has been the most critical factor affecting our groundwater levels and our stream flows. Many of them are at their lowest level in 10 years," he said.

Ridge also urged that residents not make fires anywhere, including around homes and farms. He said that in many communities, attempting to put out a single large fire would completely use up water reserves.

According to the governor's office, the state Department of Agriculture is working closely with the USDA to conduct a damange assessment of crop loss.

Other activities by state agencies include the Department of Environmental Protection monitoring rainfall, coordinating water supply needs, and acting with federal officials and river basin commissions (multi-state/federal agencies which have authority over water flows in the entire river basins of the Susquehanna and Delaware which have declared drought warnings) to obtain water from federal reservoirs.

The Pennsylvania Emergency Management Agency is the coordinating office for the state in the drought situation.

The Pennsylvania National Guard has twelve, 400-gallon water trailers ready to be deployed in response to the drought.

The Public Utility Commission is monitoring the use of cooling water by electricity generating companies, though that use has not been affected.

All the state's police and law enforcement authorities are to receive law enforcement guidelines.

In related action, the Pennsylvania Milk Marketing Board was expected to decide Friday afternoon whether to postpone an additional 10-cent reduction in the Class I over-order premium scheduled to go into effect Oct. 1.

Though not official, given the preliminary estimates of agricultural losses, it would seem logical to assume that the premium reduction would be postponed.

'Distinguish Yourself' Becomes Natalie's Motto

GAY BROWNLEE
Somerset Co. Correspondent

BERLIN (Somerset Co.) — After September 23, the sparkling crown and diagonal banner of Pennsylvania State Dairy Princees Natalie Dawn Welch will no longer be a constant reminder that her best image must be foremost — that her behavior must always be exemplary. Because then, those responsibilities will go to her successor at the state contest.

But laying aside the tangible things, for Natalie, won't close the book on her values, like the little motto that's pasted in her dad's pickup truck — "Distinguish Yourself."

The brief message caused Natalie, when she was younger to ask her dad, David Wlech, a doctor of veterinary medicine and farmer, what it meant.

"He said, 'Nobody else will do it for you. Each person must strive to go above and beyond,'" the princess recalled, adding, "I try to do that in my school work and everything by putting extra effort into it."

Natalie, who's enrolled as a freshman at the Bob Jones University, Greenville, S.C., quickly learned her duties as the state dairy princess had few similarities with her concurrent reign as the Somerset County dairy princess.

For one thing, she was expected to make numerous speeches at official functions where influential people in high places were present. If she knew absolutely nobody at these affairs except her chaperone, Jan Harding, the youngest of the four Welch children, had to rise to the occasion by "distinguishing herself" as a capable person.

A reflective young woman who enjoys thinking, Natalie says the dairy princess experience helped her to understand how she is perceived by others.

"It matters what you look like," she says. "First impressions do mean a lot."

Now pursuing her degree in chemistry, Natalie, her sisters, Jennifer and Heather, and brother Matthew, were always exposed to the reality that life has a beginning and an end.

Dr. Welch, who witnessed family tragedy as a farm boy, and Connie, his wife, wanted their children raised on a farm.

"I always wanted my kids to grow up and see painful situations. I wanted them to learn responsibility," commented Dr. Welch. "In farming, they got to see both birth and death. They got an appreciation for life and developed a work ethic by taking care of the animals."

Today, because her parents began the process in her childhood, Natalie owns 12 head of animals including a Leadman daughter: Rainbow-C Leadman Jerin-ET, projected on August 31 this year at 305 days, 27,416 pounds of milk, 678 pounds of fat and 849 pounds of protein, which is "pretty impressive" for a first calf heifer, according to her dad.

Each of their kids, at an early age, was given one dairy animal and one steer to raise. Their parents supplied the feed. Next year at sale time, the money recieved was reinvested in another animal and the balance deposited in a savings account. The kids learned that the foundation for their future was being laid.

The 180-acre farm these days no longer supports an active dairy because of the clinic and family activities. About six years ago, the dairy herd was dispersed because both parents worked at the White Oak Veterinary Clinic and Natalie's siblings were off to college.

Until she decides to sell them, Natalie's milk cows are lodged with other area dairymen.

Some 80 heifers are pastured in the farm's rotational grazing paddocks — custom care animals, and heifers belonging to the Welch kids.

Embryo transfer work is also done today at the farm.

As she was growing up, little did the knowledgeab'e dairy princess realize how many dairy facts and figures were being absorbed into her mind.

"What she learned about animal disease, occupation of the farmer and veterinary work on the farm, probably prepared Natalie to be a better dairy princess," observed her dad. "The dairy bowl technical part taught Natalie to be more conversant," said her 4-H leader.

Mother Connie is a formidable coach of dairy bowl teams, although at first she only helped the 4-H'ers with their sewing and beef projects. A year later, in 1983, she began leading the Junior Holstein Dairy Bowl Team and eventually the 4-H Dairy Bowl Team, as well.

She guesses that she's trained 60 to 80 quizzers in her career as a dairy bowl leader. She's seen two 4-H teams and one Junior Holstein team make it to the nationals. "We've come close (to national victory)," she said.

The petite and industrious mother of four plus several foster children said that she grabbed her dairy facts when she could. It was an ongoing challenge.

"Part of it is just working with it daily," she said, "taking notes at (official) quizzes and reading magazines. That's how we prepared, I put all these things in question and answer form."

This extra-curricular activity has occupied the last 12 years of Natalie's mother's life and now, with her last child in college, it seems natural that thoughts of grandmothering are beginning to intrude, the house being empty and all.

"When my children start having grandchildren, then I'll have to get involved with them," she said.

The foundation beneath the princess was also constructed with the blocks of spirituality laid by her parents.

Her mother, who teaches Sunday School, helps with the youth group and leads a Bible study for high school and college-aged girls, says, "We've tried to teach them and guide them spiritually so they would have faith in God and help for their major decisions in life."

The family belongs to the Heritage Baptist Church in Somerset.

Natalie says she is glad for the experiences in public speaking that came from being the state dairy princess. She developed poise and confidence in social situations that could easily have overwhelmed any young adult, especially when knowledge of the issue was curcuial to success.

"I know what people are listening to and paying attention to," she said. Still, her favorites are children.

"Little kids are great," she said. "They will say whatever is on their minds. They are honest and funny, but really interested, and you see how serious your influence is," she said.

Her treks and appearances throughtout the state found Natalie, who anticipates a career in research, talking with farmers everywhere, dairy cooperatives and other agricultural organizations. Sometimes, her presence was requested outside Pennsylvania, New York, for instance, or the middle states of Maryland or Virginia.

Other appearances for the princess were the celebration of botting the 200 millionth gallon of milk at the Weis Market in Sunbury, Ag Progress Days, the state Farm Show, the Philadelphia Phillies home game honoring dairy, Farm-City Day in Tioga County, the Fayette County Health Fair, the dairy princess training seminar, the All-American Dairy Show in Harrisburg, events in her native Somerset County and then, the National Holstein Convention in Pittsburgh last June. It was "Real" whipped cream slathered over her "dairy good" year.

It was at the grass roots level, however, that Natalie gained a greater awareness of how little people really understand the importance of dairy to their daily living. Unfortunately, too much ignorance still exists in the schools themselves, she discovered.

She said that while some schools do emphasize nutrition in their curriculum, others don't and some teachers have virtually no knowledge about the relationship of dairy products to good health.

Nor have they heard of the "Real" seal that designates commercial dairy products as being honest-to-goodness pure.

Putting her best foot forward as the Pennsylvania State Dairy Princess capped a personal victory for the 18-year-old graduate of the Berlin-Brothersvalley High School.

Her older siblings, Natalie always thought, were very accomplished at what they did and she admired them. She saw eldest sister Jennifer, who is now an engineer with a degree from the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, as the "brains" of the Welch outfit; and brother, Matt, who took two years at Penn State and is now managing a heifer operation in Chester County, as the one with the irrepressible sense of humor; and sister, Heather, a Bob Jones University student, as the outstanding athlete of the bunch.

And even though she will continue to do so, Natalie Dawn Welch knows she has set her mind to gain something and succeeded. That unique accomplishment will never be stolen because its value is locked inside her.

"Distinguish Yourself."

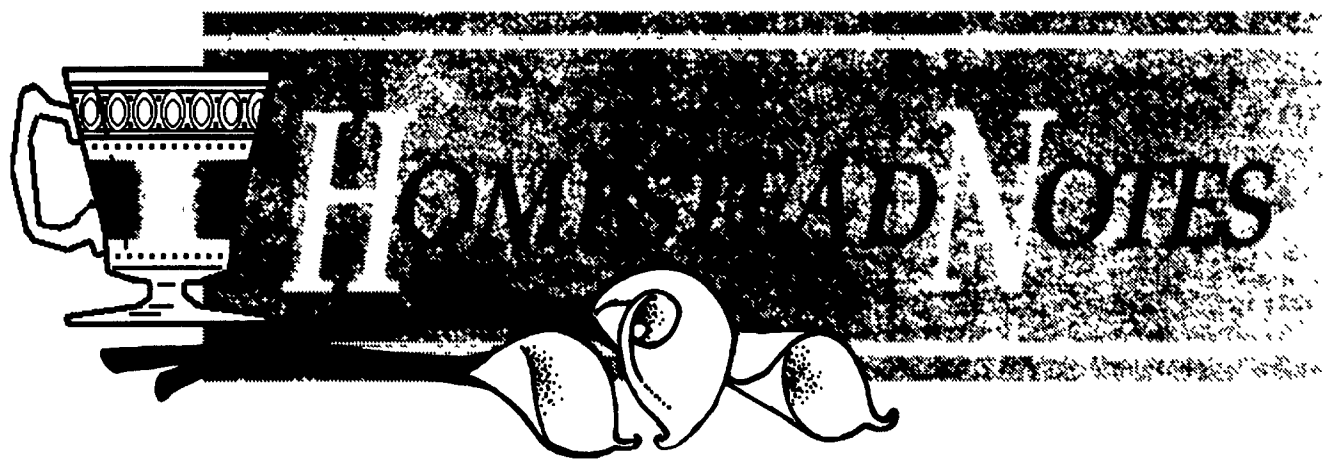
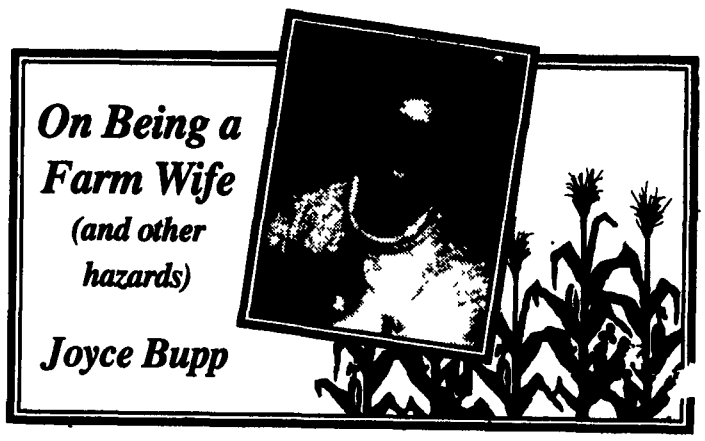
Jennifer Welch is the oldest of the three sisters.





Seeing spots.

No, my eyes haven't gotten even worse than they've been. It's just the season for livestock shows. And few things are more visually distinctive in the world of animals than those with unusal marking.

Tigers and zebras among the big ones. The two-tone-splotched, small caterpillar that stung me a few weeks ago as I gathered a bouquet of flowers is on the smaller scale. In between are things like the speckled orange, black and white Japanese koi, a brightly-colored large type of carp.

And, of course, cows.

Those various patterns of cattle markings have always fascinated me — and the decorating world, as attested to the number of cow-related items still being marketed. An Ayrshire exhibited locally is among the most notable cow I know in markings, because of her large, round, rusty-brown splotches against white.

Her large dots are at unusual places, like on her lower back legs. In fact, that animal's "cowhide" is so distinctive that it's easy to spot — no pun intended — the veteran show cow from year to year.

In recent years, some bloodline (or bloodlines) in our Holstein breed began throwing more unusual markings. One popular dairy magazine has printed numerous pictures sent in by readers who have had calves born with the number "7" emblazoned on their heads. We have a couple of those among our young stock, including one recently born out of old cow Hobi which has a "7" on its head — backwards.

An unusual marking which turned up in a Wisconsin herd of Holsteins a few years ago earned the owners a prompt sale and worldwide notoriety. Someone spotted a black spotch on a cow's side that looked remarkably like the famed, round-eared, Mickey Mouse. That cow is now living the life of bovine luxury as a four-legged celebrity at one of the Disney theme parks.

Farm Women Societies

Berks Society 4

The September meeting of Berks County Society of Farm Women Group 4 was held in the home of Elsie Rothenberger, Powdermill Hollw Road, Boyertown.

Plans were made to attend the County Convention on October 7 in the Berks County Ag Center. The group is responsible for door prizes, guest basket gifts and auction items. Berks Heim Annex Bingo will be November 2.

A pound auction was held following the business meeting.

The next meeting October 3 will be at the Leader Home, Pottstown. Evelyn Becker, a resident, will be the hostess.

York Society 11

York Farm Women Society #11 held their August meeting at the home of their president Arlene Miller. This was the youth program. Roll call response was "An event of your youth." An intresting discussion of "youth events" followed.

One item of business was contributions to five local fire companies, located in Shrewsbury, Glen Rock, Loganville, Jacobus and Winterstown.

Upcoming events are Farm Women's Day, Oct. 14 with a train ride starting in Gettysburg and ending at the Apple Festival in Arendtsville. Riding back to Gettysburg and having lunch at Bonanza Restaurant.

York County Covention will be held November 2 at Wise Haven Banquet Center.

The youth program was presented by Sammy and Amy Dise, granddaughers of Melba Dise, showing their 4-H projects, sewing, dress review and latch hooking. Amanda Delp granddaughter of Edith Delp played flute selections.

Members had a garden surplus and bake sale to supplement the treasury.

President Arlene served refreshments to the group.

Lancaster Society 20

Farm Women No. 20 met at the home of Mary Shirk with Lillian Winters and Marion Hastings as co-hostesses. Following the refreshments Marion had the devotions and the scripture.

For the Roll Call, each responded with the number of windows in their house and gave a penny for each one. The Sunshine Committee reported sending four cards and one flower arrangement and gave a gift to Pauline Reinhart for the 50th Wedding Anniversary of she and her husband, Park. We will have a stand at TownsEdge on October 7 with Marie Foose as chair person.

For the program County Commissioner Terry Kauffman spoke.

Lebanon Society 20

Lebanon County Farm Women Group #20 met at the home of Barb Harding, with 15 members and 1 guest in attendance. Barb red Psalm 37 followed by the Lord's Prayer and salute to the flag.

Vera Gross invited members and husbands to her place to play shuffleboard Sept. 26 at 6:00.

The group toured the Gov. mansion on Sept. 19. New committees were chosen for 1996.

President Pat Zeigler handed out new books and went over the changes in the by-laws.

The next meeting will be Farm Women's Day breakfast at the home of Pat Ziegler at 9:00 a.m.

Taking Time

by Rebecca Escott

"Home." A person's home is a very special, secure place. Unfortunately, for many people, growing old may mean leaving one's home of many years and beginning again in an unfamiliar setting. This process is a financially, physically, and emotionally draining one for families. But the strain can be eased somewhat if you prepare in advance.

Pennsylvania is an aging state. It ranks second in the percentage of people age 60 and over. According to the 1990 census, one out of every five residents is over 60 years of age. Between 1980 and 1990, the number of people aged 85 or older increased by 32 percent. There are now about 2,000 residents over 100 years in age! Although only a small percentage of these older adults lives in a nursing home or personal care facility, at some point, most families will deal with this issue.

Long before the decision needs to be made, families should gather information. Explore the options for yourself and for your older relatives. Take at least as much time to learn and compare choices as you did with your children's college or your purchase of a new house. A good decision cannot be made quickly, and yet many people delay until their is a family crisis requiring quick placement. Making a decision hastily is not positive for anyone.

To begin, contact your local Area Agency on Aging. Review the three-month series this fall in Consumer Reports on nursing homes. And check out reference books like Can Mom Live Alone? Practical Advice on Helping Aging Parents Stay in Their Own Home by Vivian Carlin or Nursing Homes: The Complete Guide by Mary Brumpy Forrest, et al. After you familiarize yourself with the basics, begin to investigate your local options. Remember that nursing home placement is only one of many options available. Supportive care for an aging adult ranges from in-home services like respite care, home delivered meals, and emergency response systems and community-based options like senior centers and adult day care to residential communities, congregate housing and inpatient care.

One reason for early investigation is to research the waiting lists and costs involved. Fees for skilled nursing can range from $2,700 to $5,000/month, and waiting lists may be long. It takes thoughtful planning to arrive at your preferred facility/service.

While you are gathering information, take time to contact Joyce O'Brien, our state's ombudsman on long-term care. She is in Harrisburg at 717-783-7247. It is her job to protect the rights and welfare of nursing home residents. She should be able to inform you of an institution's record of quality care.

After you have gathered information and listed all options, evaluate them. Try to determine "What will be the least restrictive environment for my family member?" "What setting will enable my relative to function at the highest level?" "What will be the impact on the entire family?" "What can we afford, and what financial resources are available to us?" As much as possible, the older adult should be giving input into the choice.

If after reviewing the choices, your family may determine that a continuing care facility is the best alternative. Conduct further screening using questions like these:

- Is there an entrance fee? How much is it? What are the monthly fees? How do these fees vary as the level of care increases? How often are they increased?
- What care options are offered?
- Are there any add-on fees for special services? What are they?
- How is the decision made for a person to move to a different care level?
- Can the dining room accommodate special diets?
- Are pets allowed?
- What kind of security is provided for the retirement campus?
- What is the financial status of the facility? Ask to see the disclosure statement? Ask for and read a copy of the state inspection report.

If an inpatient facility is the best choice, compare locations or companies using questions like:

- Does the resident have the choice of a private room? Are furnished rooms available?
- What is the ratio of aides to residents? What is the turnover rate especially for nursing assistants?
- How is the facility staffed during the evening? during the night?
- How is food served to residents who can't handle utensils?
- What therapy services are offered and how often? How are therapy services billed?
- Can residents bring furnishings and other personal belongings from home?
- What types of outings are planned for residents?
- What costs will be out-of-pocket? What costs will be covered by insurance?

Visit unannounced at different times of the day and week. Stroll corridors, talk with residents, and staff. If you are told you can only tour by appointment or at certain times, cross that facility off the list. Explore the facility observing its features.

- Does the facility have a home-like atmosphere? Are residents' shared living areas comfortably furnished and nicely decorated? Do their rooms have personal touches?
- How do the nurses' aides treat the residents?
- Are residents who need attention getting it?
- Are residents nicely dressed and well-groomed?
- Are there handrails in the hallways and grab bars in the bathrooms?
- Is there any place for the residents to enjoy the outdoors? A garden? A gazebo?
- How many residents eat in the dining room? How many participate in sponsored activities?
- Are special services like a beauty shop or library service available?

According to Consumer Reports' investigations, outward appearances and aesthetics are not alway good indicators of quality care. Be sure to look beyond the superficial aspects of the home.

There are may issues to think about and investigate when considering a change of residence for an older adult. By learning about the options in advance and taking steps now to prepare for necessary changes, you can protect your family members from needing to make a hasty decision given few options in a moment of crisis.

Never-Ending Possibilities With Rice

Rice is the staple food for two-thirds of the world's population. This simple grain has been a popular life-sustaining food for thousands of years because it is nutritious, versatile, economical, easy to prepare, and tastes good.

Rice is a complex carbohydrate that we need to fuel the body. Complex carbohydrates are stored in muscles and released as energy as needed. Nutritionists recommend that more than half the calories we consume should come from complex carbohydrates.

Rice protein, when compared to that of other grains, is considered one of the highest quality proteins. It has all eight of the essential amino acids, necessary building blocks for building strong muscles. Rice is also a good source of other essential nutrients — thiamin, riboflavin, niacin, phosphorus, iron, and potassium. Rice is healthful for what it does not contain as well. It has no fat, no cholesterol and no sodium. It is non-allergenic and gluten free.

Both brown and white rices are nutritious. While brown rice provides slightly more fiber, Vitamin E, phosphorus and calcium than white rice, most white rice sold is enriched.

Rice offers versatility unsurpassed by any other food. It can be made a part of any meal in recipes for soups, salads, main dishes, and desserts. It is an easily prepared, economical base for gourmet recipes and quick and easy home cooking alike. It can be an excellent complement to entrees, or a main ingredient in many ethnic dishes. It's no wonder rice is the world's favorite grain.

QUICK AND EASY RICE PUDDING

1 large box vanilla instant pudding
3 cups cold milk
½ teaspoon nutmeg
½ cup uncooked rice (approximately 2 cups cooked)
1 cup raisins

Cook rice until tender, drain and rinse. Soak raisins in warm water to soften while rice is cooking. Drain. Pour 3 cups cold milk into 3 quart container. Add one package instant pudding, mix until thickened. Add rice, raisins, and nutmeg to pudding mixture and stir together. Serve cold.

EASY BEEF STUFFED PEPPERS

1 pound lean ground beef
4 medium green, red or yellow bell peppers
¾ cup chopped onion
¼ cup uncooked rice
3 tablespoons catsup, divided
1 teaspoon dried oregano leaves, divided
½ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
14½-ounce can Italian-style stewed tomatoes, undrained

Cut tops off bell peppers; remove seeds and membrane. Combine ground beef, onion, rice, 2 tablespoons catsup, ½ teaspoon oregano, salt and pepper, mixing lightly but thoroughly. Spoon an equal amount of meat mixture into each bell pepper. Place in 8x8-inch baking dish. Combine tomatoes, remaining catsup and remaining oregano; pour over stuffed peppers. Cover baking dish tightly with foil. Bake in 350 degree oven for 1½ hours. 4 servings.

RICE BRAN BUTTERMILK PANCAKES

1 cup rice flour or all-purpose
¾ cup rice bran
1 tablespoon sugar
1 teaspoon baking powder
½ teaspoon baking soda
1¼ cups low-fat buttermilk
3 egg whites, beaten
Vegetable cooking spray
Fresh fruit or reduced-calorie syrup (optional)

Sift together flour, bran, sugar, baking powder and baking soda into large bowl. Combine buttermilk and egg whites in small bowl; add to flour mixture. Stir until smooth. Pour ¼ cup batter onto hot griddle coated with cooking spray. Cook over medium heat until bubbles form on top and underside is lightly browned. Turn to brown other side. Serve with fresh fruit or syrup. Makes about 10 4-inch pancakes.

Variation: For cinnamon pancakes, add 1 teaspoon ground cinnamon to dry ingredients. Each pancake provides 100 calories, 3.8 grams protein, 1.8 grams fat, 18.7 grams carbohydrate, 1.7 grams dietary fiber, 1 milligram cholesterol and 102 milligrams sodium.

USA Rice Council

Add a contemporary look to Easy Beef Stuffed Peppers by using a combination of red, yellow and green bell peppers.

COUNTRY CAPTAIN

3-4 pound young chicken
⅓ cup flour
½ teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper
1¼ teaspoon Accent
½ cup shortening
1 cup finely chopped onion
1½ cups finely chopped green pepper
1 clove garlic, finely chopped
1 teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon white pepper
2 teaspoons curry powder
4½ cups canned tomatoes
1 teaspoon chopped parsley
½ teaspoon powdered thyme
1 cup blanched or toasted almonds
2 cups hot cooked rice
¼ cup currants
Parsley for garnish

Cut chicken into frying-sized pieces. Remove skin. Combine flour, salt, pepper, and Accent. Roll chicken in flour mixture, coating evenly. Brown on all sides in hot shortening. Remove from skillet; put chicken in a warm place.

Into the drippings put onion, green peppers and garlic. Cook very slowly, stirring constantly until vegetables are tender. Add salt, pepper, and curry powder toward the end of this step. Add tomatoes, parsley and thyme. Put warm chicken pieces in roaster, pour tomato mixture. If it does not cover chicken, add a little water to skillet and rinse it out over the chicken. Cover and bake at 350 degrees for 45 mintues or until tender.

To serve, put chicken in center of large heated platter, pile rice around it. Drop currants into hot sauce to plump them; pour over chicken. Scatter almonds on top. Garnish with parsley, if desired. Yields 6 servings.

Lancaster County Poultry Ambassador Deb Landis loves to cook. She prefers adding a gourmet touch and serving dinner with an artistic flair.

To learn more about this recently selected poultry ambassador, who has no former affiliation with the poultry industry, refer to the article and picture on page A1.

BAKED CHICKEN BREASTS GRUYERE AND MUSHROOMS

2-3 chicken breasts, boned and skinned
4 eggs, well-beaten
½ teaspoon salt
1 cup fine bread crumbs
8 tablespoons butter
½ pound fresh mushrooms, sliced
4 ounces Gruyere cheese, shredded
1 cup chicken stock
Juice of 1 lemon

Cut breasts in strips. Marinate in egg and salt mixture for one hour. Roll chicken in bread crumbs to coat. Brown lightly in butter in pan. Transfer to 1½-quart casserole. Slice mushrooms over chicken. Sprinkle cheese over mushrooms. Pour chicken stock over all. Bake at 350 degrees for 30 minutes or until heated through. Pour fresh lemon juice over casserole just before serving.

GEORGE WASHINGTON'S RICE PUDDING

1 cup uncooked rice
3 cups milk
½ teaspoon salt
3 tablespoons butter
½ cup sugar
1 teaspoon vanilla
½ cup seedless raisins
4 eggs, beaten
1 teaspoon ground cinnamon

Combine rice, milk, and salt. Bring to a boil, cover, and cook over low heat until rice is tender and has absorbed most of the milk, about 45 minutes. Add butter, sugar, vanilla, raisins, and eggs. Turn into a buttered 2-quart casserole. Sprinkle with cinnamon. Bake at 350 degrees for 20 minutes. Yields 6 servings.

CHINESE FRIED RICE

1 cup regular long-grain rice
6 large eggs
½ teaspoon salt
Salad oil
¼ pound cooked ham, diced
½ cup frozen peas, thawed, drained
1 tablespoon green onions, chopped
1 carrot, shredded

Cook rice according to package directions. In medium bowl, with fork, beat eggs and salt slightly; set aside.

In non-stick 12-inch skillet over medium heat, in 2 tablespoons hot oil, gently stir in rice until rice is well coated with oil. Push rice to one side of skillet.

In same skillet over medium-high heat, heat 1 tablespoon oil until very hot; pour in eggs. Cook, with spoon, stirring quickly and constantly, until eggs are the size of peas. Add rice and heat. Stir in ham, peas, and carrots. Heat thoroughly. Sprinkle with green onion.

CHEROKEE CORN-RICE CREOLE

1 pound ground beef
1 teaspoon cooking oil
¼ cup chopped onion
1½ teaspoons salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper
Dash garlic salt
⅛ teaspoon thyme
⅛ teaspoon oregano
½ small bay leaf crushed
2 cups cooked tomatoes
10½-ounce can cream of mushroom soup
½ cup regular uncooked rice
16-ounce can corn
3 tablespoons butter, melted
½ cup grated cheese
4 stuffed olives, sliced

Cook beef in oil until light colored. Add onion and cook until transparent. Add remaining ingredients except cheese and olives. Mix well and spoon into a 3-quart baking dish. Top with grated cheese and cook covered at 350 degrees for 45 minutes. Remove from oven and garnish with olives. Yields 6-8 servings.

QUESTION — B.W. Pue, Rocky Ridge, Md., would like directions for making realistic gingerbread people that are used in crafts. Some are puffy and others are thick and flat. How is the dough made and colored and the features painted?

QUESTION — Sarah Clark, Breezewood, would like a candy called Decadent, which she thinks is made in North or South Carolina. She'd also like a bread recipe called Arkansas Travelers Bread, and a cherry pie made with red Kool-Aid.

QUESTION — Nancy Price, Jarrettsville, would like a recipe for fruit sauce such as they serve with ham at Horn and Horn Restaurant. She has tried other recipes but none is as good as Horn and Horn's.

QUESTION — Dick Taylor, Allentown, N.J., would like a recipe for hot pepper sauce using lime juice and carrots as opposed to the traditional method of using vinegar and tomatoes. He writes that lime juice enhances the pepper flavor more than vinegar.

QUESTION — Dee Crowder, Gettysburg, is looking for a recipe similar to Rotel or Chi-Chi's Tomato and Green Chilies.

QUESTION — Gina Hawbaker would like to know how to make a salad dressing similar to the house dressing at Atrim House Restaurant in Greencastle.

QUESTION — Sue Werner, Lebanon, would like a recipe for alfalfa jelly. She writes that her family tasted it at the Farm Show. Although she felt like she was eating grass, her son loved it.

ANSWER — Joan Frederich, Perkasie, wanted a recipe for Lepp cookies. Thanks to Mary W. Stauffer, Ephrata, for sending a recipe that is used to make leb cakes for the Ephrata Hospital June Fete. She writes that they make 25 batches.

Leb Cakes

6 cups brown sugar
1½ cups shortening
1 quart buttermilk
2 teaspoons baking soda
1 teaspoon hartshorn* (optional)
1 teaspoon salt
1 egg
4 pounds flour

*Hartshorn may be purchased at drug stores. Combine ingredients and chill overnight. Roll dough to ½ -inch thickness. Bake at 400 degrees for 10-12 minutes.

ANSWER — Lucy Lowe wanted a recipe for crisp garlic refrigerator pickles. Thanks to Sarah Clark, Breezewood, for sending a recipe.

Garlic Refrigerator Pickles

Slice 8-10 cucumbers
1 quart vinegar
½ cup sugar
Small jar horseradish
3 ribs celery, sliced
½ box dry mustard
2 onions, sliced in thin rings
2 quarts water
½ teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon garlic powder
⅛ teaspoon dill weed

Mix together all ingredients except cucumbers. Slice cucumbers in a gallon jar. Pour over cucumber. Wait 2 weeks before using. Stir in between waiting. After 2 weeks, pickles are ready to eat. Will keep for one month in refrigerator.

GLORIFIED RICE

8¼-ounce can crushed pineapple
⅔ cup packaged precooked rice
2 teaspoons lemon juice
1½ cups miniature marshmallows
1 ripe banana, sliced
1 cup whipping cream, whipped
2 tablespoons chopped maraschino cherries

Drain pineapple, reserving syrup. In saucepan, combine uncooked rice, ⅔ cup water, pineapple syrup and ½ teaspoon salt. Stir to moisten rice. Bring quickly to boil, cover. Simmer 5 minutes.

Remove from heat; let stand 5 minutes. Add pineapple and lemon juice; cool. Stir in marshmallows and banana. Fold in cream and cherries; chill. Serves 8.

CHICKEN PHYLLO WRAPS

Vegetable cooking spray
1 pound ground chicken
1 cup chopped fresh mushrooms
1 medium onion, chopped
3 cups cooked rice
1 cup nonfat low-salt ricotta cheese
10 ounces chopped spinach, thawed and well drained
2¼ ounces sliced black olives, toasted
¼ cup pine nuts, toasted
2 cloves garlic, minced
1 teaspoon ground oregano
1 teaspoon lemon pepper
12 phyllo dough sheets

Coat large skillet with cooking spray; heat over medium-high heat until hot. Add chicken, mushrooms and onion; cook and stir 2 to 4 minutes or until chicken is no longer pink and vegetables are tender. Reduce heat to medium. Add rice, ricotta cheese, spinach, olives, nuts, garlic, oregano and lemon pepper; cook and stir 3 to 4 minutes until well blended and thoroughly heated. Working with 1 phyllo sheet at a time, spray one sheet with cooking spray; fold sheet in half lengthwise. Place ¾ to 1 cup rice mixture on one end of phyllo strip. Fold left bottom corner over mixture, forming a triangle. Continue folding back and forth into triangle at end of strip. Repeat with remaining phyllo sheets and rice mixture. Place triangles, seam sides down, on baking sheets coated with cooking spray. Coat tops of each triangle with cooking spray. Bake at 400 degrees 15 to 20 minutes or until golden brown. Serve immediately. Makes 12 servings.

HEARTY BEEF AND RICE

1 pound ground beef
1 small onion, chopped
3 cups cooked rice
10¾-ounce can condensed cream of mushroom soup
8-ounce can stewed tomatoes, undrained, chopped
7-ounce can whole kernel corn
½ teaspoon garlic powder
½ teaspoon chili powder
4 ounces shredded cheddar cheese

Cook beef and onion in large skillet over medium-high heat; drain fat. Stir in rice, soup, tomatoes, corn, garlic powder and chili powder. Pour mixture into greased 2-quart baking dish; bake at 350 degrees for 20 minutes. Top with cheese; bake an additional 5 to 10 minutes.

Makes 6 servings.

Michigan 4-H'ers Visit Mifflin Countians

During a week-long summer exchange program, new friends from Gradiot County, Michigan, visited Mifflin County. Members of the Mifflin County Junior Leaders Club plan to reciprocate next year with a trip out west.

Gail Strock
Mifflin Co. Correspondent

The Wolverine State's 3,258-mile shoreline is longer than any other in the United States except Alaska. While this shoreline touches four out of the five Great Lakes, Michigan's interior farmland produces crops similar to those grown in Pennsylvania, corn, soybeans, wheat, cherries and apples. It also produces lesser grown crops such as sugar beets and potatoes. While Michigan's leading farm commodity is milk, it's rural counties also raise another product commonly found in Pennsylvania - 4-H kids!

As the end of the July sweltered into the dog days of August, members of Mifflin County's 4-H Junior Leaders club welcomed 14 Michigan teens and their chaperons in a week-long cultural exchange experience. The group from Gradiot County, Michigan, stepped off the train in Lewistown tired and hungry but also looking forward to new friends and experiences in Central Pennsylvania.

"You can get lost out here!" one youth exclaims of central Pennsylvania's twisty Appalachian roads. Coming from a perfectly square county where all roads run either directly north-south or east-west, these youth describe their own county as very flat. During their visit, thye youth joined their hosts in their busy pre-fair week preparations and saw a wide variety of Central Pennsylvania's highlights.

"We plan to visit an Amish farm and to tour Penn State," says Amy Laughlin, president of the Mifflin County 4-H junior leaders. Rounding out their busy itinerary will be visits to the Belleville Livestock Auction, breakfast at A.J. Peachey and Sons, and a tour of the Ford New Holland plant. At Penn State, they visited the dairy barns, deer pens, and Beaver Stadium, as well as campus centers such as the creamery, the HUB student center, and the bookstore.

Earlier in the week, the group spent the day at Greenwood State Park picnicking, swimming in the spring-fed mountain dam, and playing baseball.

During a break in the action, a few gathered to talk about their experience.

"I came on the exchange because it sounded like fun and a good experience. I've traveled within the state, but not out of the state," Jessi Skinner says. A Michigan 4-H'er invovled in sheep, steer, and food clubs, she also takes part in a club called "collections" or still exhibits. Jessi is staying with Amy Laughlin. Joined by Kelly O'Boyle, another Laughlin guest, the three girls

Whatever your dairy nutrition program is missing, Crystalyx® has a supplement to fill the gap.

From birth to dry off, Crystalyx® brand supplements, available from Agway, plug the nutritional gaps in your dairy production cycle. Mineral-rich Dairy-lyx enhances feed intake and helps prevent lameness throughout the life cycle. Dry Cow for cows already in your herd aids in reducing metabolic disorders and rebreeding problems. Anionic salts and chelated trace minerals in Close-Up Dry Cow help reduce the risk of milk fever and transition stress during pre-calving. To meet the protein and energy needs of your growing heifers while enhancing growth and performance, choose Replacement Heifer. To improve breeding and appetites during high-stress situations, use Brigade. Crystalyx supplements are a hard crystallized blend of molasses solids, protein, vitamins and trace minerals. They dissolve slowly with licking, and are naturally self-limiting.

Children Take Compost Quiz

CREAMERY (Montgomery Co.) — Young visitors to the Recycling Education Program's booth at the recent Montgomery County 4-H Fair were asked for a definition of compost, what it smells like, and how it is made. Their answers were descriptive, accurate, and to the point.

When asked what compost smells like, the answers ranged from "it smells like my grandmother's woods," "like insects," "flowers and oranges," "nature of the world," to "soil, but sweet." Emily, age 6, disagreed. She thought it smelled yucky.

Thomas at age 10 must be a veteran composter. Asked what is compost, he replied, "Compost is leaves, grass and other natural items mixed together to form soil for plants to grow in." Catherine describes compost as "old things that people don't want anymore so they recycle," while Ford, age 6, was right to the point. He said it means "something is rotten," and Christine said it was "leftover food."

The children certainly know how to compost. Katie, 11, instructs us to "put dirt in a pile with potato peels, grass, leaves, other things that can be decomposed. Wait for 8-9 months, maybe more, and you will have compost for your garden." Christina, 6, is more direct: "Throw it in a pile, then it breaks down." Aaron, 9, wants us to "grind up dirt, trees, I think."

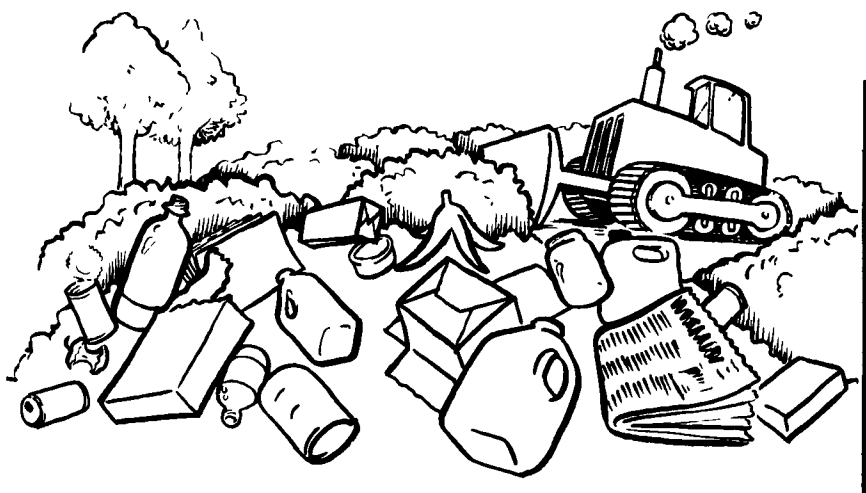
Promotion of backyard composting for all age groups is one of the goals of the Recycling Education Program. If the many children who took a few minutes to answer the compost questions are any indication, their generation is on the right rack towards environmental awareness and good recycling practices.

Have you thought about your trash lately?

Most people don't think about where trash comes from or where it goes. Did you know that every person creates about four pounds of trash each day? In one week that is nearly thirty five pounds - the weight of a very fat turkey. If you imagine all the people you know, that is a lot of turkeys!

More than half of the things that get thrown away can be saved, reused or made into new things. The Environmental Shopper does not create four pounds of trash a day, because he or she knows what to buy and what not to buy. The best way to get rid of all those turkeys is to start with yourself.

Look at the picture below. It's a landfill where trash is buried. Most of your trash will end up in this pile. There are about 6000 landfills in the United States to hold all the trash.



Why is there so much trash? One reason is because we buy things that use too much packaging made from paper, cardboard, plastic and polystyrene foam - styrofoam. Things look so good on the shelf; we have trouble resisting them.

Color the things that you think can be saved from the trash pile.

Reduce

Here's a game you can play in your home.

There are four squares below with the numbers 1, 2, 3 or 4 in them. Each number stands for the number of layers of packaging used for an item. For example, cereal uses cardboard and a bag so it goes in the #2 box. Look at the list of items (under the boxes) and try to put them in the right box.

milk juice packs bread fruit crayons pack of gum cereal music tapes video cassette games

To check your answers, find these items around your house or check the answer key in the back. Most of these items used two or more layers. Some layers are there to protect the item. Some layers are there to make the product look good. If fewer layers were used, people would have less to throw away. You should try to decide what is needed to protect an item and what is there for looks.

Reject

Look at the list of products in the activity above. Some things are packaged different ways by different makers. For example, fruit is sometimes available in bulk in large bins and other times it is found prepackaged in plastic or paper trays. Certain cereals sometimes also have an outer plastic wrapping. Cereal variety packs also have an outer wrap and lots of cardboard and paper for a small amount of cereal. Look around the next time you go to the store and you'll see many examples of the same type of product packaged in different ways. An E.S. looks to buy only those items that have the least packaging. Buy, and encourage others to buy, the things that have the least packaging. REJECT unnecessary packaging.

How is cotton candy made?
There's no cotton in this candy — it's 100 percent sugar (and a little coloring, and maybe even some flavoring). Sugar can be changed into a lot of different shapes when its ingredients — the elements carbon, hydrogen and oxygen — are heated or ground. (Just like water, ice and crushed ice are all different forms of water.) The sugar takes on that feathery look when the elements change the way they hook together.
Manufacturers squeeze out sweet juices from sugar beets and sugar cane. They filter and cook it into the sugar you buy in the grocery store. In some cases, they just grind up one kind (like table sugar) a little bit more to get a different kind of sugar (like powdered sugar.) Other sugars, like brown sugar, require a completely different process.
Cotton candy could be the ultimate sugar shape-shifter. First, candy makers use a special kettle that has a hollow tube in the center with tiny holes at the top. Sugar melts into a warm, syrupy liquid inside the tube. Then, the kettle spins fast, pushing the syrup out the tiny holes. The force of the kettle spinning pushes air into the sugar, which cools the syrup into a solid and also makes the once-granular sugar look like long, feathery glass threads. But it's definitely a science to get it right. If the syrup gets too hot, or the threads don't cool quickly enough, all the candy maker has is a globby mess!

lightly joke about their differences, especially in language.

"We say soda, you say pop!" exclaims Jessi. The visiting group has tried central Pennsylvania's version of mountain pies, or, in their language, tonka toasts or hobo pies. Then they debate who has the accent, those from Michigan or those from Pennsylvania. (Each denies talking with an accent). Then they launch into a comparison of 4-H clubs and fairs.

"Your fair is different, not as many projects," Kelly says, a 4-H'er active in the Gradiot County Horse Club. "We have more than 100 horses at the fair. We have three horse barns." Another youth adds that there must be more than 94 kids in the swine club. He estimates their county fair last year, which pools from a much larger agricultural area, had more than 900 projects and 500 kids of all ages participating in 26 clubs with names like Wet and Wild, Circle E, and the BBB.

"We're one of the biggest county's in Michigan," says one youth. "We even have the ship ride!" The Gradiot County fair is strictly a 4-H and FFA fair, with no open shows. Each family pays $5 to join 4-H, regardless of the number of children participating or projects entered. more than 110 families camp at the fairgrounds which offers shower facilities. During the last two days of their fair, the steers, pigs, and sheep are auctioned off and a dance is held afterwards.

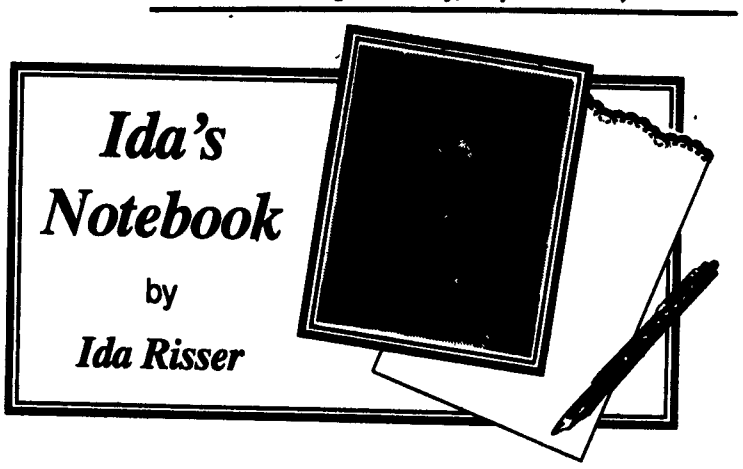
The Mifflin County Junior Leaders started planning for the exchange two years ago. Under the leadership of Suzanne Fisher and Elizabeth Coyle, the group decided to look westward. Mifflin County Youth Extension Director Jim Ladlee helped in the search, and discovered that Michigan's plans for an exchange fit Mifflin County's.

At Greenwood State Park, Amy conducts a Junior Leaders meeting to discuss the upcoming fair and fund-raisers for their trip to Michigan next year. They discuss ways to finance the trip - T-shirt sale, a variety show, a ham sandwich sale, a 50/50 raffle. How about a "lock-in," one Michigan youth suggests, and then goes on to explain as everyone discusses the possibility at the same time.

As youth from both groups clamor to be heard, this cultural exchange experience is enriched by an exchange of another sort - the ever so important exchange of ideas.

'Bee Ware' Information

SPRING MILLS (Centre Co.) — America bee-ware: 'Tis the season of the attacking yellowjacket hordes, who's annual descent leaves a wake of pain and suffering and sometimes even death. For those who feel the sting from these beligerent carnivores, help is on the way in the form of a free patient information booklet written by the American College of Allergy, Asthma and Inmmunology. This booklet uses a common sense approach to help victims distinguish between allergic and non-allergic reactions. It tells how to avoid being stung, and also discusses how people who are allergic to insect stings can be cured of this allergy forever. For your free copy, call 1-800-23 STING.



Despite the very dry weather that we have had for the last month, I've found plenty to can and freeze. My husband put in four plantings of sweet corn and he picked several baskets last week.

In addition to that we bought several bushel of peaches and some plums and pears. It certainly kept me busy. Now I still have lima beans and tomatoes to freeze and can. Even the apple tree in our front yard added to all of the work as I made a lot of applesauce.

Recently, I have visited several elderly relatives. These ladies are in their nineties. One lives alone in a large farmhouse while the other is at a retirement community. They have aged gracefully and I can only hope that I'll be able to do the same. One chose to remain where she had spent her life while the other moved. It is a momentous decision for all couples. These ladies have been widows for many years and as the years go by they have fewer and fewer friends who are able to visit them.

It is interesting to hear them tell of their earlier experiences. When one of them canned grape juice, the bottles exploded. I've just canned some juice myself and know it can leave purple splashes all over the counters. The other told of making sauerkraut which is something that I haven't done for years — maybe, because my husband does not like it. He does not like cooked cabbage either and so it doesn't appear on our table very often. One learns to cook things that will be appreciated.

On The Farm With Cambria County's Dairy Princess

LORETTA GOLDEN
Cambria Co. Correspondent

NICKTOWN (Cambria Co.) — Seventeen-year-old Marie Lieb, daughter of Ralph and Mary Beth Lieb of the Nicktown area of Cambria County, has been serving as the county's Dairy Princess. She was chosen at the annual spring meeting of the Cambria County Farm Bureau.

Ralph and Mary Beth are the owners and operators of "Barr Ridge Farm," a 250-acre dairy operation. Currently the Lieb family is milking 65 Holsteins and has 100 replacement calves. Milk produced is shipped to Sani-Dairy in Johnstown. Primary crops grown are alfalfa, corn, and soybeans.

Ralph is the fifth generation of his family to farm "Barr Ridge."

Mary Beth takes an active part in farm operations and helps with most of the morning milking. She is also the chairperson for the Cambria County Dairy promotions.

In addition to Marie, the family includes Bob, age 18; Marty, age 15; Aaron, age 14; and Ben who is 12. Bob will be attending Delaware Valley College this year to study dairy and animal sciences. Both Marie and Marty are students at Bishop Carroll High School in Ebensburg. Aaron and Ben attend Northern Cambria Catholic School.

Marie is quick to point out that "Barr Ridge" is a completely family-run operation. Everyone, including grandparents, Herman and Rose Marie Lieb, who celebrated their Golden Wedding Anniversary in June, help out whenever they are needed whether it be with the milking, feeding, field work, or other chores. During the busy hay-making season, uncles and cousins also provide much-needed assistance.

The Dairy Princess Program, along with school work and other extracurricular activities, keep Marie quite busy. This is her senior year at Bishop Carroll High School. At BC, she is a member of the marching and concert bands. This year, she has the added distinction of being the "drum major" for the marching band. She also participates in the Drama Club, Pro-Life Club, the Spanish Honor Society, and the Pennsylvania Junior Academy of Sciences. Upon graduation in June, Marie plans to enter college to study business management.

Outside of school, Marie is very active in the local 4-H program where she is president of the 4-H Dairy Club. She is also a member of the "Stitch and Snicker," a 4-H sewing club. When asked about the unusual name for the sewing club she explained that when it was formed a number of years ago, the girls were quite young and "giggly," hence the word "snicker"! Her sewing entry of a long skirt with coordinating blouse earned her honors in regional competition with the right to participate in state competition.

Prior to becoming Cambria County's Dairy Princess, Marie served as a Penn State 4-H "Ambassador" for the past five years. She is able to draw on this previous experience for her current promotion of the dairy industry.

Frey Family Adds Another Venture To Their Livestock Repertoire

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

QUARRYVILLE (Lancaster Co.) — Tucked away in the outskirts of Quarryville is the 800-acre Twin Oaks Farm, where purebred Angus roam hills scattered with woodland, meadows, and meandering streams.

Just like the cowboys in the West, Fritz Frey rides a horse to rope calves and corral the 200 head of cattle.

"I like nature. It's in my blood. I was born into it," Fritz said of the cattle operation that his dad Fred and two uncles own. Although the farm has both dairy and beef operations, Fritz sticks with the cattle.

"It's a challenge to keep up with the industry and the changes. When you're into breeding, you've got to be a leader, a forerunner. It's a big game to figure out ahead of time what people will want," Fritz said of the breeding program.

Fritz finds it intriquing to watch how positive traits are passed on through the generations by selecting the right bulls.

One of Twin Oak Farm's best known bull was the 1980 reserve national champion bull, whose semen was sold all over the U.S.

Fritz said that his dad has been breeding bulls since the 1940s. Fritz was first pictured in the newspaper when he was only two or three years old with one of the farm's bulls. He traveled the show circuit for years.

"I didn't have time to go on many vacations, but I got all over the U.S. by showing cattle," Fritz said. He had a bit of a claim to fame when he was pictured showing a heifer on the 1983 100-Year Angus Calendar. The picture was picked up and used by many companies as a stock photo.

The farm is with the Certified Angus Program, which pays a premium for meeting strict standards regarding color, carcass size, marbeling, data, etc.

Most of the Freys' Angus are sold to Dakota and Nebraska markets, consignment sales, and a few locally for show steers.

The farm is doing more intensive grazing than in previous years. Fritz said, "You got to adjust management practices to the times."

To raise efficient-type cattle, the Angus are raised like Western cattle in which they are strictly pastured in the the summer, fed hay in the winter, and offered salt and mineral free-choice.

"We find its important to offer salt and mineral choice for hair coats, fleshing, and to prevent sore eyes," Fritz said.

Although at 8-years of age, Fritz tried to train his first horse for cattle duty, he found the horse too hard to handle. For many years, he used a motorcycle to make the rounds. But in 1989, he purchased a horse trained in Kansas for cattle roundup purposes and continues to use that horse.

"She's smart. She knows what to do, and cattle respect a horse. A horse can do a lot of things that you can't do with a truck," Fritz said.

"I've never been hurt, although I've been banged around a lot," Fritz said of maneuvering cows that are protective of newborn calves and bulls that are protective of their territory.

The Freys' home is surrounded by pasture where they can keep an eye on the cattle. Sometimes new cattle are added to the herd.

"Whenever you put a new one end, it creates a pecking order. Sometimes the pecking order is settled in a few hours and sometimes it stretches on for days," Frey said.

The Freys' children, Katrina, 5, and Freddy, 2, enjoy watching the cattle push each other down the hill during snow storms. The two children own several head of cattle and sheep.

While Fritz grew up in beef circles, his wife-to-be Nancy grew up on a sheep farm. Nancy's parents, Joan and Bill MacCauley of Atglen, were raising Suffolks on their Breezeview Farm. Nancy soon became well known in sheep show circuits by showing the Suffolk breed.

Although both Fritz and Nancy were active in 4-H, she was from Chester County and Fritz was from Lancaster. They met as competitors in the Junior Livestock Judging Teams. Fritz's team won one year, Nancy's won the next year. Nancy was president of her FFA and the Chester County 4-H, and Fritz of the Lancaster club.

When they were 17-year-old, Fritz went to Louisville, Kentucy to compete on a livestock judging team, and Nancy went to Kansas City with the FFA team.

Well-known in sheep and Angus circles, Fritz and Nancy Frey have added another venture to their livestock repertoire. The Quarryville couple recently introduced Frey's Show Supply, a catalogue supply service for cattle, sheep, swine, and horses. Katrina and Freddie like riding up and down on the sheep fitting stand that Fritz designed and a local company manufactures.

The separation showed them how much they missed each other, and the two began dating.

After Nancy graduated from nursing school, the two married. Because they had enjoyed 4-H, they both dedicated time to the program. Nancy is a leader for the 4-H Woolies Club since 1989. Fritz helps with that and is a board member of the Pennsylvania Angus Association.

Because the members constantly need halters, Fritz became adept at making the halters, which he also supplied wholesale to a local store. When that store went out of business, Fritz picked up the slack with more retail business. He also designed a sheep fitting stand, which is a jack stand that he calls "Easy Lift."

"I saw the need for a better sheep fitting stand, so I took my

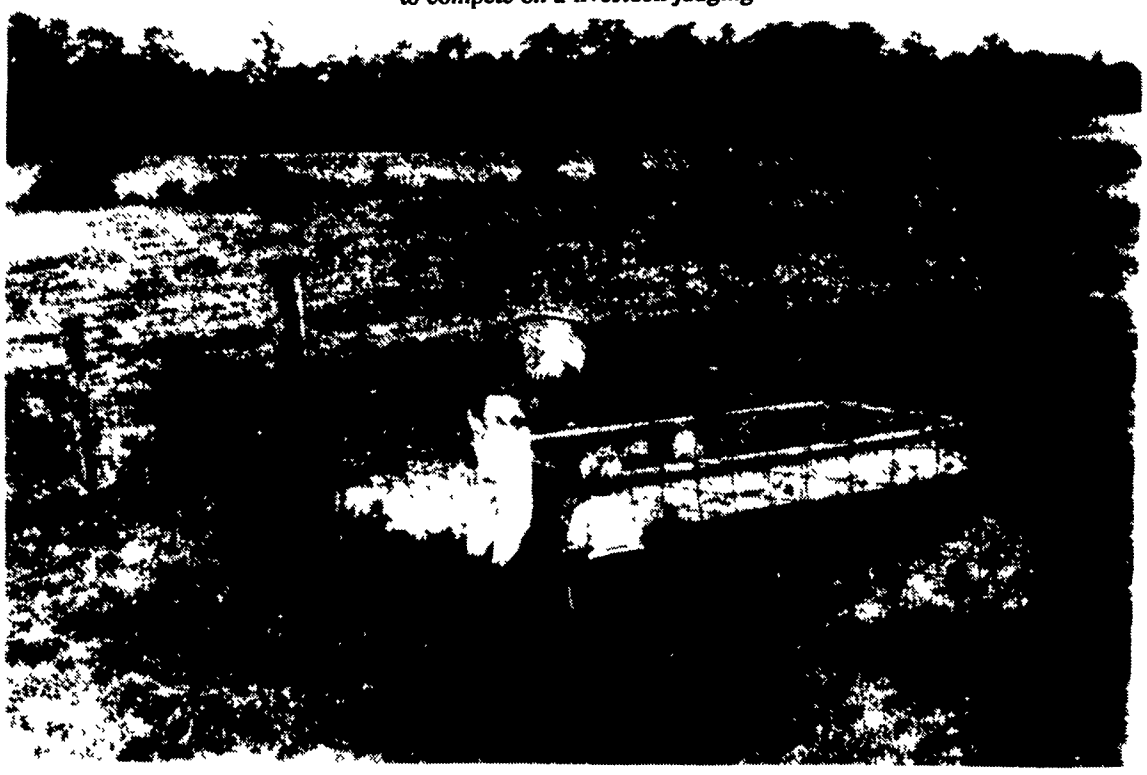
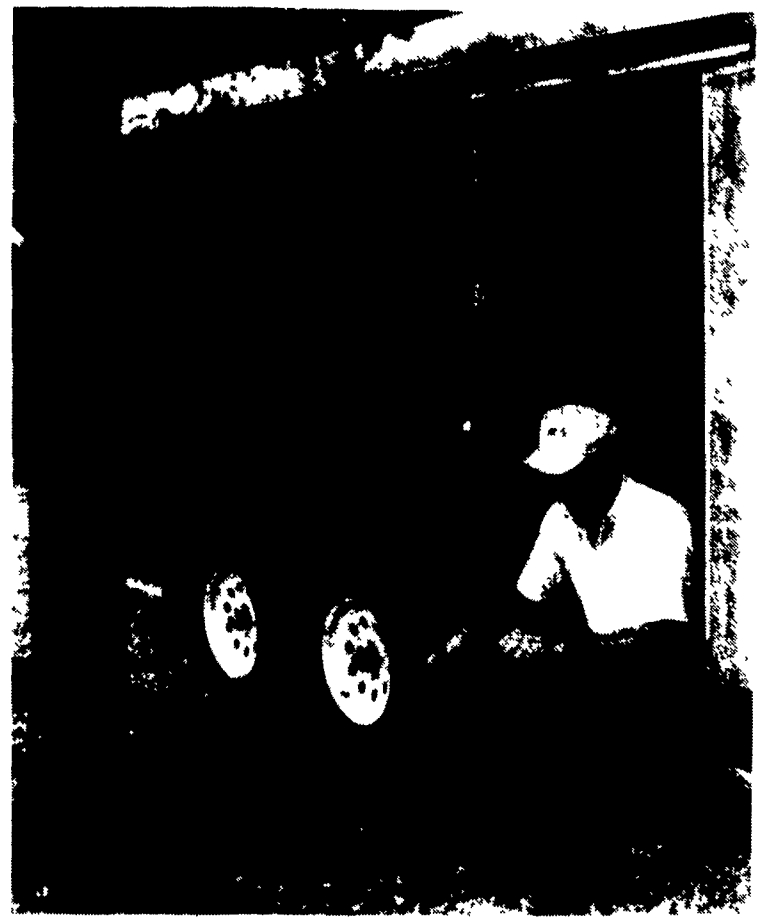
Fritz sharpens livestock blades and engraves names on show supplies for exhibitors.



In their backyard, Katrina and Freddy like to feed hay to the cattle. The two own some cattle and sheep. Although only 5-years-old, Katrina has been able to show sheep at some shows and is looking forward to doing more showing of sheep and eventually cattle.



For years, Fritz had been making halters and selling them to 4-H'ers. Now he hauls the halters and other livestock supplies in this trailer to fairs and shows.

Her favorite aspect of the program is the school promotions — especially those which deal with preschool age children. Marie enjoys these young children because they are so "energetic." She encourages the use of dairy products with the children by activities such as "shaking and making" instant pudding in a jar.

Marie takes her duties as Dairy Princess quite seriously — "to promote dairy products and the dairy industry and to make people more aware of their importance." Marie attended the National Holstein Convention in Pittsburgh in June, and more recently, Ag Progress Days at Rock Springs. In both cases she was there in her capacity as a promoter of the dairy industry. This articulate young lady has also spoken to both farm and non-farm groups, as well as school groups. She was also a featured speaker at the Cambria County 4-H Achievement night.

More recently, in taking her message to a more urban audience, Marie was in attendance at the All-American Amateur Baseball Association (AAABA) championship game at the Point Stadium in Johnstown. The Johnstown entry, sponsored by Sani-Dairy, had thrilled the hometown fans by reaching the final game, and was pitted against a team from New Orleans. Johnstown lost the game but Marie was excited by the opportunity. She walked through the crowd with a "cow," (person dressed like a cow) passing out stickers, recipes, and coloring books. This one-on-one contact on the local level is an integral part of the Dairy Princess program.

The Cambria County Fair was the next stop on Marie's agenda. Besides attending in an official capacity as Dairy Princess she also showed "Barr Ridge Leadman Frankie," a three year old dry cow.

The Liebs have a strong sense of "family" which is quite evident in Marie's outlook on life. Marie thoroughly enjoys farm life. She feels that "it keeps the family attached...everyone must work together to keep things going." Because the extended family is close, Marie takes pride in the fact that she knows all of her aunts and uncles and 41 cousins. In this fast-paced world, it is refreshing to note that this young lady has her priorities in order!

Cambria County Dairy Princess Marie Lieb lives at Barr Ridge Farm in Nicktown.

German Culture Fest

KUTZTOWN (Berks Co.) — More than 40 skilled artisans will breathe new life into traditional crafts today at the third annual Heemet Fescht. Sponsored by the Kutztown University Pennsylvania German Cultural Heritage Center at Kutztown University, the event will be held from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. on the center grounds off Luckenbill Road. Admission is free although parking donations will be accepted.

In addition to craft demonstrations, Heemet Fescht '95 will feature other activities celebrating 19th- and 20th-century Pennsylvania German culture. They include farming exhibits, regional foods, traditional music, lectures, a Civil War encampment and a special church service given in the Pennsylvania German dialect.

For more information about Heemet Fescht, call the Pennsylvania German Cultural Heritage Center at Kutztown University at (610) 683-1330.

ideas to a manufacturer and helped develop it," Fritz said.

The Freys often felt frustrated in trying to provide supplies for the 4-H members because all supply sources were in the West.

The need for local livestock supplies inspired the Freys to begin a mailorder business. The Freys also haul a livestock trailer filled with supplies to sell at fairs and shows.

In addition to selling the halters and sheep fitting stand Fritz makes, they purchased a line of private label supplies for cattle, sheep, swine, and horses.

"We get to a lot of shows so we always see the most up-to-date techniques used," Nancy said.

One of these is a fluffer comb, which the Freys say are really popular. The Freys offer free engraving so that kids can keep track of their supplies when at shows.

The Freys buy in volume from manufacturers and pass on discounts to 4-H'ers.

They try to be as self-sufficent as possible to keep overhead low. Nancy runs off catalogues on a copier. The cover is a silhouette of Fritz showing a heifer. Nancy paints the farm name on sheep blankets and Fritz engraves supplies and sharpens blades.

"We sell quality items, not cheap stuff. If it breaks, we make it right," Nancy said of the supplies.

For more information about Fritz C. Frey Livestock Supply, write to 435 Blackburn Rd., Quarryville, PA 17566 or call 1-800-399-FREY.

Berks Extension Annual Meeting To Feature Covered Bridges

LEESPORT (Berks Co.)—Covered bridges, a 4-H fashion show and a report to the community of Berks County Cooperative Extension's educational programs efforts are the featured highlights of the Berks County Cooperative Extension Association's annual meeting.

The meeting is scheduled for Monday, Oct. 16, with doors opening at 6:15 p.m.

Mr. Earl Fake, an amateur photographer, will present the program, "The Covered Bridges of Pennsylvania." Mr. Fake is well known in Berks County for his photographs of nature and scenic views of the county.

Covered bridges have been made popular through the book and movie "The Bridges of Madison County," said Carol Reed, extension volunteer and program chair for the annual meeting.

"We thought we would celebrate the history and charm of covered bridges right here in Berks County and Pennsylvania," Reed said.

Berks County 4-H Fashion Revue contestants will model their winning outfits and a brief slide show about Berks County Cooperative Extension programs will be presented.

Reservation are requested by October 10th. A buffet meal consisting of roast turkey, baked ham, filling, corn, vegetable medley, cole slaw, fruit salad, applesauce, assorted pies, coffee and tea will be served, with cost at $10 for adults and $7.50 for children (under 5 at no charge).

For more information, please contact Berks County Cooperative Extension, Berks County Ag Center, PO Box 520, Leesport PA 19533, phone (610) 378-1327.

Family Day

WEST CHESTER (Chester Co.)—A special day for children and their families is planned for Springton Manor Farm on Saturday, September 30. From 10 a.m.-4 p.m., the county demonstration farm will feature children's activities, craft and farming demonstrations, agricultural exhibits, music and games to highlight the fall harvest season.

Springton Manor Farm is on Springton Road, off Route 322, west of Guthriesville. For more information about Family Day, call (610) 942-2450.

Family Living Day To Be Held October 3

WILLIAMSPORT (Lycoming Co.) — "You Deserve to be Pampered" is the theme for Fall Family Living Day to be held on October 3 at the Grace Methodist Church in South Williamsport.

Registration is 9-9:30 a.m.

Speakers include Mary Ann Zeidler on Introduction to Herbs and Their Use in Cosmetics; Karen Makos demonstrating unique kitchen gadgets and time-saving cooking ideas; Bobbie Jo Simcox on "Cooking with Herbs; and entertainment by Carl and Opal Schlappie.

Registration is $6 payable to Lycoming County Extension and must be postmarked by September 25. Send to Fall Family Living Day/Doris E. Sargent; Lycoming Co. Extension Office, Room 406, Courthouse, 48 W.Third St., Williamsport, PA 17701.

The electronic governor on our AGCO Allis 8600 Series just might change your mind about traditional methods of farming. Set it and you've got precision ground speed for more productive operations, no matter how the terrain varies. Plus there's less downshifting and improved fuel efficiency, too. At 103 and 120 PTO hp, these tractors are designed with advances for today's profit-oriented farmer. Like dependable two-wheel or all-wheel drive, and a synchronized reverser transmission to easily change direction. Plus, a state-of-the-art climate controlled cab, an advanced air-cooled diesel engine for less maintenance, longer life and greater productivity. And, they're backed by a strong AGCO warranty – four years or 4,000 hours as standard. Check out these high powered tractors at your local AGCO Allis dealer. And ask about flexible Agricredit financing.

Broccoli Crop

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Consumers can obtain fresh broccoli by visiting local farm markets and roadside stands between now and November, according to Agriculture Secretary Charles C. Brosius.

"Our family farms have produced a good crop of broccoli this year," Brosius said.

Consumers should choose broccoli with tightly-packed heads. Stalks should be green with dark green or purplish-green buds. Broccoli may be refrigerated in a vegetable crisper or airtight container for maximum freshness and to retain nutrients.

Broccoli is an excellent source of vitamins A and C and is low in calories, with only 14 calories per half cup serving.

Copies of a consumer's guide listing the locations of Pennsylvania farm markets by county can be obtained by contacting the department's Bureau of Market Development, 2301 North Cameron Street, Harrisburg, PA 17110-9408, telephone (717) 787-5086.

You ask You answer

This column is for readers who have questions but don't know whom to ask for answers.

"You Ask—You Answer" is for non-cooking questions. When a reader sends in a question, it will be printed in the paper. Readers who know the answer are asked to respond by mailing the answer, which will then be printed in the paper.

Questions and Answers to this column should be addressed to You Ask—You Answer, Lancaster Farming, P.O. Box 609, Ephrata, PA 17522. Attention: Lou Ann Good.

There's no need to send a SASE. If we receive an answer to your question, we will publish it as soon as possible.

Horse Show Needs Riders

LAMPETER (Lancaster Co.)—Community Hospital of Lancaster will sponsor the seventh annual Horse Show and County Fair on Saturday, October 7, 8:00 a.m. to 9:00 p.m. and Sunday, October 8, 8:00 a.m. to 5:00 p.m. at Lampeter Fairgrounds, Lancaster County. The only AHSA-rated event in Lancaster County, the horse show is open to all interested riders in Pennsylvania, Maryland, Delaware and New Jersey.

Classes featured in the event include: hunter, lead line, short stirrup, mini-stirrup, beginner rider, low jumpers, hunter classic, hunter derby and Marshall Sterling children and adult jumper classic. There will also be a therapeutic rider division, horse-dog relay and Jack Russell terrier races. A new hunt ring with all weather footing has been constructed.

Special activities for children include "make-n-take" crafts, rides, amusements and games. Various entertainers will be featured both days. Parents will have the opportunity to have their child's fingerprints and video taken. Carnival rides begin at 10:00 a.m. There will also be a craft show, featuring regional artists, starting at 8:00 a.m. Lancaster County's favorite foods will be served.

Admission to the fairgrounds is $2.

ANSWER — Sarah Clark, Breezewood, wanted a recipe for "Hello Dollies," a bar-type cookie and a recipe for pavlova, which she thinks in an Australian dessert. Thanks to Nina Kochmer, Lake Winola, for sending both recipes.

Hello Dolly Cookies

¼ cup butter
1 cup graham cracker crumbs
1 cup flaked or thread coconut
1 cup semi-sweet chocolate chips
1 cup chopped walnuts
1 can sweetened condensed milk

Melt butter, add crumbs, pat into bottom of 9-inch square pan. Mix together coconut, chips, and nuts. Place in layer of top of crumbs. Pour condensed milk over top. Bake at 325 degrees for 30 minutes. Cool, cut into squares.

Pavlova

Pavlova was created and named by a society hostess in honor of the famous ballerina Anna Pavlova during her tour of Australia. Pavlova is a light rich combination of meringue and whipped cream — the peaks are intended to resemble a ballerina's tutu. It is one of Australia's national dishes.

In Australia, Pavlova is often filled with orange-yellow passion fruit, but it may be filled with strawberries, peaches, or mangos.

Meringue Shell

4 large egg whites, room temperature
¼ teaspoon salt
½ cup granulated sugar
½ cup superfine sugar
1 teaspoon cornstarch
½ teaspoon vinegar

Preheat oven to 225 degrees. On a sheet of waxed paper or foil, draw an 8-inch circle. Place on a cookie sheet.

To make meringue, put egg whites in a spotlessly clean dry bowl.

Beat egg whites with the salt until they stand in stiff peaks. Gradually add sugar 1 tablespoon at a time beating each time until sugar is dissolved.

Sift the superfine sugar with the cornstarch.

Carefully fold into the beaten egg whites. Fold in the vinegar.

Spread ¾ -inch layer of meringue over the circle. Build the remaining meringue up to form the sides of the shell using a spoon or a pastry bag fitted with a plain tip.

Bake the shell for 1½ -2 hours until crisp and very lightly colored.

Cool slightly. Carefully peel away the paper from base.

When cool, fill with fresh fruit mixed with sweetened whipped cream.

QUESTION — Mrs. William Pierce, Palmyra, would like to know where to purchase antique two-bottom dishes for crock-type chicken water fountains. Must be white with 10-inch top and 8-inch bottom.

ANSWER — For the reader who wanted a non-edible dough for gingerbread men, thanks to a reader who sent the following two recipes suitable for several crafts.

Flour And Salt Dough

4 cups white flour
1 cup salt
1½ cups water

In a big bowl, mix the flour and salt until well blended and smooth. Add one cup water and continue to mix. Slowly add the remaining ½ cup water, turning the dough in the bowl. Push the dough into a ball, working in dry flour and salt that settles at the bottom of the bowl. Knead on a floured surface for at least 10 minutes. Wrap the dough tightly in plastic and it will keep for a week. Bake projects on cookie sheets liberally dusted with flour. Bake at low heat, about 250 to 300 degrees for 30 minutes to several hours, depending on size.

Bread/Glue Dough

8 slices day-old white bread (the less expensive, fluffy type)
½ cup white glue

Cut the crusts off the bread and tear the bread into little pieces. Put the pieces in a bowl and pour the glue over them. Use one hand to mix the bread and glue together into a sticky, well-blended mass. Gather the mass into a ball and take it out of the bowl. With both hands, pat the sticky ball of dough into a neater ball and keep patting until it is just tacky. Dust a working surface with flour and begin to knead softly. As it becomes smoother and more pliable, knead it firmly. Continue to knead until the dough is satiny, about 5 minutes. Use ordinary food coloring to tint the dough. Wrap tightly in plastic and store in refrigerator when not using. Air dry on waxed paper until hard. Turn every few hours.

ANSWER — A reader wanted the words to the poem, "Elmer and the Bear." Thanks to an anonymous person for sending the poem without the author's name.

Elmer And The Bear

Elmer Jones arose at dawn and put his huntin' britches on and looked up at his shotgun on the wall.

He made up his mind then and there to bag himself a hunk of bear and huntin' he had plenty on the ball.

He milked the cow and fed the hog and kissed his wife and called the dog, picked up his gun and started on his quest.

He crossed the creek and hit the trees, threw back his head and sniffed the breeze, let out a yell and pounded on his chest.

He hunted all the morning thru but not a bear came into view while Elmer's thoughts were on the kitchen range.

He was sick as he could be of lamb and chicken fricassee and craved a mess of bear meat for a change.

Poor Elmer's mind was in a fog, he paused to sit down on a log to get his facilities back in the groove.

He heard a noise and standing there before him was a grizzly bear and figured it was time he made his move.

He grabbed his gun and turned around, but Mr. Bear just stood his ground and Elmer said, "It's either me or thou."

The gun refused to go, and so he knew somebody had to go, and said, "Farewell, I'm leaving as of now."

Then Elmer's shoulders sprouted wings, his feet developed inner springs during the longer he was disinclined.

He ran so fast thru muck and mire his ankle caught his socks afire, but still that bear kept comin' on behind.

Now a deer with antlers eight feet wide got in the way of Elmer's stride as both of them went headin' for the brush.

Elmer said, "Now listen son, if that's the fastest you can run, move over cause I'm really in a rush."

Now the bear was gaining inch by inch and finally reached out for the clinch when Elmer spied the fence around his place.

He leaped the fence, and landed hard, jumped 60 feet across the yard, and slammed the kitchen door and grew in space.

The bear was tryin' to get inside, while Elmer sought a place to hide, and Mrs. Jones began to pull her hair.

She said, "This fuss has got to stop, why don't you let that matter drop, and Elmer said, "Honey, you go tell that to the bear."

Then Elmer's wife said, "Listen goon, how come you think you're Daniel Boone, whose appetite on bear meat you will thrive?"

He said, "I'm sure that you're aware, that Daniel always killed his bear but, honey, I done brought this baby home alive!"

DESPITE RECENT RAINS, DROUGHT WARNING STILL IN EFFECT, WATER CONSERVATION URGED

Leon Ressler
Extension Agent
Agriculture/Environment

Recent rains have brought welcome short-term relief from this summer's drought, but the drought warning declared by the Susquehanna River Basin Commission on September 14 remains in effect.

According to Paul Swartz, SRBC's executive director, the purpose of the drought warning is to alert people that we are approaching critical water levels and to call for voluntary water conservation measures basinwide.

The declaration follows action taken in August to impose drought management measures on six facilities located in portions of the basin reaching critical water flow levels. The SRBC notified those companies to be on standby for automatic water use restrictions if the river fell below the critical stage.

The warning was declared since a number of indicators point to serious groundwater and in-stream flow deficits. Groundwater levels are below normal in most of the basin, especially in Bradford and Cumberland counties. Most wells are at levels reached only once every five or 10 years.

Water flows are one-third the normal levels across the basin. At the end of August, the flow in the Susquehanna River at Harrisburg was 3,700 cubic feet per second (cfs) instead of the normal 8,599 cfs. Rainfall on Sept. 17, combined with water releases from upstream reservoirs, raised the flow levels to 4,000 cfs, still less than half the normal flow.

Within three days the flows had returned to near August lows. The flow at Waverly, N.Y. in August was 235 cfs instead of the normal flow of 1,373 cfs.

The Susquehanna River Basin Commission was formed in 1971 to regulate water use in the Susquehanna River Basin. Four commissioners oversee the operations of the SRBC. One commissioner each is appointed by the states of Maryland, New York, and Pennsylvania and a fourth commissioner is appointed by the federal government.

The goal of the SRBC is to manage the water supply to insure all users have access to the water they need and to insure a minimum level of flow in the rivers and streams in the basin. The SRBC is especially concerned about consumptive uses of water where water is consumed in an activity and no longer available to be returned to the water supply in the basin.

Agricultural consumptive uses include irrigation and consumption by livestock. Currently the consumptive use regulations are suspended for agriculture while the SRBC determines how to apply the regulations to agriculture in an equitable manner.

The drought warning is a good reminder that water conservation should be a normal part of the management on our farms. Our water supply, while generally adequate in the Northeast, is subject to periodic shortages such as the one we are now experiencing. At the same time, the demand for water in society in general is continuing to grow. Therefore, it is important that each poultry producer develop a water conservation plan.

The first step in your plan should be to check your watering equipment regularly. Make sure that your cup founts are not overflowing and that nipple founts are not dripping. Check to see that your pressure reducing valves are set properly and that line filters are clean and free of particles.

A second area of potential water savings on the poultry farm is in the operation of misting systems for evaporative cooling during the hot periods of the summer. Water use can be reduced by reducing the time period the system is operated and by using low flow nozzles. One can also reduce the number of nozzles per building and restrict the use of the system to times when the temperature is above 85 degrees.

One can also conserve high quality water by misting with water not suitable for drinking such as water with high nitrate levels. Using air for cooling is another option to evaluate when developing your water conservation plan.

It is important to remember when adjusting your cooling system that water consumption by poultry goes up with temperature increase. Simply allowing your temperature in the house to rise will increase water consumption by the flock.

Allowing the temperature to rise will only save water if the water saved in the misting system is greater than the increase in water consumption by the flock. For example, at 60 degrees, 100 layers will consume 5.2 gallons per day, at 70 degrees they consume 5.3 gallons, at 80 degrees they consume 6.7 gallons, at 90 degrees they consume 10.9 gallons, and at 100 degrees they consume 15.4 gallons.

Also remember that additional water is the key to the birds' ability to maintain proper body temperature as external temperatures rise. Never attempt to conserve water by reducing drinking water availability.

An important part of your water needs of 100,000 layers for one day. Obviously one could not resort to that option for very long.

An important part of emergency preparedness is to explore new supply options. One could consult with a hydrogeologist to do fracture trace mapping to locate high potential well sites before the need is at hand.

The issue of periodic constraints on our water supply is a fact of life in our society with a growing population. Therefore, continuing to update one's water conservation plan is simply a part of good management on a poultry farm.

LIVESTOCK ◆ NOTES

Extend The Grazing Season

Agronomists Marvin H. Hall and Jerry Jung, assistant professor and adjunct professor, respectively at Penn State University have prepared an excellent publication, Agronomy Facts 41, entitled "Strategies for Extending the Grazing Season."

You can obtain Agronomy Facts 41 from your local extension office for the details and nitty gritty of extending the grazing season.

Several strategies can be employed to supply forage into the fall or early winter and effectively extend the grazing season by 60 to 90 days, thus reducing the need for stored feeds. These strategies can be categorized into two major groups: 1) stockpiling (conserving cool-season forages in late-summer for use in the fall and winter), or 2) utilizing forage crops that continue to grow in the fall and early winter.

Not all cool-season species are adapted to stockpiling. Most species reduce their growth in the fall because of shorter day lengths and/or they lose their leaves (quality) after being frosted. Tall fescue and birdsfoot trefoil are two forage species which are suited to stockpile management because they continue to grow in the fall and do not lose leaves as readily as other cool-season species do after frost.

Tall Fescue

Tall fescue is a deep-rooted, long-lived, sod-forming grass that spreads by short underground stems called rhizomes. It is drought resistant and will maintain itself under rather limited fertility conditions. Animals readily graze tall fescue during the fall, but show some reluctance to graze it during the summer months of July and August.

Some of the reduced summer palatability, which results in poor animal performance, is associated with the presence of a fungus in the plant (endophytic). Endophyte-free varieties are now available and are recommended for new seeding. Tall fescue is the best adapted cool-season grass for stockpiling.

Birdsfoot Trefoil

Birdsfoot trefoil is a perennial legume adapted to production on poorly drained, low pH soils. It can reseed itself, is resistant to Phytophthora root rot and numerous alfalfa insects, responds well to fertilization, and does not cause bloat in animals.

These characteristics have expanded its use in the northern United States and southern Canada where the production of other forage legumes is limited. Birdsfoot trefoil is well suited for stockpiling since it holds its leaves at maturity and after frost, thus maintaining a relatively high level of quality.

Fall Growing Forage Crops

The growth of some forage species is not as adversely affected by cooler fall weather and shorter day lengths as are many cool-season forages. The species which seem to grow best in the fall are tall fescue, prairie grass, perennial ryegrass, and certain brassica crops. These species can provide a valuable feed supply for extending the grazing season.

Prairie Grass

Prairie grass is a tall growing perennial grass that is suited to well drained soils with medium to high fertility levels and a pH of 6.0 or greater. It is a type of bromegrass, but is different from smooth bromegrass in that it does not have rhizomes and it produces seed heads in each growth period, especially during the summer. Herbage and immature seed heads of prairie grass are highly palatable. It is an excellent grass for providing forage during droughts and for extending the grazing season well into the fall in Pennsylvania.

Forage Brassicas

Brassicas are annual crops which continue to grow during the fall and into the winter. They are highly productive and digestible and contain relatively high levels of crude protein. They can be grazed 80 to 150 days after seeding, depending on the species and weather. In addition, some varieties lend themselves to stockpiling.

Small Grains

The use of winter cereal crops such as wheat, barley, rye, or triticale can provide fall or early winter grazing opportunities. However, certain management practices need to be modified from what is normally done for grain production. When small grains are to be used for grazing, plant them three to four weeks earlier than for grain production. Increase the seeding rate to 3 bushels/acre and apply nitrogen at the rate of 40 pounds/acre at planting time.

If the small grains are being planted only for pasture (with no subsequent grain harvest), there may be some benefit to mixing small grains species. This has been beneficial in the southeast United States, where small grains pastures are quite common. Mixing species of rye, wheat, barley, or triticale can help extend the grazing period and reduce the tendency for a strong peak growth period in the spring.

With adequate fall moisture, grazing should be available from October through December and then again in early spring. One acre of properly fertilized and managed small grains should support one animal unit (1,000-pound animal) on a limited grazing basis.

Stocking rate and time of grazing will be somewhat determined by the intended use of the crop. If you are planning to take a silage or grain harvest, grazing should only be moderate. Heavy grazing can reduce grain yields. Moderate grazing in the fall will not result in significant silage or grain losses provided that moisture and soil fertility are adequate. In fact, fall pasturing can be beneficial where the small grain was seeded early and has made excessive growth.

Spring grazing may be started when growth resumes.

Montgomery County Holds Dairy 4-H Show

COLLEGEVILLE (Montgomery Co.) — 4-H'ers exhibited 44 animals with all six major dairy breeds represented at the Montgomery County 4-H Fair in Creamery.

Cathy Pavelski of Susquehanna judged the cattle for type (body structure) and fitting (how well the animal is groomed). In addition, each 4-H'er was judged on their ability to show their bovine during the contest.

This year's supreme champion and junior supreme champion of all six breeds were Jerseys exhibited by Amy Plummer of Chalfont. One gallon of the supreme champion's milk was later auctioned off to the top bidder, Rosenberger's Dairies of Hatfield, for $500 as part of Montgomery County's Market Animal Sale. Best owned and bred animal was exhibited by Karen Wolfgang of Bechtelsville.

Holsteins exhibited by Karen and Seth Wolfgang of Bechtelsville were the Holstein grand champion and reserve grand champion, respectively. Junior and reserve junior champion Holsteins were exhibited by Seth Wolfgang and Alan Seipt of Lansdale. Grand champion and reserve grand champion for the five color breeds are as follows: Ayrshire, Seth Wolfgang; Brown Swiss, Katie Sterner of Bechtelsville; Guernsey, Karen Wolfgang; Jersey, Amy Plummer; Milking Shorthorn, Lizzie Moser of Gilbertsville.

Junior and reserve junior champions of the colored breeds were as follows: Ayrshire, Chris McGinnis of Souderton and Seth Wolfgang; Brown Swiss, Katie Sterner; Guernsey, Karen Wolfgang; Jersey, Amy Plummer and Christine Michalik of Sellersville; Milking Shorthorn, Lizzie Moser and Kevin McGinnis of Souderton.

The fitting and showing portion of the dairy show was divided into three classes — juniors, ages of 8 to 10, intermediates ages 11 to 14, and seniors ages 15 to 18. In the junior fitting, Amber Hallowell received junior fitting honors and Laura Seipt of Lansdale received reserve junior.

Fitting honors. Junior Showman awards were won by Alan Seipt and Laura Seipt. For the intermediate 4-H'ers, Sean Hallowell and Lizzie Moser received fitting and reserve fitting awards. Showmanship champion and reserve champions went to Lizzie Moser and Sean Hallowell. In the senior 4-H class, Karen Wolfgang and Amy Plummer won first and second place in the fitting contest, and Amy Plummer and Seth Wolfgang won first and second place in the showman contest, respectively.

All participants of the 4-H dairy show were required to complete a project book for each animal. The 4-H dairy experience helps teach the basics in how to care for animals and the economics involved with raising dairy animals.

For more information on Montgomery County's 4-H dairy program, contact Tim Fritz at (610) 489-4315.

Penn State Block and Bridle Club

NOTES FROM THE PENN STATE BLOCK AND BRIDLE CLUB

This monthly column of Lancaster Farming is provided by members of the Pennsylvania Block and Bridle Club for B&B alumni, friends of Penn State's Department of Dairy and Animal Science, and the readership of Lancaster Farming.

August marked the beginning of another academic year at Penn State and the return of students to "Happy Valley". The Block and Bridle meeting year began with a fun-filled student/faculty mixer to welcome new students and to reacquaint with the old.

The club meets on alternate Thursdays (beginning with the Aug. 24 meeting) throughout the semester in 101 Agricultural Sciences and Industries Building at 7 p.m.

The new Executive Committee met immediately before the mixer to discuss plans for the upcoming year. This year's Executive Committee includes president, Daryl Bomgardner (Sr., Annville, D&ASC); vice-president, Floyd Wise (Jr., Jacobus, D&ASC); recording secretary, Marci Myers (Jr., Hinckley, OH, D&ASC); corresponding secretary, Jen Garman (Jr., Aaronsburg, D&ASC); treasurer, Bill Stoffregen (Jr., Schuykill Haven, D&ASC); and marshall, Jeff Bissett (Jr., Bethel Park, D&ASC).

The members of B&B were sorry to see Dr. Ron Kensinger step down as co-adviser after two years of service, but were grateful for the time he dedicated to the club's activities and endeavors. In his place to serve as the third co-adviser to B&B, the club welcomed Dr. Ken Kephart. Dr. Kephart joins Dr. Ed Mills and Keith Bryan as the co-advising trio for the club.

Although fall semester is considerably less hectic than spring semester, the month of September is a busy one for the club. September started off with a meeting on Thursday, Sept. 7, where initial committee reports were given and the general membership was made aware of several upcoming social events, including the annual fall picnic (Sept. 10), broomball (Sept. 12), Ag Hill Olympics (Sept. 23), and the Department of Dairy and Animal Science picnic that follows the Olympics.

Plans are under way for club members to attend the 76th annual National Block and Bridle Club Meeting in Louisville, Ky., from Nov. 9-12. This year's national meeting will be hosted by the University of Kentucky and will be held in conjunction with the North American International Livestock Exposition.

October also will prove to be an exciting month in Happy Valley. On Saturday, Oct. 5, B&B members will pack themselves in a University maxivan and travel to Harrisburg to assist with the livestock judging contest at the 38th Annual Keystone International Livestock Exposition. On Friday, Oct. 13, a few B&B members who work at the barns will assist with the Animal Management Workshop for Youth that features programs on dairy cattle, sheep, and horses.

Lastly, a few members of the Excutive Committee will discuss B&B programs and undergraduate student life with juniors and seniors in high school who will be on campus for the annual Department of Dairy and Animal Science Open House for Prospective Students on Saturday, Oct. 21.

The club will be having a Halloween Party in October, but the particulars have not been finalized and will be announced at a later date.

For more information concerning activities of the Penn State Block and Bridle Club, contact Keith Bryan at (814) 863-0569.

Heritage Celebration Oct. 7-8

WYOMISSING (Berks Co.)—Celebrating our heritage will be the goal of the annual Heritage Festival on Saturday and Sunday, Oct. 7-8 from 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. at the Berks County Heritage Center.

There are many exciting events planned for this cultural weekend sponsored by the Berks County Parks and Recreations Department.

Saturday's highlights include an antique auto display, an antique farm equipment show, demonstrations and sales by the Heartland Guild of Craftsmen, arts and crafts and activities for the children, as well as a Pennsylvania German Farm and Home Crafts demonstration.

There will also be special talks and walks on the Deppen Cemetery, the Herb Garden, the Red Bridge, the Lenni Lenape Indians, and the Union Canal.

There will be three Canal History Time Traveler Walks to the lock on Saturday at 10 a.m., 1 p.m., and 4 p.m. Please call to register.

The day's musical entertainment will include the Full Circle Music Society from noon to 1:30 p.m., Sonny Miller and the Happy Valley Boys from 2 p.m. to 4 p.m., joined by the Country Western Dancers of Reading, with a chance for everyone to try line dancing from 3 p.m. to 5 p.m., plus authentic canal, coal mining, and Pennsylvania German Folk songs by Ernest Kniss and Joe Shidisky.

Saturday will also feature many activities for children, including old time children's games, cider, balloons, pumpkin decorating, face painting, coloring, and pony and wagon rides. In addition, story tellers Marion Gehman and Karen Terri Ludwig will spin their tales for the kids.

The activities will continue full force on Sunday, where the featured activity is a full size and miniature Carriage and Wagon show. The antique farm equipment show, children's activities, home craft demonstrations, and Heartland Guild demonstrations and Arts and Crafts sales will be continued, also.

In addition, there will be demonstrations of plowing and log skidding, a pleasure drive along the towpath, driving demonstrations, a horse pulling exhibition, family games, the raffle drawing for the Davidheiser Log House Fund Raiser, and the awards presentation.

The musical entertainment for Sunday includes The Outlaws from noon to 2 p.m., Ken Gehret Bluegrass from 3 p.m. to 5 p.m., and the authentic canal, coal mining, and Pennsylvania German Folk songs.

The Heartland Guild of Craftsmen has donated valuable works of art for our raffle to raise funds to restore the Davidheiser Log House. Tickets will be available at the Festival and the winners will be drawn on Sunday, Oct. 8 at 4 p.m.

The Heritage Center is located on Red Bridge Road off Route 183, 1 mile north of the Reading Airport. Call (610) 374-8839 for more information.

ABS Promotes Trapp To Manager

DEFOREST, Wis.—ABS Global, Inc., recently announced the promotion of Paul Trapp, Jr. to the position of manager, progeny promotions.

Trapp has been a member of the ABS Communication Services team since January 1994, previously in the capacity of West Coast tour and photography specialist.

Effective August 1, Trapp has assumed the responsibilities of overseeing all dairy photography and video needs and functions, as well as managing a rapidly growing and globally renown ABS daughter tour program. In this capacity, Trapp will manage the locating and inspecting of ABS sired cattle for tour and photo opportunities, while managing the four-person ABS Progeny Promotions Team.

Trapp is a 1993 graduate of the University of Minnesota with a bachelor of science degree in applied economics, with a marketing emphasis. Trapp has been extensively involved in the dairy industry through collegiate judging teams, dairy clubs and the agricultural fraternity, Alpha Gamma Rho. Trapp also served as a member of the Holstein Foundation's first Young Dairy Leaders Institute.

Hejnal To Head Dairy Equipment Manufacturer

ELK GROVE VILLAGE, Ill.—Dirk Hejnal has been elected president of Westfalia Systemat, Inc., a manufacturer of high tech dairy equipment and accessories. Hejnal had previously been the company's national sales manager.

Announcemet of the appointment was made by Ludger Schomacker, director of worldwide marketing, Westfalia Separator AG, Westfalia Systemat's parent company. According to Schomacker, Hejnal will be in charge of the division's day-to-day operations and will oversee all administrative activities. In addition, he will direct the strategic planning and market development for the company's new computer-based product lines.

Hejnal joined Westfalia Systemat in 1992, serving as assistant to the general manager, and was named national sales manager in 1993. Prior to joining Westfalia Systemat, he worked from 1986-1992 for Westfalia Separator AG as an intern, and later as a sales office coordinator and as an assistant manager at Westfalia Separator's Eastern Germany branch.

Dirk Hejnal

Hejnal holds a bachelor of business administration degree from the University of Muenster-Germany business school.

Company To Introduce Precision Farming System

ATLANTA, Ga. — Agco's purchase of MF worldwide accelerated their entry into the high-tech precision-farming revolution, which was triggered eight years ago when Massey Ferguson introduced its yield monitoring system on high performance combines in Europe. This new system provided farmers with instant measurement of crop yields across fields as they were being harvested.

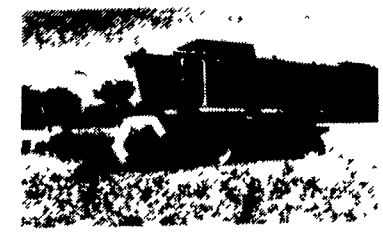
Then, in 1992, MF® introduced combines with optional yield meters operating in sync with global positioning system (GPS) equipment, making it possible to map yields in a field while recording the position of the combine in the field. The positioning and yield data are recorded simultaneously by an on-board computer and then transferred by a memory card to the farm computer. Yield maps may then be printed that show how crop performance varies within an individual field and from field to field.

Now, following the successful introduction of its precision farming system in Europe, Agco is preparing to introduce yield-mapping combines in North America.

Yield mapping is achieved by using global positioning system navigation satellitesdeveloped by the U.S. government for military use. There are 24 satellites at a distance of 11,000 miles from the Earth and they can be used to give precise locations anywhere on the globe.

For non-military use, an error is introduced in the signal to limit location accuracy. Agco uses a differential GPS system with two receivers, one stationary and one on the combine, to achieve location accuracy withing a combine's length.

"Users frequently achieve accuracy of 99.5 percent with the Agco grain yield monitoring system," said Dexter Schaible, director of Agco product development in North America. "Yields vary enormously across a field. Highest yielding areas of a field are often double the lowest yielding areas of that same field. A three to one ratio is not uncommon.



Global positioning equipment on the Massey Ferguson combine picks up signals from navigation satellites for highly accurate position fixes. This information is transferred with simultaneous measurements from the MF yield meter into the combine's computer and later processed into a yield map.

"A yield map is a real eye-opener for a farmer and shows the land and crop performance as it has never been seen before," said Schaible. "The yield map allows a farmer to identify a problem area of the field. The farmer can then go back to that site and determine if the problem can be economically solved. Despite similar soil types over a farm, farmers are amazed at the tremendous yield variation within fields that are often not visible to the naked eye."

Md. Dept. Of Ag On Internet

ANNAPOLIS, Md.—Maryland Secretary of Agriculture Lewis R. Riley has announced that information about the Maryland Department of Agriculture and its many programs to serve farmers and consumers alike can now be found on the internet.

"I am pleased that the Maryland Department of Agriculture now has another outlet to make contact with our customers—the citizens of Maryland. Our goal is to put material on the internet to inform people about our services so they can receive better help from us when they need it. In the future, I can see us putting such items as farmers' market locations and the schedules for fairs and shows on the internet as well as news items of interest to the agricultural community," Riley said.

Maryland Department of Agriculture information is currently found on SAILOR, Maryland's Online Information Network and the Maryland State Government Page on the World Wide Web.

Beaver County Forms Farmland Preservation Board

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.)—Beaver County has become the 38th county in the commonwealth to form a county Farmland Preservation Board, according to Agriculture Secretary Charles C. Brosius.

If the county's farmland preservation program is approved by the state board, the Beaver County Board will be able to begin accepting applications from farmers to preserve their farms for future agricultural use.

"Protecting farmlands is one way to help ensure the continuing stability and strengthening of our state's leading industry," said Brosius, who chairs the board.

"Now that the Beaver County commissioners have officially formed a farmland preservation board, they can develop a county-wide program that reflects local priorities."

The Farmland Protection Program was initiated in 1989 with a $100 million bond issue approved by Pennsylvania voters. The program allows the state and counties to purchase development rights—referred to as easements—to guarantee that farms will remain as agricultural land.

All counties except Philadelphia are eligible to participate in the program. Participation is voluntary, and county officials decide the pace and size of their programs.

Participating counties adopt a resolution or other official action to certify county participation and authorize a board to administer the program. That board is composed of either five, seven, or nine members who are appointed to three-year terms.

Counties then submit their programs to the State Farmland Protection Board to be considered for inclusion in the state program, which makes them eligible for state funding for easement purchases.

County boards adopt written rules and regulations for easement purchases, receive easement purchase applications from landowners, execute sales agreements, purchase county-owned easements and monitor purchased easements to ensure compliance with the program's regulations.

In addition to using grant funds allocated by the state to purchase easements, counties may also appropriate local funds.

More than 555 farms in 31 counties have joined the program or had easements approved, protecting 69,463 acres of farmland. Since January 1, easement purchases have been approved for 8,722 acres on 72 farms in 24 counties.

Long Is New Member

ST. JOSEPH, Mo.—Hope Long, New Providence, Pa., is a new junior member of the American Angus Association, reported Dick Spader, executive vice president of the national organization.

Junior members of the association are eligible to register cattle in the American Angus Association and take part in association sponsored shows and other national and regional events.

The American Angus Association has more than 29,000 active adult and junior members.

Engineer To Retire

ANNAPOLIS, Md. — Lynn R. Shuyler, a leader in the field of agricultural engineering, will retire this fall from the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency's (EPA) Chesapeake Bay Program Office. Shuyler's 30 years of national and international experience includes:

• Coordinated the nonpoint source program for the Chesapeake Bay basin. This program is aimed at reducing pollution carried to the Bay through ground water and stormwater runoff. It is considered a national model; Annapolis, Maryland, 1985-1995.

• Managed the EPA's national research program for controlling pollution from animal production facilities; Ada, Oklahoma, 1971-1985.

• Provided irrigation solutions for Kansas farmers through the Kansas cooperative Extension Service; University of Kansas, Manhattan, Kansas; 1965-1971.

• Guided management techniques for animal waste in Europe and Asia; 1971-1985.

"Looking back on my years with the Bay Program, I am really pleased to see us as far along as we are now," said Shuyler. "Ten years ago I really questioned whether we could make enough difference in 10 years to see results in the Bay's plants and animals and water quality, but we're beginning to see that today. We've got a long way to go, but we've come a long way from where we started."

Shuyler joined the Chesapeake Bay Program in 1985, two years after the multi-governmental partnership was formed to lead the restoration of the Bay. The Chesapeake Bay Program determined that an overabundance of the nutrients nitrogen and phosphorus was a major factor in the Bay's decline.

"The major challenge I saw in coming to the Chesapeake Bay Program was the need for people living in the Bay basin to feel ownership of the Bay's problems and participate in planning solutions," said Shuyler. His background with the Kansas Cooperative Extension Service gave him a strong understanding of the need for cooperation and communication on many levels.

As the Bay Program's nonpoint source coordinator, Shuyler has been at the hub of this effort, assisting with the development of the nonpoint source control programs in Maryland, Pennsylvania, Virginia and the District of Columbia, and coordinating the needs of these programs with the 13 cooperating federal agencies in the Chesapeake Bay Basin.

"We've seen a big move forward in fostering a sense of ownership in the basin," said Shuyler. "One of the real pleasures of working with the Bay Program is the involvement of so many jurisdictions and organizations — it's the free flow of ideas and information that make the partnerships work. It's been my job to find things that work well and provide the opportunity for others to see them and incorporate them into their own programs."

DIRECT XPRESS SYSTEM NEW BELT FEEDERS & CONVEYORS

Big Capacity Delivery With All The Advantages Of Dependable, Efficient, Low Profile Direct Drive Design!

That's what farmers really appreciate about the new Jamesway family of Direct X-Press Feeders and Conveyors. All models feature a dependable and efficient heavy duty industrial drive, with enclosed oil bath and standard 1, 2 or 3 H.P. C-faced motors. Our direct drive design eliminates pulleys, jackshafts, sprockets chains, V-belts and shields, the low profile motor and drive can be mounted on either side for added installation versatility.

Frozen silage? No problem!

For frozen silage and hard-packed haylage, the Patz cutter-and-claw gathering chain outperforms augers. This time-proven chain with its chain-saw cutting action cuts out frozen silage aggressively. Shouldn't your next unloader have a gathering chain?

Consider these Model RD-820 Unloader features:

RING-DRIVE: With the roller-chain ring drive, only one motor powers the machine.
AUTOMATIC LOWERING OPTION: A winch lowers the RD-820 automatically after each complete revolution.
POWER CUTTER: Spring tension keeps high-speed, self-sharpening blades tight to the silo wall to shave it clean.
TORQUE LIMITER: Ratchet-pin design protects the ring and drive system while working through conditions.
Affordable financing directly from Patz.

THINK CONCRETE!!

When planning your storage for high-moisture shelled corn. The light-colored concrete walls protect your valuable grain from the heat like we experienced this summer.

Listen to what these farmers from Virginia say about their switch to a poured concrete silo for their corn storage:

"Even during the hottest summer in our memory, the shelled corn from our poured concrete silo has kept its bright yellow color and has not heated.

We have the best Hi-Moisture shelled corn ever."
Signed: Keith Wilson, Paul Wilson, Gerald Garber; Cave View Farms, Inc., Weyers Cave Va.

"The more you know about silos, the better we look."

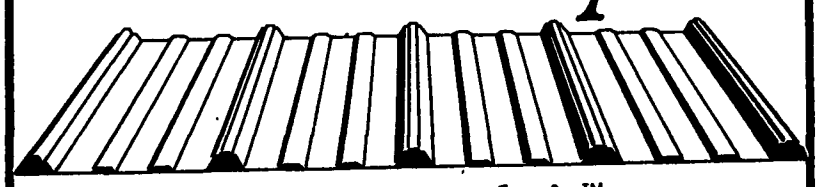
Rural Economy



Cost-efficient Centurydrain™ roofing and siding is on some of the best looking buildings in the country.
Build with Centurydrain roofing and siding and you've built a money-wise structure. Full-hard, high tensile galvanized steel, and an exclusive drain channel for a dry interior give you a building that'll handle years of hard duty and hard weather. Good looking, too. Crisp lines and plenty of bright, long-lasting colors make Wheeling Centurydrain as handsome as it is economical.

TIRED OF LEAKING ROOFING? USE

WHEELING
Channeldrain
ROOFING & SIDING

Exclusive drain channel guards against wind, rain and snow...assures dryness.
1. Wide overlap: Increases strength and leak protection at each joint.
2. Wide nailing surface: Makes nailing easier and faster.
3. Drain channel: the exclusive leak-proof system that prevents capillary action; stays weather tight. This Wheeling feature has insured "dry barns" for thousands of farmers over the past 50 years.

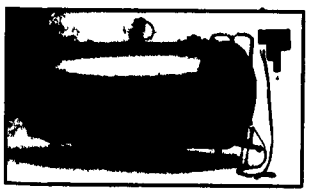
DAIRY FARM EQUIPMENT

Scroll-Compressor Technology

New in 1994



You may pay less for some dairy farm equipment... but it can cost you more!

In the long run, total operating costs of a Mueller milk-cooling system are generally substantially less than those of "bargain-brand" milk-cooling equipment.

Example	Mueller	Competition
Cost of equipment	$31 000	$28,000
Cost of electricity @ 08 kW for 12,000 lbs milk/day for 10 years	$17,550	$22 850
Total operating cost for ten years	$48,550	$50 850
Savings	$ 2 300

INVITATION FOR BIDS

The Lancaster Conservation District is requesting bids for the construction of an Agricultural Waste System (stacking area, picket fence, and liquid tank) to be funded in part by the Chesapeake Bay Program. Construction is expected to begin in October, 1995. The site is located in Little Britain Township, Lancaster County.

Prospective contractors can receive a bid package, which contains Instructions to Bidders, a Sample Contract form, the Plans for the Project, and a Bid Sheet. Construction standards and specifications are contained in the Pennsylvania Chesapeake Bay Program Contractor's Handbook dated March 1995, are part of the contract package, and need to be used during project installation.

Small and minority businesses and women's business enterprises are encouraged to respond to this invitation for bids.

A site showing at the property is scheduled for 9:00 A.M. on October 4, 1995. Sealed bids will be accepted until the public bid opening in the Conference Room of the Farm & Home Center at 9:00 A.M. on October 18, 1995.

The bid package and/or a Contractor's Handbook will be available at the site showing, or by contacting the Lancaster County Conservation District Office at:

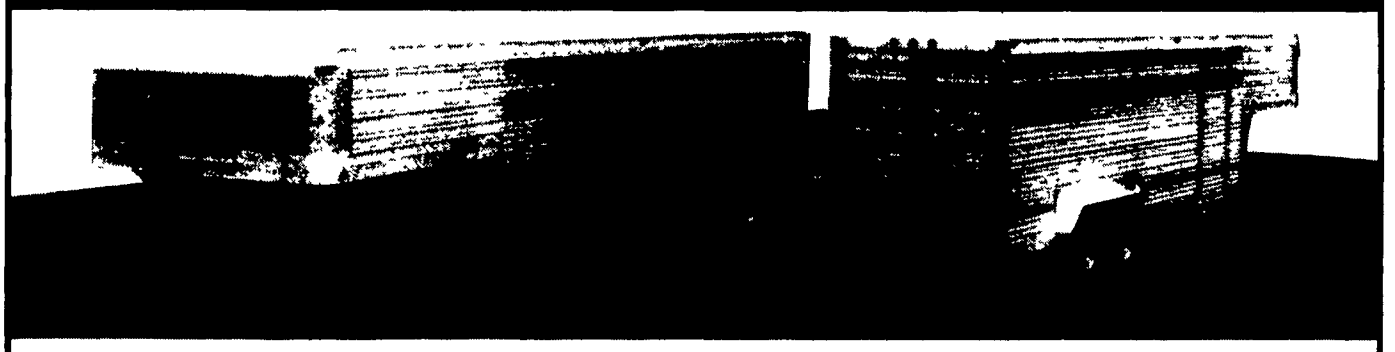
Anything Less Isn't Good Enough



If livestock is your business, Eby Gooseneck Trailers include these features to protect the livestock you transport:

- Durable all-aluminum construction with less weight for more payload
- Axles, wheels, tires and brakes that are designed to carry the weight the trailer will hold
- Gates and doors designed for easy loading/unloading
- Proven post and slat design to control airflow and easily close up for winter conditions
- Aerodynamic design to improve fuel economy

Eby Gooseneck Trailers are available in lengths from 12 to 32 feet with a choice of widths and inside heights. We offer every custom option, including stainless steel front end for great looks.

Whatever kind of livestock you transport, you can rely on EBY products to do the job right.

Eby custom-builds bodies and trailers for all types of livestock, grain and farm commodities.

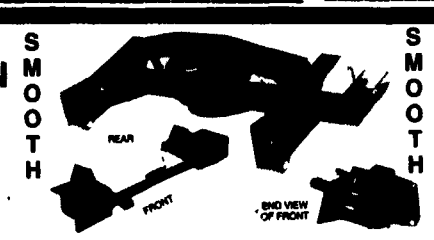
KELDERMAN AIR RIDE



Adding a Kelderman Air Ride Conversion system to your present suspension will result in a two stage suspension system. This is not to be confused with adding an Air bag mounted above the axle. Allows adding extra spring leafs to increase load rating and still maintain Air-Ride comfort.
The bolt on basic package utilizes an air stem mounted in a convenient location to add or remove air from the system
Optional 12 volt compressor allows changing air pressure setting on the go.
Currently available for front and rear suspension in Dodge Series 250 & 350 trucks. Available soon for Dodge Dakota models
Also available for some Ford, Chevy and GMC truck models. Special orders available for most motor homes. This option will smooth out the ride on those rough-road fishing/ campin, trips.

MONTHLY MAINTENANCE TIP

ROADING OF FARM TIRES

If tires are to operate for any length of time on roads or other hard surfaces and the draft load is not great, it is advisable to increase the pressure in the tire to the maximum recommendation in order to reduce the movement of the tread bars that causes excessive wiping action.

Super All Traction 23°

R-1

- New top-of-line bias-ply tractor rear, featuring our long bar/long bar design for tread stability, and heavy bar bracing to extend tread life.
- Long wearing and smooth riding, due to the more uniform, flatter contour of the long bar/long bar design.
- Proven 23° bar angle for traction and open center for self-cleaning.
- Bead and rim protector shields the rim to help keep stubble and soil from getting between the bead and rim flange.

Company Releases 'Energy Dense' Hybrids

SHIREMANSTOWN (Cumberland Co.)—The Beachley-Hardy Seed Company announces the release of three new "Energy Dense" Hytest® brand seed corn hybrids for 1996 planting in mid-Atlantic dairy and livestock farms.

"Energy Dense" or "ED" technology increases oil content over normal hybrid corns by 50 percent or more. Since oil is 225 percent more energy-dense than starch (which makes up the endosperm of nomral dent corn), ED corn transfers this benefit to the ration, giving the livestock producer a greater feed response on a pound for pound basis.

In addition, higher amounts of these key amino acids results in high quality protein for all types of livestock. Conservative estimates are that lysine is improved 16 percent, methionine 6 percent, and tryptophan 15 percent as compared to normal dent corn hybrids.

Producers using ED corn products for dairy silage and in poultry or swine rations indicate that ED corn is preferred by livestock when given the choice with a conventionally balanced ration.

The three hybrids being released are Hytest® Brand BH4495ED, Hytest® Brand BH4605ED, and Hytest® Brand BH4714ED. BH4495ED is a 95-day relative maturity hybrid which has a wide area of adaptation. BH4605ED is a 105-day relative maturity hybrid which has exceptional high-end yield potential. BH4714ED is a 114-day relative maturity hybrid with excellent drought tolerance.

EPDs On 4,400 Angus Bulls In Report

ST. JOSEPH, Mo. — The latest performance information on 4,400 registered Angus sires is available in the Fall 1995 Sire Evaluation Report published by the American Angus Association, St. Joseph, Mo.

Copies of the 244-page report will be mailed in early September to some 50,000 commercial cow-calf producers and registered Angus breeders.

Copies are also available free from the American Angus Association, reported John Crouch, director of performance programs for the association.

Performance information is in the form of expected progeny differences (EPDs). It is compiled from Angus Herd Improvement (AHIR) records submitted by members to the American Angus Association for processing and storage.

Traits in which EPDs are available include birth weight, weaning weight, milk, yearling weight and height, mature daughter weight and height, scrotal circumference and carcass traits. Carcass traits measured include carcass weight, marbling, rib eye area and external fat thickness.

"Cattle producers who use bulls with high accuracy EPDs can depend upon these records for predicting the performance of the resulting calves," Crouch said. "Angus EPDs are excellent indicators of the genetic merit animals have for specific traits."

Anyone who is not on the regular Angus Sire Evaluation Report mailing list may obtain a copy by telephoning (816) 233-3101.

Farm Credit Holds Stockholder Meetings

LEWISBURG (Union Co.)—Northeastern Farm Credit, ACA reported an attendance of 200 guests and stockholders at its Southern Tier annual sectional stockholder meeting at the Sun Area Tech in New Berlin on Sept. 7.

Member/customers attended from the Williamsport, Bloomsburg, Lewistown, and Lewisburg Branch Office service territories. A buffet dinner was provided, and more than 25 door prizes were received. The grand prize, a 6-Qt. White Mountain Electric Ice Cream Maker, was won by Mr. and Mrs. Curtis S. Dietz of Mt. Pleasant Mills.

A record 180 members attended the Northern Tier meeting held at the Tioga County Fairgrounds, Whitneyville. Members in attendance represented the Wellsboro/Coudersport division, Towanda branch, and Tunkhannock branch. Winners of the grand prize electric ice cream maker were Mr. and Mrs. Robert Naylor of Factoryville.

Robert T. Reich, president and CEO of Northeastern Farm Credit, in his speech to the stockholders stated that American agriculture will continue to provide opportunities for farmers.

"The diversification of product lines, size of farms, and adoption of technology will play a major role in who will farm in the future. What the farm community of the next generation or two will look like is not ours to determine. Economics and government policy will determine that. Farm Credit will do everything we can to foster the improvement of income and well-being of the farmers we serve."

Board Chairman Robert H. Whipple of Towanda presented the board's report to stockholders. Commenting on the recent consolidation of the Farm Credit Bank of Baltimore and the Farm Credit Bank of Columbia to form AgFirst Farm Credit, Whipple said. "This consolidation provides many exciting benefits including $1 million in additional income in 1995, new loan products, AgriLine check services and quality support services."

In his statement to stockholders, Chairman Whipple reported the construction of two new branch office facilities at Montoursville Fairfield Business Park (a move from their current Lycoming Creek Rd. location) and just off Rt. 322 near the Lewistown Holiday Inn (a move from downtown Lewistown).

MILLPORT (Potter Co.) — Recently, the Potter County Junior Livestock Sale drew a record crowd, buyers, and average prices here at the Potter County Fairgrounds.

In the beef show, the 1,065-pound grand champion was exhibited by Cory Miles and sold for $1,118.25 to First City National Bank of Genesee and Ulysses. Reserve, weighing 1,155 pounds and shown by Kellie Lane, was sold for $1,224.30 to Northeastern Farm Credit.

At the swine show, Andy Crossley showed the grand champion hog, which weighed 218 pounds and sold for $741.20 to Jeff Carts, surveyor. The reserve, shown by Cory Miles and weighing 203 pounds, was sold for $548.10 to Hatfield Quality Meats.

At the lamb show, grand champion went to Josh Shelley. The lamb, weighing 125 pounds, was sold for $562.50 to First National Bank, Port Allegany. The 107-pound reserve, shown by Barry Snyder, was sold for $454.75 to Charles and Associates Realtors.

Total sale, including rabbits, was $24,250.15. Also sold was a gallon of supreme champion milk in a hand-painted milk pail by Debbie Kibbe. The milk went for $500 to Don Gilman, president of Middlebury Milk Co-Op.

Auctioneers were Jerry Pirrung and Si Pepperman.

Survey Shows Farmers Fear Environmental Litigation

WASHINGTON, D.C. — According to survey results released by the Farm Progress Companies, 90 percent of farmers and ranchers surveyed fear environmental litigation. The level of concern overshadowed responses to questions asked about farming practices and programs, environmental policies, and social and economic issues.

In the nationwide survey, farmers and ranchers were asked to agree or disagree with the statement: "I am concerned about potential environmental litigation." Of the 2,530 respondents, 90 percent strongly agreed or agreed.

Farm Progress Companies mailed 16,327 questionnaires to farmers and ranchers on August 3 with a 15.5 percent response rate. The survey was targeted only to producers who rely on farming as their primary source of income.

The results of the Farm Progress Companies survey coincide with the results of a recent poll conducted by the National Association of State Departments of Agriculture (NASDA), where 51 percent of farmers and ranchers polled said they fear environmental laws either a great deal or a good amount. Only 13 percent felt environmental laws had no impact on their ability to produce.

In the NASDA poll, farmers and ranchers in the states of Indiana, Iowa, Kansas and Mississippi clearly supported congressional efforts to include the concept of voluntary agricultural resource management planning (VARMP) in the 1995 Farm Bill. The data, compiled from the results of four separate polls conducted August 28 through September 1, 1995 by the polling company of Washington, D.C., showed 74 percent of the farmers and ranchers believed it to be important to include VARMPs in the 1995 farm legislation. In each of the four states, 300 farmers and ranchers were interviewed by telephone. The margin of error for each state is plus or minus 4.7 percent with a 95 percent confidence level.

As proposed for the Farm Bill, VARMPs would set the stage for farmers and ranchers to protect themselves from environmental litigation and regulation, the two things they appear to fear the most. The NASDA poll showed that protection from environmental regulation was the most important factor farmers and ranchers would consider in determining whether to develop and implement a voluntary agricultral resource management plan.

The House of Representatives overwhelmingly voted in favor of the VARMP concept — 290 to 122 — during consideration of H.R. 961, the reauthorization of the Clean Water Act (CWA). "The survey results clearly show that farmers and ranchers want the protection afforded in H.R. 961. They generally agree with House Transportation and Infrastructure Committee Chairman Bud Shuster (R-PA), who said during the House floor debate on the CWA that the VARMP concept in the clean water bill should be defined in the Farm Bill," said Mark C. Nestlen, NASDA director of legislative and regulatory affairs. "Shuster said, 'we look to the Committee on Agriculture of this House to define (VARMP) in the farm bill.' According to the survey results, farmers and ranchers are also looking to the two agricultre committees to authorize the VARMP concept."

Demand Strategies Conference Spurs Heated Debate

CHICAGO, Ill. — Anti-meat activists and the government came under attack in a fiery panel discussion that raised some provocative and pertinent questions for the meat industry during the National Live Stock and Meat Board's recent Demand Strategies Conference, Global Issues Impacting the Demand for Meat.

The event recently took place in conjunction with the 41st Annual International Congress of Meat Science and Technology (ICoMST) and 48th Annual Reciprocal Meat Conference in San Antonio, Texas.

The opening of this year's Demand Strategies Conference broached three of the most compelling issues in the industry today: the environment, food safety, and diet and health. Modeled after the televised public affairs program The McLaughlin Group, the discussion of each topic consisted of a three-person panel moderated by Eleanor Clift, a contributing editor for Newsweek and frequent panelist on the syndicated TV show.

During the environment discussion, Dennis Avery, director of global food issues for the Hudson Institute, a conservative think tank, denounced the Endangered Species Act (ESA) and its effect on ranchers and the industry. "Taking somebody's land, particularly if they (the ranchers) have modified it to attract wildlife — this is deadly," Avery said. He suggested instead that the government offer financial incentives to ranchers to be environmentally responsible. "If we're willing to spend billions of dollars for environmental protection, why not spend it on something that works?"

Sid Goodloe, the 1995 recipient of a regional National Cattlemen's Association Environmental Stewardship Award and a rancher from New Mexico, offered another incentive. "I do it for my family. Why would I want to leave an overgrazed or damaged ranch as a legacy? That's stupid."

The environment panel's third member, Ann Sorensen, director of the American Farmland Trust's Center for Agriculture in the Environment, argued that the ESA needs streamlining, but is crucial. "In large part, regulation reassures the public, and it's important for any industry that has an impact on the environment to do this," she said.

The second panel debated the issue of food safety, including Hazard Analysis/Critical Control Points (HACCP) programs and the responsibility of consumers concerning meat preparation. More specifically, talk was centered around media-proclaimed Public Enemy No. 1. — E. coli O157:H7.

"A child should never receive a medium-rare or rare burger until we get E. coli O157:H7 out of the food stream," said David Theno, vice president of Quality and Safety at Foodmaker Inc., the operator and franchiser of the Jack-In-The-Box chain. Theno has been credited with much of the company's improvements in food safety since its highly publicized E. coli outbreak in 1993. "HACCP is a management tool, not a magic act," he said.

Gary Smith, professor of animal science at Colorado State University hailed the Meat Board for its funding of research programs to combat E. coli O157:H7. "Now we need to go from the gate to the plate," he said. "We need to back up and be sure the consumers know what to do with the product."

Peggy Gentry-Van Laanen, associate professor and extension nutrition specialist at Texas A&M University, agreed that consumers play an important food safety role, and educating them should be a priority. However, she added, "Consumers also need a guarantee that the industry is doing all that it can."

The diet and health panel discussion was particularly animated, prompted by input from Bob Messenger, publisher of Food Trends Newsletter; David Kritchevsky, professor of biochemistry at the Wistar Institute in Philadelphia; and Marion Nestle, chairman of the Department of Nutrition and Food Studies at New York University.

"Blame the diner, not the dinner," suggested Kritchevsky, arguing that portion control is the key to healthy eating rather than elimination of meat or other foods from the diet. "Diet doesn't cause disease unless there's a contaminant, and it doesn't cure disease. It is adjunct to disease — it may help, it may not. Eat a variety of foods, maintain your ideal health and it probably doesn't matter what you eat."

According to Nestle, meat consumption should be strictly limited. "Better it is used almost as a condiment," she said.

Messenger subscribed to the moderation theory, but also voiced his feelings about industry critics. "In a heartbeat of time, we are suddenly portraying meat as an enemy when moderation is what it's all about," he said, targeting vegetarians' attitudes toward meat eaters. "They are trying to change what we've been doing for 5,000 years — eating meat — because it tastes good, because it feels good."

The second portion of the Demand Strategies conference consisted of 10 breakout sessions that focused on the various issues discussed by panelists, primarily food safety and global efforts to ensure a safe meat supply. Meat scientists attending from 50 countries addressed such topics as meeting consumer needs through new product development, risk assessment, pathogen reduction, and HACCP: industry vs. government.

"Once a year we assemble to identify, analyze and study the drivers and barriers of demand and seek ways to do a better job," said John Huston, president of the National Live Stock and Meat Board. "We want to be more effective marketers and through this conference we can gather information to help us do strategic planning and get better insight into consumer's attitudes and what drives their behavior."

The panel discussion and the sessions were cooperatively presented by the National Live Stock and Meat Board and the International Congress of Meat Science and Technology.

The Meat Board has been building demand for meat since 1922. The first organization in agriculture to be funded through checkoffs, it is the research and information arm of the meat industry and the promotion arm of the beef industry. This year was only the second time in the ICoMST's history that it has been held in the U.S., setting a record with attendance of more than 900 persons.

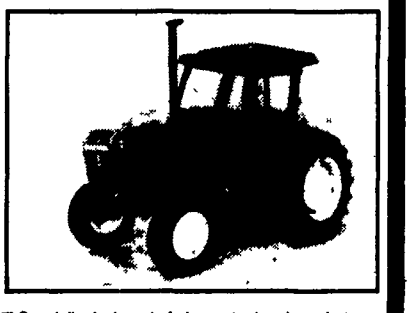
WEATHER BRAKES AND ENCLOSURES

Work doesn't stop for cold, nasty winter weather, and neither should you. FEMCO weather protection products keep you warm and dry, so you can work in comfort regardless of the weather.

Weather Brakes For Most Makes and Models

- Utilize engine heat for cold weather comfort.
- Install in minutes for winter-time use and remove quickly for summer comfort.
- Heavy, tear-resistant vinyl, laminated to tough nylon, over steel frame.
- Large 3-section windsield of polished clear vinyl for good visibility.
- Available with soft tops and rear curtains for extra comfort.
- Engine flaps adjustable for heat regulation.
- All seams double-stitched & locked.
- Designed & tailored specifically to fit your tractor or other product. (Not a universal "fit-all")

2 Post Rops & 4 Post Rops Enclosures for John Deere, Ford and Case IH Tractors



- Specially designed of glass, steel and tough, tear resistant vinyl, laminated to nylon to protect operator from wind, rain and snow at modest cost.
- Tinted, tempered windsield, and polished clear vinyl side and rear windows for excellent visibility.
- All seams double-stitched & locked for appearance & long life.
- Large doors for easy access.

Pre Season Sale - 5% OFF All Weather Brakes & Enclosures Ordered By Oct. 15

A premium quality galvanized auger designed for low maintenance operation.

Mayrath introduces the all new "InLine Drive" series of portable grain augers. Mayrath has combined operational efficiency with long term dependability providing you with a high quality, GALVANIZED auger at a very affordable price. The revolutionary "InLine Drive" system minimizes the number of moving parts . . . greatly reducing costly downtime and maintenance in the future.

The unique "InLine Drive" design features an internally mounted gearbox inside of an expanded, bell shaped tube housing. Auger flighting is positioned to allow a high volume of unrestricted grain flow around the internal gearbox. A new intake design utilizes double flighting and a cupped intake guard to offer a high capacity, complete cleanout operation. A specially engineered hopper bolts directly on top of the intake guard, further enhancing the augers capacity.

Mayrath InLine Drive

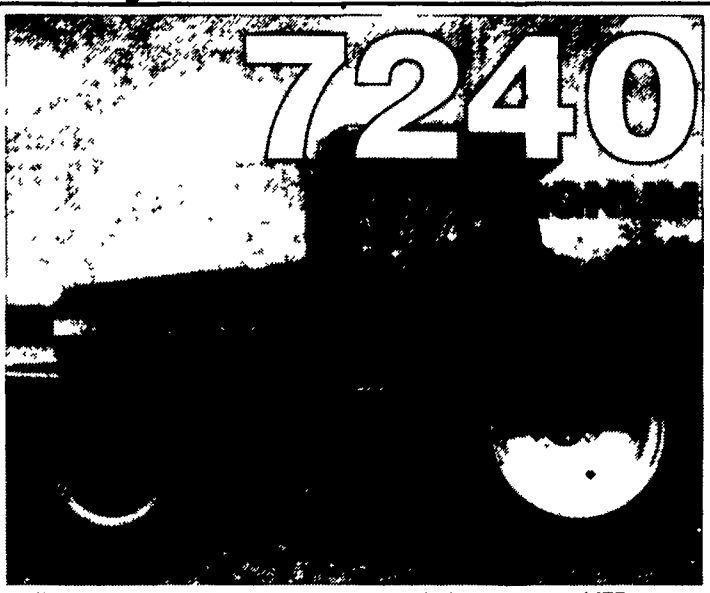
Product Highlights

The MAGNUM™ 7200 Series sets a new industry standard in farm power, technology, customer convenience, quality and value This is the most innovative, customer-oriented and productive series of tractors since the MAGNUM was originally introduced in 1987 The 7240 MAGNUM offers many important features, such as



- 195 PTO horsepower (145 kW) generated by a Case IH turbocharged 505 cubic inch (8 3 L) engine for excellent torque and lugging ability at 2,200 rpm
- Ventilated and sculptured side panels for distinct family styling The panels also provide 40% increased air flow for additional cooling capacity and improved turning radius
- Silent Guardian II cab, with outstanding visibility, standard or deluxe seat option, improved equipment monitor mounting and air conditioning with environmentally safe HFC-134A refrigerant
- Intelligence Center II provides complete information to the operator regarding tractor operation with an automatic shutdown feature to protect your investment and continuously available engine hour meter display
- Precise in-cab remote valve flow control adjustment with 180° rotation
- Electronic hitch control with "Hitch Command" that allows the operator to fine-tune hitch operation to the application, and raise or lower the hitch with a flip of the switch
- 18-speed forward, four-speed reverse, full powershift transmission is standard Operator can shift on-the-go under full power from first through 18th gears Shuttle-shifting from forward to reverse can also be made under load without clutching or reduced shift lever effort when the clutch is depressed This reduces forward/reverse cycle time
- The optional MFD axle can be engaged on-the-go and includes automatic MFD disengagement feature in brake-assisted turns to provide easier turning on the ends of the field
- Optional six-speed powershift creeper transmission is ideal for PTO operations where slow ground speeds are needed
- A four-inch bar axle
- Optional dual fender-mounted hitch controls for easier hook-up and adjustment

Mixing T.M.R. The Way You Want

Open-Top Mixers

Four notched augers mix fast--even square-baled dry alfalfa in limited amounts.

Self-aligning auger bearings mounted outside. Flanged auger tubes for easy removal.

Planetary gear reducers and roller chain reduction power the augers. Roller chains operate in enclosed oil bath.

On trailer and truck models, the discharge door and discharge augers are controlled hydraulically. Also, gravity discharge is available.

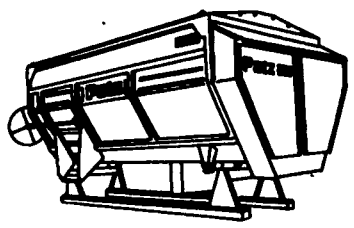
Trailer-mounted auger mixers



Stationary auger mixers

Tumble Mixers

Tumble mixing plus a central spiral circulator moving ingredients to the back of the drum while fliting moves ingredients forward.

No internal bearings.

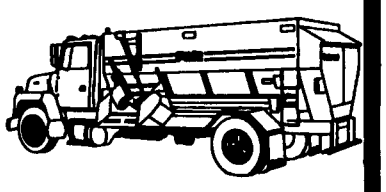
4 sizes from 135 to 290 cubic feet.



Truck-mounted auger mixers

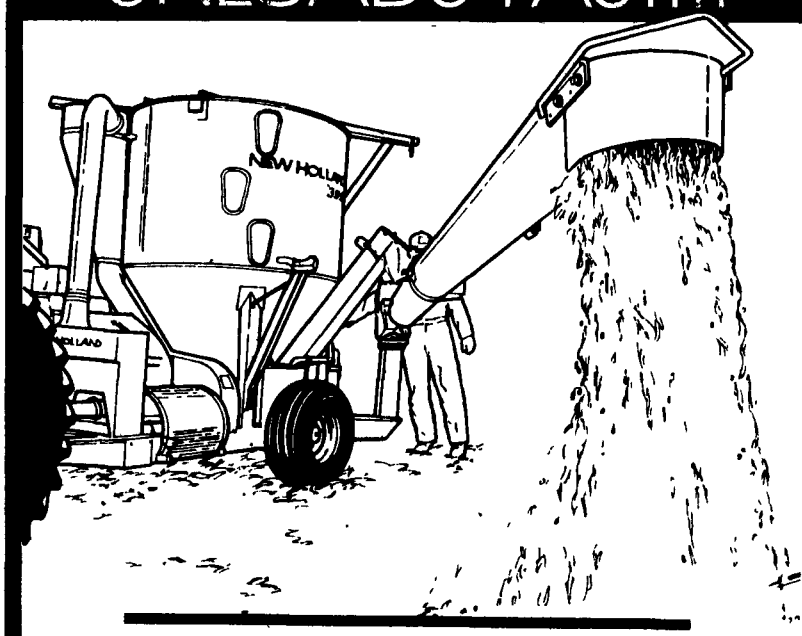
NEW HOLLAND

UNLOADS FAST...



PRICED TO MOVE FAST, TOO

The Model 358 grinder-mixer unloads a 100-bushel tank in about three minutes! The mixing auger thoroughly mixes from the bottom up for consistent, uniform feed. An optional electronic scale gives accurate control of rations.

There's a lot to like about the "358"... including the deal we can make on it.

NEW HOLLAND

GET THE SCOOP

DO BIG JOBS IN TIGHT PLACES

The Model L250 skid-steer loader does big jobs in tight places where bigger loaders just can't go. "Super Scoop" handles up to 600 pounds and has a long 32-inch wheelbase for greater stability.

Attachments include buckets, utility forks and box scrapers. A pin-type Quick-Attach mounting system makes switching easy. Stop in and see this tough little guy today.

JOHN DEERE

John Deere 66- to 85-hp 6000 Series Tractors and 600 Series Loaders... Great News

- Your hydraulic power needs vary from one loader job to the next So the hydraulic system on 6000 Series Tractors varies pressure and flow to match the demand.
- If you need a big flow of oil, you'll get it... the 16-gpm main pump provides maximum pressure up to 2,900 psi.
- You get exactly the response you need...fed to the fastest cycling, most productive loaders we've ever built.
- Come see us for details.

The World's Choice
SILOFLEX
Leading Silage Bag Technology
Since 1980

Silage Bags

The SILOFLEX team has built its foundation on a strong commitment to quality The strong commitment to manufacturing excellence of feed storage plastic has been demonstrated since 1980, having produced two other major brands of silage bags

This team has combined the expertise of the leading thermal physics formulation technologist, the state-of-the-art polyethylene manufacturers and the leading edge automated SOF-TOUCH folding technology and packaging system with a solid, well established agriculture plastics marketing and distribution system

For the first time, this team effort brings together the resources of the leading experts in the areas of production, product field performance, marketing communications and distribution into one, providing you and your valued customers the best feed storage plastic available.

I & J CornBinder

The nine gallons per minute hydrosystem runs the corn head as well as the loader.

Also, hitch swing and head rises and lowers hydraulically. The tandem axile is on the loader side. And, the aluminum loader runs with belt (no chains).

CLAAS Forage Harvesters

The high quqlity of corn forage produced by the JAGUAR is derived from the CLAAS corn cracker. Two saw toothed rollers run at different speeds with 20% difference open up virtually every kernel and this means good quality silage which is easily digested. This makes for highest energy transfer for higher milk and meat yields.

The rollers are subject to wear and tear, so the CLAAS corn cracker features removable outer sleeves. The shafts, drive pulley and bearings are all reused, thus redeucing maintenance costs. Foreign bodies pass through thanks to a spring loaded mechanism. The 7.7" diameter of the corn cracker rollers is exceptionally large. The speed differential intensifies the grinding effect for effective opening of the kernels.

The degree of corn cracker intensity is adjustable to take account of differing dry matter content. This is done mechanically. An optional electrical adjustment is available.

Since the corn cracker stays on the machine, the changeover from corn to grass can always with a minimum of preparation. This is a help when grass and corn are being harvested at the same time.

The area around the corn cracker ahead of the cooling system is very large, enabling ease of access to parts you wouldn't otherwise be able to reach. For instance the accelerator of ejection chute.

New Poultry President Generates Enthusiasm For Industry

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

MOUNT JOY (Lancaster Co.) — For a guy who was raised in the Philadelphia suburbs, far away from country smells, George Georges is surprisingly loyal to the spinely-legged chicken and its plump cousin, the turkey.

In his new role as president of the Lancaster County Poultry Association, George Georges is out to generate enthusiasm for the industry. With a background of education in poultry science and work experience in both turkey and egg servicing, Georges is knowledgeable in the varied aspects of the industry.

Let opponents to poultry expansion hassle over the smells created by manure. Georges is out to spread the news that the poultry industry generates 9,400 jobs for the county. No small feat when compared to the industry giants that succumb more and more to layoffs and shutdowns.

Georges thinks it is a shame that the non-farming community focuses on occasional acrid smells and not on the product produced. Lean meat and nutrient-packed eggs have made the poultry industry the fastest growing commodity among meat industries. Broiler, turkey meat and eggs are produced economically.

"The poultry industry's potential is unlimited," Georges said. "This is not a dying industry. It's a growing industry. It's exciting to be part of that."

Because he wanted to work with animals, Georges studied animal production at Penn State.

Before his senior year, Georges researched job opportunities. He found layer and turkey consumption was growing at a phenomental rate. With consumers concerned about the detrimental effects of fat consumption, Georges believed the poultry industry would continue to surge ahead with chicken and turkey sales.

In his senior year at Penn State, Georges added a minor in poultry science to his studies and joined the poultry judging team and the poultry science club.

With a background in poultry science and work experience with both turkeys and poultry, George Georges is knowledgeable in varied aspects of the industry.

Some of his classmates ridiculed him. They thought it more romantic to be out with the horses and beef, and a bit whimpy to be with chickens.

Their opinions did not diminish Georges' resolve to work in the poultry industry. He said, "From the beginning, poultry was exciting to me.

"I wanted to enter a growing industry, not a stagnant one. I wanted to fully utilize my college degree in the workplace."

Georges found life offered him exactly what he wanted. "The growth rate far exceeds that of most industries. There are tons of opportunities in the poultry industry," he said.

"Most people don't realize the high tech industry that we are. Every year, we have lower feed conversions. Scientific research is constantly increasing efficiency and profits. Poultry farmers are not

USDA's Luchsinger Keynote Speaker At Show

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — Keynote speaker for this year's annual Northeast Poultry Show is Dr. Don Luchsinger, acting deputy administrator for USDA Veterinary Sciences. The show is scheduled at the Lancaster Host Resort Sept. 26-28.

Luchsinger will speak on Wednesday, Sept 27, at 11 a.m. He replaces Charles Brosius, state secretary of agriculture, who had to cancel.

Luchsinger provides policy guidance for USDA's animal health programs. His presentation will focus on projected federal initiatives relative to poultry disease control and public health.

USDA APHIS Veterinary Services is a complex organization charged with protecting U.S. livestock from dangerous foreign animal pests and diseases. Luchsinger, who has extensive background in veterinary medicine, received his doctorate in veterinary medicine and masters in public health from the University of Minnesota in 1961 and 1966, respectively. Luchsinger was director of the veterinary services operational support staff from 1990-1992.

Also at the show, Clyde (Cajun) Harris will speak at 11 a.m. on Thursday, Sept. 28. Harris has warmed and inspired thousands with his lighthearted luncheon entertainment and professional sales motivation. He has appeared on many commercials and on the TV series, "Dallas".

Included at the show are seminars that provide information for

Egg Producers Face Challenges Over Long, Hot Summer

KLINGERSTOWN (Schuylkill Co.) — In the heart of the summer, for several days previously, temperatures soared well into the 90s.

The fans kept running.

Then, one Saturday early in August, the temperature hit 100 degrees.

The fans kept running, saving thousands of birds.

For Willard and Steve Haas and family, it's a summer they won't forget.

"We made it through," said Willard, with a shrug. "We didn't lose birds."

Haas, who grows 235,000 Delta layers, said that every day he and his son went into the two layer houses, checking inlets and making sure all the doors were open and the fans were running — and clean.

"You make sure your equipment is always in good working condition," said Steven. "Every day you walk your pits — every day, winter and summer."

The Haas father and son team take care of two houses, one built in the spring of 1992 to house 110,000 hens and the other finished in late 1993 to house 125,000 hens.

The 1993 building, Building 2, uses a slot air system with a four-tier cage. The earlier building has side wall air inlets.

A challenge is to keep the fans and shutters clean and free of dust.

Egg Producers Face Challenges Over Long, Hot Summer

Also, the Haas family was challenged to make sure your water's there, and make sure you have plenty of water and feed, said Steve.

"From then on, Mother Nature's got to take care of the rest," Willard said.

For the past three years, the Haas family has been raising birds and shipping eggs to Quaker State, in Klingerstown, owned by Papetti's Hygrade Egg Products, Inc., Elizabeth, N.J. The eggs are shipped for further processing to meet the demands of the processed egg market, growing year by year.

Using Deltas has proved beneficial, according to Willard, because they are a fairly good egg maker, provide a good case weight, and hold up "real good" during heat.

"Some producers lost lots of birds to the heat, where we lost very few," said Haas.

The eggs are large, with good shell quality and case weight.

Of the 1,300 acres, the Haas family farms in Schuylkill, Northumberland, and Dauphin counties. They mange 730 acres of corn, 350 acres of beans, and 180 acres of wheat. They employ one full-time worker, Scott Hoffman. Also, help

RECYCLING POULTRY BY-PRODUCTS FROM SMALL-SCALE PROCESSING

Paul H. Patterson, Ph.D.
Assistant Professor
Poultry Science
Penn State

Processing game birds or specialty market stock such as holiday turkeys, black skin silkies, or ratites generates a by-product that may be increasingly difficult to dispose of.

Options for disposal include burial, incineration, rendering and most recently, composting. However, these traditional options may be less desirable in recent years because of concerns about water or air pollution and the cost versus the return of sending material to the renderer.

Facing higher rendering costs and excessive tipping fees at the local landfill, one such processor approached us for a solution. The offal and condemned birds from this small broiler plant had a nutrient profile that suggested it could contribute significantly to the energy, protein, calcium, and phosphorus quality of the diet. By recycling into the feed, we could offset some ingredient costs and utilize a by-product that might otherwise be an environmental liability.

In one experiment, we blended ground offal and condemned birds with some inexpensive feed ingredients one might not usually see in a poultry diet (wheat middlings, barley, and cassava or feed grade tapioca). These wet and dry ingredients were combined at a 1:3 ratio and contained approximately 25 percent moisture when blended together. Using a Model 600 Insta Pro extruder, the mixtures were heated to 300 F. and dried to approximately 10 percent moisture during the process.

The three new ingredients were mixed into broiler diets at levels of 5, 10 and 20 percent and performance compared with a corn and soybean meal control. At one, two and three weeks of age, there were no differences in body weight as a result of the new feed ingredients. Neither were there differences in weight gain or feed consumption. Birds fed the control diet did have better feed conversion (feed/gain ratio) than those fed the diet with 20 percent extruded barley/by-product blend; however, all other new ingredient diets resulted in equal broiler performance at less cost that birds fed the control diet.

In a second experiment, we attempted to keep the perishable poultry by-products free from spoilage using an old technology with a new application. Fermentation, is a process of ensiling or pickling a product by adding a fermentable sugar and allowing the "good" bacteria to ferment the sugars to an organic acid that preserves the by-product. As it turned out, we were able to keep the ground poultry by-products for a week by adding 10 percent sucrose and holding them in an air-tight barrel.

The poultry by-products took on a fermented silage smell which might otherwise have been very offensive. The fermentation would allow

DEMING'S 14 POINTS FOR MANAGEMENT

William R. Roush
Associate Professor
Poultry Science
Penn State

During the decade following World War II, the United States was the leader in the industrial world. The demand for products outpaced the ability for the U.S. industry to produce. Corporate profits soared. American families watched Westinghouse TVs, listened to radios made by RCA, told time with GE clocks, took pictures with Kodak cameras, and drove the latest cars from Detroit.

Something has changed, our homes now have electronic goods made by Sony, Panasonic, and Nikon. We drive German and Japanese imports. Our athletes compete using imported sports equipment.

What happened?

What does this mean to agriculture and, in particular, to the poultry industry?

Perhaps it would be instructive to see what made foreign imports so successful.

In 1949, Dr. W. Edward Deming, an American statistician, was asked by the Japanese to come to Japan to work with industry and to help them rebuild their nation. Deming began by teaching them his 14-step strategy for excellence in management and business success. He trained them in statistical methods. It is reported that he told the Japanese that if they followed his 14-step process they would, in five years, begin to take their place in the world market.

Only Deming believed this. Today the results bear witness to his vision.

Deming has pointed out that the most severe threat to the American companies is not foreign competition. Business threats are self-inflicted, created by: (1) ineffective management strategies that have handicapped the ability to maintain a competitive advantage, (2) the misperception that quality implies meeting specifications, and (3) failure to use powerful statistical tools to improve the quality of goods and services.

The following are the 14 points that Deming taught the Japanese:

1. CREATE A CONSTANCY OF PURPOSE TOWARD IMPROVEMENT OF PRODUCT AND SERVICE. Develop and implement a plan to be competitive and stay in business. Focus on long-term results. Invest resources in maintenance and new aids to production. Invest in research, development, and education.

2. ADOPT A NEW PHILOSOPHY. Deming said, "America thought it was doing a great job. It was. You are bound to be successful if you have a monopoly." One of my colleagues has pointed out: "Managers often know they have problems; however, they think they can afford them." This can be a dangerous philosophy.

3. CEASE DEPENDENCE ON INSPECTION TO ACHIEVE QUALITY. Production personnel must learn statistical quality control. Deming pointed out: "You want to know that the parts are right before they get to inspection."

4. END THE PRACTICE OF AWARDING BUSINESS ON THE BASIS OF PRICE TAG. Instead, minimize total cost. Quality cannot be left to the force of competitive bidding. A better approach is to establish long-term partnerships of loyalty, trust, and respect with suppliers. Deming said: "End the practice of giving contracts to the lowest bidder. What are you paying for? Anybody can decrease the price . . . just chisel on the quality."

5. IMPROVE, CONSTANTLY AND FOREVER, EVERY PROCESS FOR PLANNING, PRODUCTION, AND SERVICE. Improvement is not a one-time exercise. Management should continually seek ways to reduce waste and improve quality. Statistical thinking is critical to the process of improvement.

Dr. William B. Roush

6. INSTITUTE TRAINING ON THE JOB. On-the-job training should be focused on minimization of variation in methods. Deming said: "Institute methods of training. People are not alike. They learn in different ways — by listening, writing, picturing, showing."

7. ADOPT AND INSTITUTE LEADERSHIP. The role of the manager is to lead, to be a coach, and to develop people and to help them to do better. Peter Drucker, a management consultant, has said: "You manage things and you lead people."

8. DRIVE OUT FEAR SO THAT EVERYONE MAY WORK EFFECTIVELY FOR THE COMPANY. Management must create an atmosphere where people feel secure and where trust and truth prevail.

9. BREAK DOWN BARRIERS BETWEEN DEPARTMENTS. Learn to work cross-functionally as a team. Shift from a "I win, you lose" to a "win win" philosophy.

10. ELIMINATE SLOGANS, EXHORTATIONS, AND TARGETS FOR THE WORK FORCE. How can a job be done "right the first time" if the materials or products are defective or the processing machine is not in good order?

11. ELIMINATE WORK STANDARDS (QUOTAS) ON THE FACTORY (PROCESSING) FLOOR AND NUMERICAL GOALS FOR MANAGEMENT. Quotas do not help workers to do a better job. Tight quotas will breed defects. Quotas send a confusing signal relative to quality philosophies.

12. REMOVE BARRIERS THAT ROB PEOPLE OF PRIDE OF WORKMANSHIP. It is the responsibility of management to provide the environment that enables the worker to contribute their ideas, to be involved in the decisions that affect the systems, to provide the tools, training, and information required to properly do their jobs. Two-way communication between management and the worker is critical.

13. INSTITUTE A VIGOROUS PROGRAM OF EDUCATION AND SELF-IMPROVEMENT FOR EVERYONE. Deming pointed out: "Management must make it clear that people are their most important asset. Industry needs teamwork."

14. PUT EVERYONE IN THE COMPANY TO WORK TO ACCOMPLISH TRANSFORMATION.

Deming's record has shown that his approach works. Already some companies associated with the poultry industry have taken steps to learn about Deming's approach to management and statistical process control.

POULTRY NOTES

THE ROAD TO POULTRY MEAT TENDERNESS

Dr. Vasilatos-Younken
Associate Professor
Poultry Science
Penn State

By the time poultry meat becomes a product wrapped in packaging and displayed in a supermarket retail case, it has gone through quite a journey that begins on the farm and continues through live haul, holding, slaughter, primary- and, most often, further processing.

Along the way, how the live bird or carcass is handled can have profound effects on the quality of the final product, particularly with regard to tenderness and, therefore, consumer acceptance.

At the end of growout, feed is typically withdrawn from broiler flocks for a period of time prior to livehaul, in order to minimize feed wastage and empty the gastrointestinal tract of contents that can result in fecal contamination during processing. If the period from initial feed withdrawal to point of slaughter is too long, however, the yield of salable product is reduced, and product quality declines. This period is therefore a critical

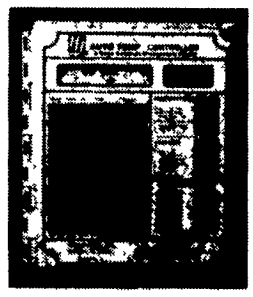
AUTO TEMP

HIRED-HAND®

12-Stage Automatic Environment Control

This versatile programmable controller lets you design your own system.



Auto Temp's on-screen program guides you through your options and makes building set-up a breeze

Unique Face Pad design gives a complete picture of the 12-stage set-up and displays whether or not each stage is running

Features

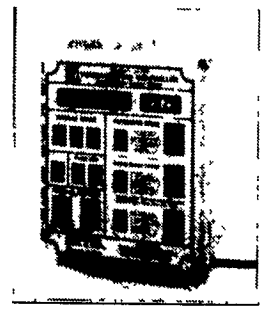
- Temperature reduction by day (ramping)
- Heat/Cool protection (keeps heaters and fans from fighting each other)
- Independently controls from one to six heaters
- Any stage can be programmed for heat or cool
- Up to 6 light cycles
- ☑ Timer Fan Control with outside temperature reduction
- ☑ Most-used functions are one-touch control
- ☑ Capable of 7 inputs and 14 outputs
- ☑ Displays temperature in fahrenheit or celsius
- ☑ Daily flock information
- ☑ Up to 4 timed feed cycles

POWER CURTAIN

HIRED-HAND®

8-Stage Curtain & Ventilation Control

This versatile controller with programmable table makes house set-up as easy as A-B-C! Just follow the menu.



COORDINATION & MANAGEMENT

The System 2000 8-Stage Controller will coordinate all functions of your operation. It manages your heaters, fans, foggers and curtains (or doors). This system can carry you from negative ventilation (fans and heaters) to natural ventilation (curtains open) to tunnel ventilation automatically

INTEGRATED OPERATION

All operations are integrated into one control system. You choose your type of ventilation – tunnel, conventional or positive pressure and the System 2000 will do the rest.

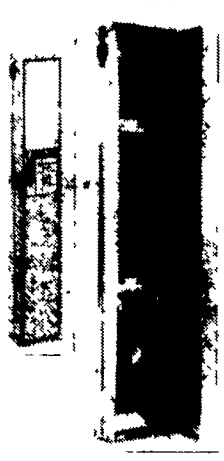
Features

- ☑ 8 Programmable Stages
- ☑ 4 Independent Sensors
- ☑ Light Control for Pullets
- ☑ House Lighting Control
- ☑ Optimum Curtain Adjustment (determined by difference between inside and outside temperature)
- ☑ Temperature reduction by day (Ramping)
- ☑ Dual Fan Timer Control
- ☑ Handles two Power Units independently
- ☑ Constantly displays house conditions!
- ☑ User Selectable Temperature-dependent Timer

PowerTrak

HIRED-HAND®

Automatic System for Curtains, Vents and Doors



A new standard in Power Units is set with the introduction of PowerTrak,™ the second generation of super-strength power pulley systems from Hired-Hand.

Completely redesigned with service in mind, PowerTrak boasts many new performance and durability enhancing features while maintaining the strong points of its popular predecessors, Power Curtain and Power Vent.

Features

- ☑ Modular construction for ease of service
- ☑ 5000 lb Capacity
- ☑ Built-In Head Bracket with needle-bearing pulleys
- ☑ Channel Lock Trak-Drive system captures load block
- ☑ 15 percent increase in load block support surface for greater life
- ☑ New easy-adjust springcam limit switch system
- ☑ New convenient hinged springlock door that is easily removed
- ☑ Greater protection from the elements

SUPER SAVER XL

HIRED-HAND®

Agricultural Inside Mount Heater for Poultry and Livestock Confinement Buildings

The Super Saver XL is a highly efficient direct-fired gas circulating heater designed for suspension mounting in houses of all ages and classes of poultry and livestock.

Electronic HSI Ignition

HSI Ignition is standard on Super Saver Components are neatly arranged with ample room for servicing and cleaning. The heating chamber is made of high temp aluminized steel which provides superior rust prevention. The cast iron burner is enamel dipped to eliminate dust adhesion and rust. Surround air intake increases combustion and heat chamber efficiency. Look for this important feature in other heaters of this type.

New side swinging door design gives easy access to internal cabinet with the new Sentex Saver control unit and powerful blower motor

New duct features user adjustable heat deflector designed to suit individual needs.

Features

- ☑ Easy-access electrical control unit
- ☑ Quick-disconnect wiring harness for easy service, gold-plated contacts prevent corrosion
- ☑ Diagnostic light for troubleshooting ease
- ☑ Electronic hot surface instant-on ignition
- ☑ 225 000 BTU LP or natural gas
- ☑ Available in Stainless Steel or Galva Zinc finish
- ☑ Duct with user-adjustable heat deflector
- ☑ High Temp aluminized burn chamber and blower housing
- ☑ Remote thermostat with piggyback cord set for easy installation
- ☑ 1/3 HP totally enclosed thermally protected motor with sealed ball bearings
- ☑ Manual reset high temp limit switch
- ☑ Backup safety sail switch

just farmers but scientists and businessmen with tremendous financial output."

Georges is a poultry technician and building and construction superviser for Wenger Feeds in Rheems. But his first job after college graduation in 1986 was with the turkey industry in Virginia and later with the turkey industry in Lancaster County. In 1990, he took over layer responsibilities for Wenger Feeds.

"Georges is goal oriented and has won several awards from layer breeding companies for outstanding performance of the flocks he oversees," said Jim Adams, director of operations and technical services for Wenger Feeds.

Geoges wants to spread the word about the Lancaster County Poultry Association. "Many don't know we exist or are an independent entity of the Pennsylvania Poultry Federation," he said. "We are the number one egg county in the nation and the number one pullet county in the nation."

Georges is pleased that the association has a strong board with what he defines as energetic people on it. The board is working on a mission statement and setting both short-term and long-term goals.

Other industry functions such as entering a float in fairs and manning a food booth at the Ephrata Fair have proven beneficial. "It gets our name out there. People recognize us," Georges said.

Most of the finances used in promotion are from the Association's food booth at Ephrata Fair. But the food booth does much more than provide finances.

"It's advertising our product. The Poultry Association's Food Booth is where people can taste top quality poultry products such as chicken breast sandwiches and chicken corn soup."

Georges would like to see the booth at all the fairs. "But it's exhausting work and some fairs have restrictions," he said.

He'd like to see more farm families help with promotions. "Many hands help lighten the load," he said.

The board also plans to continue the Pennsylvania With Pride radio and television spots.

Of the fly and manure problems that plague the industry, Georges said, "The poultry industry has had a lot of bad publicity. Those are negative issues that will be solved with time. I'd like to encourage people to focus on the services we are providing. Nutritious food is produced at a low cost. Jobs are provided, which benefits the whole East Coast."

Georges and his wife Jean live in Elizabethtown and have two children, Steven, 6, and Victoria, 4.

He is active in American Hellenic Educational Progressive Association West, an outreach of his church.

"I like to hunt and fish, but at this point in my life, my family requires more time than my hobbies," he said.

FEED CONTROL...
The chain feeding system does not dictate a feeding program. You are In control feeding exactly what is needed, as little or as much as you want when you want.

- Thick manure belts carry waste to the end of the building. Without manure storage in the building, air quality is improved.
- Environmental concerns of today and the future are reduced with this system. Be among the first to be a good neighbor.

- Walkways tie into sides of existing or new building to provide strength.
- Our feed trough fits snugly on the cage. This provides strength, and protects eggs as they move to the egg belt. The straight inner side of the trough also acts as a manure shield.
- Our cage is designed and constructed to control egg roll, significantly reducing crax and chex and providing cleaner eggs.

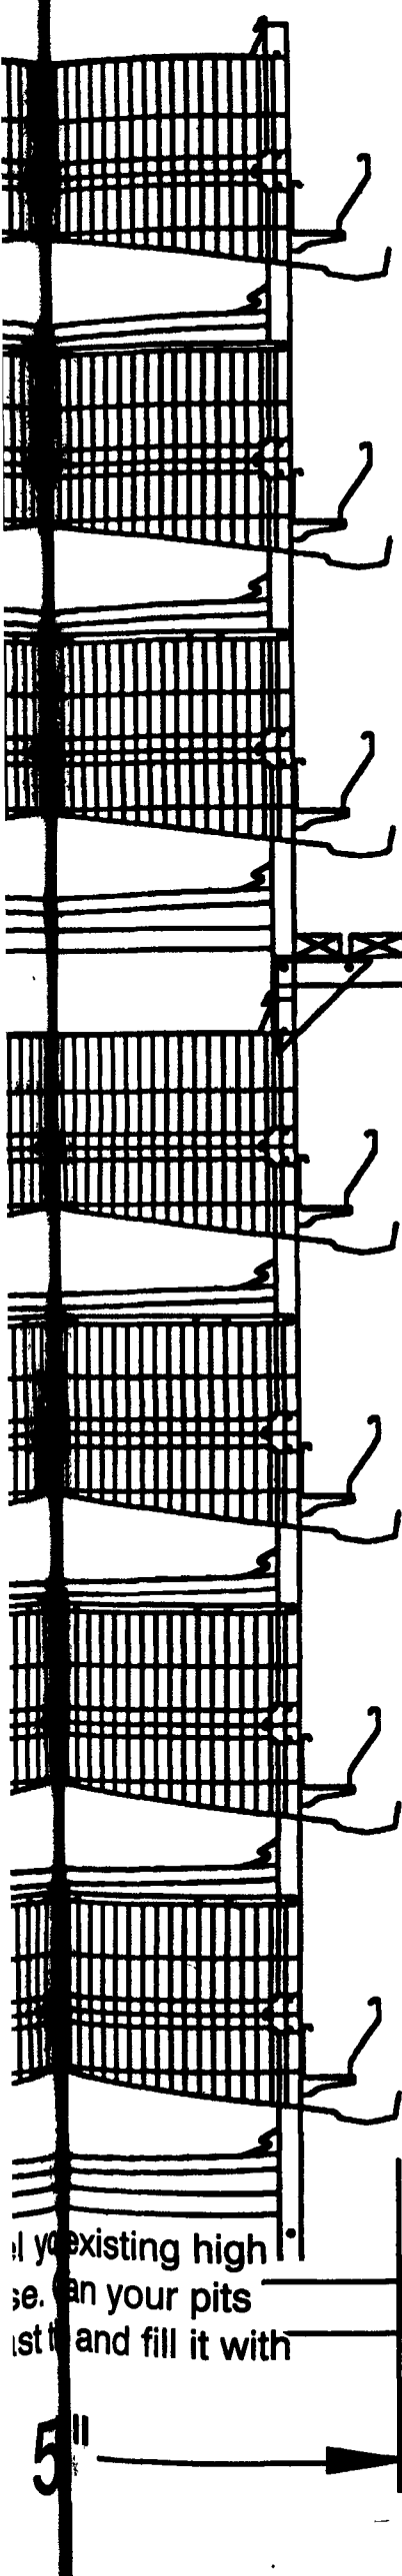
STAK CAGES



- STAK cages are designed for 3 tiers up to 8 tiers high.
- Sliding horizontal wire rod doors open the full width of the cage.
- STAK cages are available with specially designed air ducts in each cage to provide fresh air to each bird.
- Walkway structure allows access to all cage tiers.
- Reduces building costs and increases bird capacity.
- Our feeder delivers feed to the birds uniformly, amply, and with great reliability. The design of the system helps to keep eggs cleaner, and the superior suspension method makes the entire cage row stronger.

broiler, turkey, and egg producers. Topics range from avian influenza to food safety programs to consumer perceptions and expectations.

Poultry producers and agri-industry representatives are invited to attend the three-day show.

The poultry show is preceded by a golf tournament on Tuesday, Sept. 26, which begins at noon with an outdoor barbecue. The show closes on Thursday at 5:30 p.m. ($40 per ticket) with the famous "Harvest Reception," featuring four different serving areas with an elaborate selection of poultry, beef and lamb, fish, and fruit and cheese.

A popular attraction for the show is the exhibit hall, open free of charge on Wednesday and Thursday afternoons from noon until 5 p.m. More than 100 exhibitors will display the newest products and services in the industry.

In addition, a free seminar for producers and growers is held each afternoon in the exhibit hall at 2 p.m. Wednesday's seminar is on nutrient management and Thursday's is on pathogen reduction.

A complete schedule is included in this issue of Lancaster Farming's Poultry Notes. Also included is a map with the locations of all exhibitors.

Cost for registration is $40 per day, which includes a buffet breakfast. The exhibit hall is free. For more information, contact the Pennsylvania Poultry Federation at (717) 652-7530.

Bronchitis Could Challenge Broiler, Layer Flocks

ANDY ANDREWS
Lancaster Farming Staff

MANHEIM (Lancaster Co.) — Poultry companies take heed — two new strains of viral bronchitis, recently discovered in Pennsylvania flocks, could pose a challenge to your broiler or layer flocks in the coming months.

The isolates — Arkansas and Delaware 072 — were found present in two separate flocks, located miles apart in Lancaster County, according to Dr. Sherrill Davison, VMD, Poultry Diagnostic Lab at the University of Pennsylvania.

Davison recently spoke to about 30 poultry producers and agri-industry representatives at the Poultry Management and Health Seminar at Kreider's Restaurant.

The respiratory disease, caused by a "coronavirus," is highly contagious, affecting birds anywhere from two days to six weeks with high mortality and condemnations. Symptoms include coughing, sneezing, and snicking — a variety of respiratory problems, according to Davison.

The University has been performing studies in cooperation with two state broiler flocks that have had problems with respiratory-like symptoms. Mortality for one company ranged from 6.2 percent to 22.9 percent, with an average of 12.2 percent. Mortality for the other company (located a distance away) was 3.4 percent to 7.9 percent, with an average of 5.54 percent.

The cause of the bronchitis is uncertain, since flocks located nearby haven't been affected.

Davison said that many copmpanies are getting hit with mortali-

FLIES — UNDERSTANDING THE PROBLEM — FINDING A SOLUTION

Charlie Pitts
Professor Of Entomology
Penn State

Agricultural production continues to change with the economics of size, demanding more animals and land in today's farming operations.

With the increases in animal numbers, situations have developed which can create conflicts between farmers and homeowners who live in agricultural production areas. Some of these conflicts include odors, use of pesticides, movement of trucks, and machinery on secondary roads, and flies.

Flies have taken advantage of ideal environments in and around animal facilities to breed and populate in large numbers. At times, the flies create nuisances to neighbors, especially when manure, laden with large quantities of pupae and larvae, is spread.

(With some fly populations resistance to today's insecticides, IPM — integrated pest management — activities must be developed and used to solve the problem.)

Flies need organic matter (manure, food wastes, poorly managed compost piles, etc.) that has 50-70 percent moisture to lay their eggs. These areas must be near a food source — with bedded animal packs, calf hutches and kennels, and poultry layer houses with in-house manure storage providing the best environments.

But even if fly numbers increase around farm facilities, neighbor complaints do not normally occur until manure is spread. When adult flies emerge, they head for the closest white and warm object, which is normally a neighbor's house.

A female fly is capable of producing up to six batches of 75 to 200 eggs at 3 to 4 day intervals. Larvae (maggots) hatch in 12 to 24 hours. In 4-7 days and three growth stages, larvae grow into pupa (dark reddish-brown cigar shaped case and about 1/8-inch long). Generations overlap, with all stages present at the same time. The entire cycle can be as short as ten days if temperatures are 85 degrees, and 45 days at 60 degrees F.

Solutions: With more large animal facilities, especially poultry layer operations, more flies are present in our rural areas. With insecticide resistance, flies have become a problem.

Two areas are receiving major concentration: using IPM in the buildings to keep fly numbers at reasonable levels and properly handling manure once it leaves the facility. Two three-year grants from the Pa. Department of Agriculture, one to study manure treatment ($94,000), and the other to study in-house IPM activities ($113,000) have been received to address these problems.

In conjunction with the two grants, the following activities are under way: evaluation of tillage methods and their effects on keeping larvae and pupae from emerging. Early findings from this study showed plowdown to be somewhat effective. Moldboard plows were the most effective, chisel plows were next in effectiveness, and disking did not stop emergence of flies.

Covering manure with plastic is also showing some promise. To test this hypothesis, poultry manure was dumped in windrows, one dump truck wide, then black plastic was placed over the pile. A layer of soil was placed on the ends and edges of the plastic to seal the pile. In two field trials, the ends of the plastic were uncovered at 8 and 14 days, with no live larvae, pupae, or adult flies observed.

A consideration is to clean the house at 7 day intervals, then seal the manure under plastic. If covering and sealing the manure under plastic kills all development stages of flies, then manure can be spread at any time without fly problems. This would eliminate the cost of incorporating afterspraying, as well as other fly IPM activities in the house.

Baited fly barrels have shown success in capturing adult flies. These topless 55 gallon drums are fitted with a screen cone with a hole in the bottom. Cone sides are overlapped over the barrel edges and are tightly secured. Bait is placed in the barrel. When attracted to the bait, flies enter the trap through the hole. Once in the barrel, they cannot find their way back to the hole and thus out of the barrel. These traps have been placed around calf kennels and hutches, feed bins and exhaust fans of layer houses.

The ideal bait is still to be determined. Dead birds work well but create a pungent odor around the barrel. It also brings more than houseflies to the barrel. Unwanted milk, and a mixture of feed and water has also worked well. Adding water initially and on a regular basis to all (or additional milk in milk baited barrels) bait is essential. Two gallons of water or milk per week in the summer months is necessary. The number of barrels per facility and type and replacement of bait needs more on-farm investigation.

Parasitic wasps play an important role in poultry IPM programs and are helping reduce fly populations in high-rise poultry houses. The parasite is less than 1/16 inch long. The female wasp lays eggs in the pupal case and kills the developing fly. You must introduce a high number of wasps in the house to accomplish reduction.

Mulchers have been used to help lower number of pupae in concentrated areas such as in manure pits in high-rise layer houses. As larvae develop, they migrate to a dryer area to pupate. In cage layer/pullet houses, manure will form a cone-shaped pile with pupae maturing at the edges. A mulcher pushed down the rows will draw in pupae and kill them. This activity has helped especially after clean out and before natural enemies to flies have been reestablished.

Keeping manure dry is a key element. Leaks in waterers are the major source of wet manure (perfect place for flies to lay their eggs) and should be checked daily. Dry manure will cone and with proper ventilation proper drying will occur. This deters flies from breeding and promotes development of beneficial mites and beetles.

It is essential to monitor fly populations. Posting white 3 x 5 cards on a weekly basis at different areas will show fly level numbers. These cards can help determine what IPM activities are required.

The common housefly has found an ideal home in some of our farm facilities. Dealing with flies today takes more than an occasional spraying. Finding ways to lower fly numbers and stop neighbor conflicts is important to the agricultural industry in Pennsylvania.

Details of the above studies will be presented in later issues. If you need information, please call Charlie Pitts at Penn State, (814) 863-7789.

POULTRY MEAT TENDERNESS

Part of the phenomenon of shrinkage that occurs during the feed withdrawal period is a loss of moisture, which is associated primarily with muscle tissue in the body. As feed withdrawal time increases, expressible moisture in breast muscle decreases and tenderness declines. Prolonged feed withdrawal will also reduce muscle glycogen stores, which are necessary for proper development of many of the post-mortem changes that occur in meat that contribute to its tenderness and "juiciness."

Glycogen, a form of stored carbohydrate in animals that is similar to plant starch, provides a framework for holding water in skeletal muscle, and helps to retain moisture in the tissue. In addition, glycogen breakdown is integral to the process of rigor mortis and its resolution in post-mortem muscle tissue.

After the bird is slaughtered, readily available energy in the form of ATP and phosphorylcreatine in muscle is depleted and the muscle fibers develop a state of extreme rigidity called rigor. When this occurs after death, the condition is called rigor mortis. If the rate at which ATP depletion in muscle occurs is increased, cold shortening is prevented and tenderness increases. This can occur with electrical stimulation of deboned meat. Once ATP is depleted, glycogen begins to be metabolized under conditions that result in the production of a metabolic acid, lactic acid, that lowers the pH of the tissue. This process takes approximately four hours in broiler breast muscle (which is considerably faster than occurs in beef), and if the meat is deboned earlier than this, it is toughened.

During the second phase of rigor mortis (termed resolution), naturally occurring enzymes called proteases that break down protein structure degrade the muscle fiber or myofibrillar protein matrix, resulting in increased meat tenderness. Increased tenderness of deboned broiler breast meat occurs between 24 and 72 hours of refrigerated aging. One group of enzymes responsible for the structural breakdown of the muscle fiber protein, the cathepsins, are acid proteases, and their activity or effectiveness is enhanced at low pH (high acidity). The lactic acid produced by glycogen metabolism enhances the activity of cathepsins, and thereby promotes the resolution of rigor and increased tenderness.

In addition to the above pre- and post-slaughter events that can affect tenderness, the conditions under which the product is held for storage and transport can also affect quality. Freezing of muscle tissue and subsequent thawing results in the formation of ice crystals that rupture the muscle fiber membrane and cause seepage of fluid. Moisture retention and product "juiciness" and yield are therefore improved if the product is held at temperatures above freezing throughout the period from slaughter to sale.

is provided by Willard's wife, June and Steve'e wife, Virginia.

While the futher processing market continues to expand, Willard said that overall, the fresh egg market (of which he used to be a part of) continues to hold steady with demand steady.

"The process product has a chance to pick up some," he said.

At one time, the Haas family provided fresh market eggs for Sauders. But the challenges faced by the fresh egg producers and the further processing producers are the same, regardless.

"We have a very good relationship between us and Quaker State," said Willard. The key is to produce the most maximum size eggs with the least amount of feed.

Many good hens will produce anywhere from 280-295 eggs over a lifetime, according to Haas. If taken through a molt cycle, which includes removing the birds from light, a bird can produce up to about 425 eggs.

In all, the Haas family has recorded, at the end of 71 weeks, a 288/eggs/hen/house average.

Willard also serves as a member of the national United Soybean Board (USB) as a state director. He serves on the International Marketing Committee with a focus on western Europe.

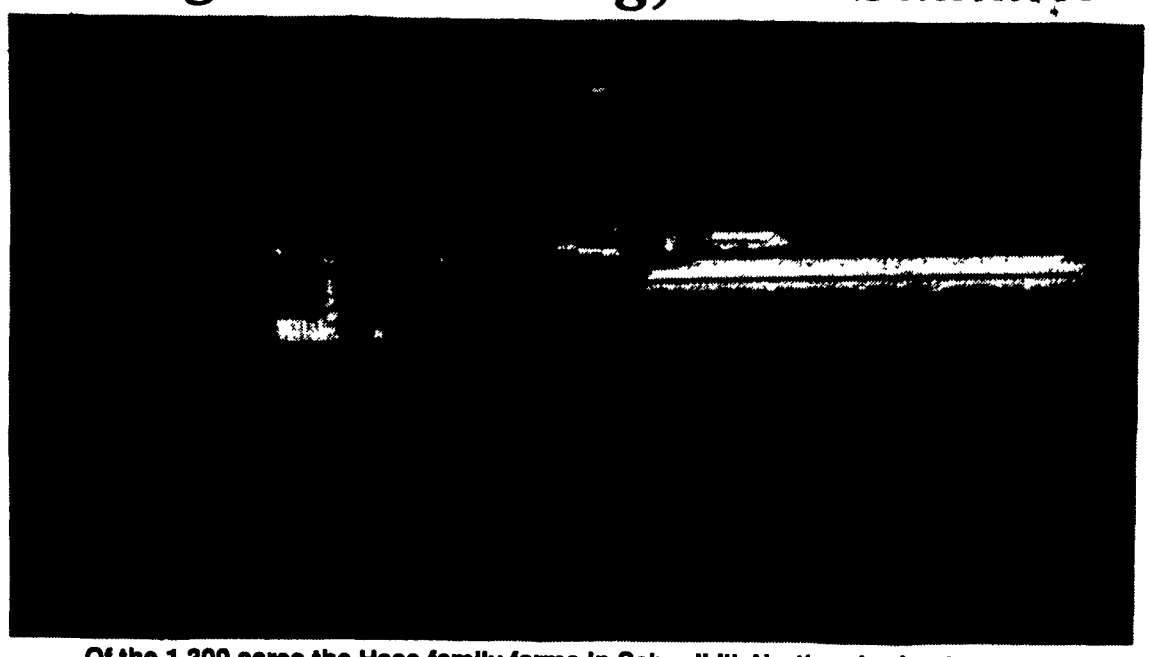
He is part of the ongoing effort of the USB to "move soybeans" into China and Pacific Rim countries. For western Europe, the key is simply to hold down the markets they have while promoting quality products.

The best promise lies with Japan, which depends on imports from soybean producers in the U.S. Willard said he believes that Japan will "never go out on the market for growing their own finished product, whether it is pork, beef, or eggs."

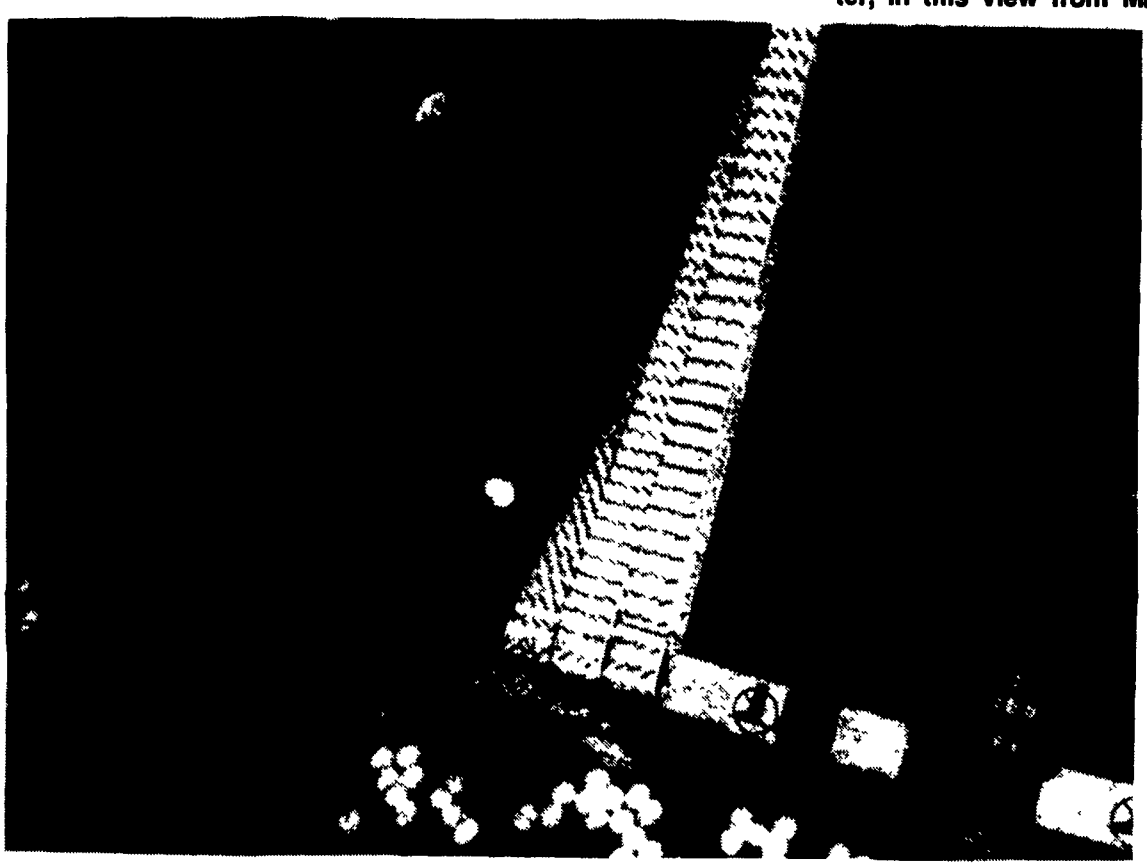
Demand is continuing to rise in China and markets are opening — slowly.

But for U.S. producers, he said, "I think we'll probably see some demand going up. Some of it is new marketing and a lot of it is finished products, microwave producs, quick foods — a lot of eggs are used for that."

The gains will be in further process market, mostly, while shell egg demand remains steady.



Of the 1,300 acres the Haas family farms in Schuylkill, Northumberland, and Dauphin counties, they manage 730 acres of corn, 350 acres of beans, and 180 acres of wheat. Their hen houses are to the right of the Salem United Church of Christ, in center, in this view from Mahantongo Mt. Rd.



Willard Haas, who grows 235,000 layers, said that every day he and his son went into the two layer houses, checking inlets and making sure all the doors were open and the fans were running — and clean.

Defined Bacteria Mix Stymies Salmonella

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Month-old broiler chickens treated with a select blend of natural bacteria had significantly less salmonella — only about one-third of 1 percent — in their intestinal pouches called ceca, compared with untreated broilers, a U.S. Department of Agriculture scientist has reported.

"The results indicate treatment with this bacterial blend, which we call CF3, may be a useful part of an integrated program to reduce salmonella in broilers during growout and reduce salmonella in the chicken house," said research biologist Michael E. Hume with USDA's Agricultural Research Service.

In tests this spring, 100 hundred broiler chicks were dosed at one day of age with CF3. Another 100 chicks did not receive CF3. Two days later, all 200 chicks were given 10,000 Salmonella typhimurium bacteria apiece.

"When the birds' intestines were checked at four weeks of age, the CF3 treated chicks had less than 10 Salmonella typhimurium bacteria per gram of cecal content, compared with about 3,000 Salmonella typhimurium per gram in the untreated birds," said Hume.

Hume and fellow ARS scientists Donald E. Corrier, David J. Nisbet and John R. DeLoach conducted the tests at the agency's Food Animal Protection Research Laboratory at College Station, Texas. Hume reported the team's findings at the recent annual meeting of the Poultry Science Association at Edmonton, Alberta, Canada.

Older chickens are naturally more resistant to colonization by microorganisms such as salmonella. Scientists have known for years that treating chicks with the cecal contents of older chickens offers some protection against salmonella.

To produce CF3, the College Station team selected 29 different types of bacteria from the hundreds present in the ceca and used only those microorganisms to produce a "defined culture," Hume said.

"The defined culture offers an advantage in that you know precisely what's in there," said ARS' Donald Corrier. "The CF3 culture con-ty and condemnation numbers that are high. For condemnations, the first company ranged from 1.93 percent to a whopping 19.94 percent, an average of 5.7 percent. The second company ranged from 0.97 percent to 6.92 percent, with an average of 2.2 percent.

Bronchitis Could Challenge Broiler, Layer Flocks

Although there was some evidence of a bacterial basis for the disease, evidence pointed to "primary a viral problem," she said.

Investigators ran a series of tests, incluing necropsy (an autopsy on the dead birds) and tests for MG, MS, and A.I. Tests again pointed to virus isolation as the key to the disease.

Of the 26 isolates obtained, 14 tested positive for some form of field strain. New positive isolates included two Connecticut/Delaware and one Delaware.

The university performed a sentinel bird study with five broiler companies in the state to evaluate the presense of the bronchitis virus in flocks, specifically "problem" flocks, according to Davison. The sentinel bird study involved nine houses. Five birds were placed in a cage, with three portable cages per house. After about a week, birds were taken out for studies. Necropsy and serology studies were performed to track any evidence of the virus in the flocks.

Also, bacteria and histopathology studies were taken of the sentinel birds, said Davison. Thirty-three percent had foamy air sacs, 30.6 percent showed coccidiosis, 17.1 percent had mucus in the trachea, and 9.9 percent had purulent (pus-filled) airsacs.

After performing virus isolation using the monoclonal antibody method, many isolates were discovered. But in particular, two new ones, the Arkansas and Delaware 072, were evident.

In the past, the state has not allowed the 072 and Arkansas vaccines to be used on flocks in the state. But because there is evidence of the virus on flocks, the vaccines can now be used at 14 days of age.

The university will be keeping careful track of the overall effectiveness of the vaccines to combat bronchitis. Also, how extensive the pathogenicity of the strains are will be studied in the weeks to come.

New studies will examine, over the next several weeks, how the isolates affect layer flocks, according to Davison. She indicated that more work needs to be done, because bronchitis can also affect layers.

In addition, the university hopes to step up its communication of outbreaks more effectively in the next months to notify people about the disease where it is located.

In the meantime, producers should be aware of the presence of the isolates and begin vaccinations.

PEQAP And SE Update

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Egg associated Salmonella enteritidis (SE) continues to be of major public health concern.

In 1994, there were 44 confirmed SE outbreaks and 10,000 confirmed individual cases — these being increased in 1994 because of the widespread Swann ice cream outbreak. The 44 confirmed outbreaks may be compared with the 59-70 in previous years and suggest a downward trend.

To date in 1995, there have been eight outbreaks. The number of outbreaks has dropped significantly in Pennsylvania and the mid-Atlantic area, but is increasing in some other areas of the country.

At least part of the reduction in Pennsylvania and the mid-Atlantic area has been attributed to the success of PEQAP (Pennsylvania Egg Quality Assurance Program). This is expected to be verified when the second national SE spent fowl survey is completed in several months. The first national spent fowl survey was done in 1991. A national breaker plant survey is also in progress.

USDA support for PEQAP was programmed to be significantly reduced in June 1996 and discontinued entirely in October 1997.

If PEQAP is to be continued, the Poultry Industry, Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture, and the Animal Health Commission will have to assume increased responsibilities. A commitment to PEQAP is important in this era of heightened consumer and political concern about food safety.

Since initiation in February 1994 there have been no confirmed tracebacks to flocks participating in PEQAP. The two most recent tracebacks in Pennsylvania were to flocks not in PEQAP. Although PEQAP cannot guarantee "O" risk, it does significantly reduce the risks of producing or marketing SE positive eggs. Participation in the program also demonstrates the producers' commitment to do everything reasonable to reduce the risk of foodborne illness due to SE. Because of this, participation should afford a significant degree of liability protection should a problem be traced to a participating flock.

tains only those bacteria that we want."

In the broiler tests, Hume said the researchers checked not only the birds' ceca, but also the crop, a pouch in the esophagus where salmonella may gather. Chicks were examined at 10 days, 21 days, 28 days and 38 days into the test.

As the birds matured, numbers of salmonella in both treated and untreated groups declined, bu the totals were always much lower in the birds that received CF3, Hume said.

"At one and a half weeks, the treated birds had about 1,000 Salmonella typhimurium per gram of cecal content, compared with 1.5 million in the untreated birds," he noted. "In the final check at five weeks of age, the untreated birds had about 400 Salmonella typhimurium per gram, while the treated birds had less than 10."

The College Station team also checked poultry litter in the chicken houses after the birds had been removed at 38 days of age. They found about 2,000 Salmonella typhimurium per gram of litter in the house where untreated chickens had been kept, but less than 20 per gram in the treated chickens' house.

for daily processing and storage until extrusion could take place. This fermented mixture was again blended with the dry feed (cassava) and extruded. Diets containing extruded cassava and fresh poultry by-product or extruded cassava and ensiled poultry by-product were compared with control diets using 3,048 broilers to 6 weeks of age. Extruded ingredients were included at 20, 25, and 30 percent of the starter, grower and finisher diets respectively.

No differences in body weight were observed by 6 weeks (4.05 pounds). Feed conversion of birds fed the control diets (1.89) was slightly poorer than birds fed the extruded fresh by-products (1.84). Chilled carcass yield was significantly better for birds fed the control diets (65.6 percent) compared with the extruded ensiled by-products (64.5 percent); however, dietary treatments had no effect on the percentage of breast meat (22.7 percent), thigh (18.8 percent), drumstick (14.9 percent), or wing (13.1 percent).

These findings suggest that the extruded feeds resulted in equal live performance and yield when compared with commercial broiler feeds. Feed costs were reduced as a result of using the extruded feeds and ensiling poultry by-products was a viable method of preservation before extrusion.
